Berlin Crisis Eased as Russia Hints Concessions

Leaders to Meet Soon in Effort To Clarify Soviet Ground Blockade

Berlin, April 4 (AP).—High level American and Soviet representatives will meet soon to try to clarify the ground communications blockade of Berline imposed by Russia against the western powers.

This was disclosed today in an exchange of notes as the United States Army called off its air freight shuttle to Berlin and withdrew its military police from Soviet railroad headquarters in the American sector of Berlin.

These developments eased somewhat the East-West tension that has prevailed in the German capital for more than two weeks.

Notes Are Exchanged

Notes were exchanged between Brig. Gen. C. K. Gailey, United States chief of staff, and Lieut. Gen. M. I. Dratvin, Soviet deputy commander in Germany.

Russian notes were delivered also to the British and presumably the French. The British-French reaction was not known.

The Russians offered to try to remove some of the difficulties in moving military freight and passengers, but insisted there was little possibility of changing existing regulations.

General Gailey answered he would be glad to meet with General Dratvin, but made clear the United States would not accept the boarding of American trains by Russians in the Soviet zone.

Meanwhile, it was learned that Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery, chief of the British imperial general staff, will dine here Tuesday with Marshal Vassily D. Sokolovsky, Soviet commander in Germany, and Dratvin. Montgomery now is visiting in the British zone with Gen. Sir Brian Robertson, British military governor.

Official British sources emphasized, however, no special significance should be attached to Montgomery's meeting with Sokolovsky. The two leaders first met in the early days of the occupation.

On the same day, Montgomery will lunch with Robertson, Gen. Lucius D. Clay, the American commander in Germany, and Lieut. Gen. Joseph Pierre Koenig, the French commander.

U. S. Confidence Reflected

The cancellation of the "milk run" between Frankfurt and Berlin, over which tons of food have flown the past three days for the 10,000 Americans in the city, reflected American confidence in resisting Soviet attempts to squeeze the Western powers out of Berlin.

A United States military freight train passed through the Soviet zone yesterday with a large cargo of food and supplies. It did not meet any difficulty from the Russians.

The Soviet note said the Rus-

Crash Kills Pilot, Injures Son, 4, In Maryland

Churchville, Md., April 4 (AP).—A former Army pilot from Baltimore was killed and his 4-year-old son critically injured in the crash of their two-seat plane.

State police identified the dead man as James Winfred Bull, 40, who served as a glider pilot in Holland and at the Battle of the Bulge.

His son, Cris, was admitted to Harford Memorial Hospital at Havre de Grace with fractures of both arms, possible internal injuries and skull fractures, and multiple body burns from gasoline fumes.

Witnesses said the plane, piloted by Bull, crashed upside down on the farm of John F. Joesting. They said a wing of the craft struck a tree as it swooped low over a field used by the Harford Flying Club of Churchville. The plane was the property of the club.

Mrs. Ethridge On Book Luncheon Program

One of four speakers to appear Wednesday at The Washington Post Book Luncheon is Willie Snow Ethridge, wife of publisher Mark Ethridge and author of the entertaining book "It's Greek To Me."

Former Postmaster General James A. Farley, Margaret Widdemer and Rep. Wright Patman are also scheduled to speak. Tickets are on sale at $3.00 at book and department stores.

Italy Parades Military Before 500,000

ANSWER TO COMMUNISTS—Nearly half million line street in Rome as Italy's military strength is paraded for two hours. Mobile equipment furnished by Allies includes eight American Sherman tanks, British armored cars and heavy mobile artillery pieces.

Shouting Italians Break Up Gorizia Communist Rally

20,000 Well-Armed Troops and Police Parade in Rome

Rome, Italy, April 4 (U.P.).—The government put 20,000 well-equipped troops and police on parade before 500,000 wildly cheering Romans today in an obvious show of force to Communists just two weeks before the critical national elections.

It was the greatest display of Italian armed strength in the capital since Mussolini's big demonstration for Hitler in 1936.

The men were smartly uniformed and looked formidable.

Military attaches of Russia, Poland, Yugoslavia, Britain, France and the United States were on the reviewing stand on the same spot where Hitler and Mussolini once stood.

No Communist Banners

Troops, tanks and trucks passed under a score of street banners urging "Vote for the Christian Democrats," the anti-Communist party of Premier Alcide de Gasperi. There was not one Communist banner in sight.

The parade followed the traditional Via del Impere route except for a deviation to pass near Communist headquarters where men inside looked out in silence.

The emphasis was on automatic weapons. When 2000 federal police rode by in trucks, a ripple of comment stirred the crowd at the sight of every man holding a tommygun.

There were enthusiastic shouts when 48 British 88 mm guns and 20 other brand new field pieces swept by.

On walls along the line of march huge posters appeared just before the parade began. They said in 5-inch type:

"Signor Vishinsky, (Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Vishinsky), Russian representative at Paris said Italian armies are braver in flight than in combat . . . Italian soldiers in Somaliland are more like donkeys than lions."

"Soldiers! Remember! The Communist Party can only support what Vishinsky said."

Italy's defense minister, Ciprano Facchinetti, told the Associated Press:

("The army is ready to defend Italy's independence.

("Rehabilitation of our armed forces has been done silently but efficiently in the past few months.

4000 Anti-Reds Cry 'Death to Tito' and 'Long Live America'

Gorizia, Italy, April 4 (AP).—More than 4000 shouting Italians broke up a scheduled Communist political rally in San Antonio Square here today. The anti-Communist crowd then staged a demonstration of its own, singing Italian national songs and shouting "Long Live America" and "Death to Tito."

The jubilant crowd marched from the square towards the nearby Yugoslav border, but Italian soldiers prevented them from reaching the frontier. Five hundred carabinieri, backed up by two infantry companies from the crack Italian Manitoba division, dispersed the crowd. There was no fighting and nobody was injured, although police in a few instances brandished clubs.

The crowd gathered at the square as the Communist rally was scheduled to begin.

Fifty Communists showed up on bicycles and were tossed out of the square, one by one. Police then escorted them away from the crowd. A woman Communist leader, Joyce Lussu, who was to have addressed the rally, did not appear. Guido Bergamo, another speaker of the day, was hustled away by the crowd before he could reach the speakers' stand.

Gorizia, a city of 50,000 is 34 miles north of Trieste, now occupied by British and American troops. To the south and east 5000 Yugoslav troops occupy other regions of the Trieste free territory.

Plane Wreckage Sighted

Soviet Scientist Sees Reds Leading Civilian Atom Use

Moscow, April 4 (NYHT).—T. Stephanian, a Soviet scientist, predicted today the Soviet Union in the very near future will lead the world in the utilization of atomic energy for civilian peace-time purposes.

He maintained that extensive development and utilization of atomic energy for peaceful purposes could occur only under "true socialist conditions."

He contrasted this with the United States where, he said, the industrial use of atomic energy for peaceful purposes is encountering "insurmountable obstacles and atomic energy is destined to be used only for military, destructive purposes."

Non-Secret A-Energy Reports Put on Sale

More than 500 American and British reports on atomic energy were offered for public sale yesterday by the Commerce Department.

The 523 reports—425 American and 98 British—make up the entire list of atomic energy reports which were released from secrecy restrictions before March, the department said.

Hearings to Begin in Week

Senators Plan to Find Total U. S. Can Spend on Global Aid

By The Associated Press

The Senate Appropriations Committee will start hearings in about a week to determine just how much money the Nation should spend on global relief. Its study is expected to be a searching one.

The measure signed Saturday by President Truman authorizes a total of $6,098,000,000 to be spent, principally to aid western Europe and China in their fight against Communist expansion. It did not, however, appropriate that sum.

Chairman Bridges (R., N. H.) yesterday announced the plans for the Appropriations Committee hearings.

He said the State Department would be asked to bring home a number of United States economic attaches and advisers, now in Europe, to testify. He said those in Great Britain, France, Italy, Belgium, the Netherlands, Greece and perhaps one or two other countries would be asked to appear.

Appropriation bills must originate in the House, but Bridges said his Senate group wanted to make an independent study and be ready when the House bill comes over.

The amount finally appropriated may be considerably less than the $6,098,000,000 authorized.

Bridges made this possibility clear when he voted for the $5,300,000,000 authorization for the European Recovery Program last month. He told the Senate he did not consider such action binding on him when it came to actually appropriating the money.

In addition to its $5,300,000,000 economic aid for 16 western Euro-

U.S. Delegates' Plane Blows Tire Landing

Marshall, 4 Others Escape Injury at Colombia Airport

Medellin, Colombia, April 4 (U.P.).—United States Secretary of State George C. Marshall and four other top-ranking United States delegates to the hemisphere conference at Bogota, narrowly escaped injury today when their plane blew a tire on landing here.

Marshall, accompanied by Commerce Secretary W. Averell Harriman, Export-Import Bank President William M. Martin, jr., and Conference Delegates William D. Pawley and Walter J. Donnelly, flew here to attend a luncheon given by local officials in their honor.

The plane, Pawley's private DC-3 transport, fortunately did not "ground loop" when the tire blew, and suffered no damage beyond the flat tire, which was quickly replaced.

Venezuela to Seek Plebiscites in Colonies

Bogota, Colombia, April 4 (AP).—Venezuela plans to introduce this week at the Pan American Conference a proposal to hold plebiscites in European possessions in the Americas to determine their political future.

A spokesman for the Venezuelan delegation said former President Romulo Betancourt will make the proposal at a plenary session.

The proposal will be aimed generally at British, Dutch and French possessions in the Western Hemisphere. In the Antarctic, Chile and Argentina oppose British claims, while in the Falklands Argentina claims ownership despite British occupation.

Venezuela and Bolivia plan to ask the United States to increase assistance to Latin America as a necessary complement to the European Recovery Program.

Conference delegates are seeking a compromise formula between views of Argentina on one side and the United States and most Latin American nations on the other as to the status of the Inter-American Defense Council. The Rio de Janeiro conference provided that the governing board of the Pan American Union should eventually be superior to the defense council. Argentina, supported by Panama, has objected that this would make the union a superstate.

Senate Unit Seen Backing Draft, UMT

Former Measure Believed to Have Better Chance Of Final Passage

By The Associated Press

A member of the Senate Armed Forces Committee predicted yesterday that it will ask approval of both the peacetime draft and universal military training.

Meanwhile, historian Harry Elmer Barnes and 25 college professors attacked UMT with the argument that history shows "compulsory training has not prevented war."

The Senator, who asked not to be quoted by name, is a backer of both controversial measures. He said he is sure that a majority of the 13-member committee shares his views.

Draft Has Better Chance

But he acknowledged he is not so sure that Congress will approve both the draft and UMT at this time. Of the two, the draft is regarded as having the better chance for passage.

The committee, which ended its public hearing Saturday, will start drafting the legislation in executive session Tuesday. Chairman Gurney (R., S. Dak.) forecast that it would have a bill ready for the Senate by Friday, but declined to guess exactly what it may contain.

Gurney in the past has said that he favors a limited draft and UMT.

Administration Urges Both

The Administration has urged strongly that Congress approve both a draft and UMT at this session.

To this end, Defense Secretary Forrestal has drafted a tentative bill calling for registration of men up to 45 years, with a limited draft for non-veterans, 19 to 26. The UMT section provides for training principally 18 and 19-year-olds.

The committee is expected to do considerable revising of Forrestal's 82-page measure.

All Army Non-Coms Get Permanent Rating

By the United Press

The Army announced yesterday that all ratings held by noncommissioned officers have been declared "permanent."

Some 250,000 soldiers were benefited by the change, which was part of the change-over from the wartime Army to the peacetime Regular Army. During the war, all promotions were specifically designated as "temporary."

Although the new set-up will have no effect on a solider's pay, duties or advancement, it will mean higher retirement pay for noncommissioned officers who serve at least 20 years. It also will permit those who leave the service henceforth to reenlist in their former grade.

B-29s Can Refuel On Long Flights In a Few Minutes

By The Associated Press

B-29 bombers aiming at distant targets can refuel in the air in a few minutes under a new high-speed method developed by the Air Force, it was reported yesterday.

This range-stretching technique was hinted by Air Secretary Symington recently before the Senate Armed Services Committee. He said B-29' utilizing the "most modern development" of the old air-borne refueling system could, for example, bomb any part of Russia from bases in Alaska or Labrador. He made no further explanation, but said bombing units of the Air Force would have the new equipment by the first of next year.

Other authorities indicated yesterday that tests already have been made with satisfactory results.

The Washington Post Poll

Parenthood Satisfactions Beat Drawbacks, 80% Feel

Eight out of 10 Washingtonians feel that the satisfactions of having children outweigh the drawbacks, The Washington Post Poll reveals.

What are the satisfactions?

Thirty-three per cent find a fascination in watching the child advance from one stage of development to another—the way his mind works, the way the skills develop and the personality unfolds. Eighteen per cent get a kick out of the child's accomplishments and triumphs in school and in later life. Twenty-five per cent feel that the companionship of one's children and the sharing of activities are the chief reward.

Smaller groups mention the pleasures of home life with children around, the authoritarian satisfaction of seeing them obey their parents, the delight in taking care of a small and dependent creature.

These findings of The Washington Post Poll are based on interviews with a representative cross-section of adults living in Greater Washington.

Pollers asked:

What do you think parents enjoy most in raising children?

	Educational Level
	1	2	3	4
Satisfactions in raising children (unclassified)	33%	34%	35%	39%
Watching the child grow and develop — as a personality	25	35	37	31
Sharing activities, companionship, plans, child's accomplishments	18	15	19	18
Home, children, parental ends	13	10	12	9
Exercise of authority — seeing children obey	10	15	9	7
Enjoyment of the excitement of children waiting for babies, seeing baby children	3	2	3	3
Keeps you young	3	1	3	3
Not specific — Keeps living	4	4	4	3
Other satisfactions	10	8	8	12
Don't know — have no children	7	6	7	7
There are no satisfactions	1	1	1	2

(Adds to more than 100% because more than one answer was possible.)

The chief drawback in having children these days is the financial one, Washingtonians said.

The cost of feeding, clothing and educating children is a heavy burden on parents, said 38 per cent.

Fourth Trip into Wisconsin

Stassen Makes Final Stab At Deflating MacArthur Boom

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

Milwaukee, Wis., April 4.—Harold E. Stassen, the man with most to gain in Tuesday's Wisconsin primary, is making one last determined effort to turn the MacArthur boom.

Orthodox politicians say votes are seldom changed in the last week of a campaign, and never in its closing hours.

But Stassen, who has already made four trips and some 36 stops in Wisconsin, is returning Monday on the very eve of the primary for two more.

Stassen's re-entry is based on the theory that MacArthur sentiment has passed its peak, that he can still be beaten and Thomas E. Dewey can be blanked in this State.

That isn't the accepted view in Milwaukee, where most neutral observers believe the MacArthur lead has been cinched for a week and the only uncertainty is Stassen's lead, if only over Dewey.

As the campaign goes into its last day, it still looks like a Stassen-Dewey race for second place but the only real index to relative positions are the claims of the leaders.

Former Gov. Philip LaFollette, heading up the MacArthur forces, is still confidently claiming a majority but he isn't predicting a sweep.

Stassen, too, stands by his majority forecast., but some of his lieutenants would be satisfied with a 6 to 11 of the 27 delegates, providing Dewey is low man or whitewashed.

Except for State Senator Bernard Gettelman, veteran Dewey leader in the Fifth District, the Dewey people are still taking the immediately humble "satisfied with what we can get" tack.

In fact, the extreme modesty of the Dewey claims have led some to suspect that he just possibly may have "sleeper" strength that hasn't showed in the MacArthur and Stassen checks. What makes the Dewey slump hard to fathom

10-Yr. Atomic Production Holiday Urged

Scientists Propose U. N. Moratorium as U. S.-Red Compromise

New York, April 4 (U.P.). — A group of American scientists who worked on the atom bomb today urged the United Nations Atomic Energy Commission to declare a 10-year moratorium on atomic production.

In letters to Frederick Osborn, United States delegate to the commission, and Sir Alexander Cadogan, chairman of the commission, the Association of Scientists for Atomic Education suggested the moratorium as a compromise between the Russian and United States views on atomic control.

Called Practical Objective

"Our proposal to effect and enforce a cessation of the production of fissionable materials for at least a 10-year period is a practical and attainable objective in the present atmosphere of mutual distrust between the United States and Russia," declared Cuthbert Daniel, chairman of the working commission of the association's Atlantic region.

The scientists said they believed their proposal answered most of the United States objections to the Russian plan and the Russian objections to the majority plan.

Would Eliminate Need

"An international mortatorium on the large-scale production of fissionable materials would eliminate the need for international operation of atomic energy plants by eliminating that type of plant entirely," the association report said.

"Instead of treating with the complex problem of guaranteeing against a diversion of materials, it would then only be necessary to carry out inspection to make certain that such plants were not in

Volcanic Area Yields Turtle And Other Fossils

Nairobi, Kenya Colony, April 4 (AP).—University of California scientists digging in the barren northern frontier district of this British East African colony have discovered the remains of a turtle believed to have lived 25 million years ago.

The fact reptiles could live at all in this area, which is west of Lake Rudolf, is considered remarkable, since violent volcanic action occurred there periodically.

In addition to the turtle, the scientists have found fossils of primitive members of the pig, elephant, rhinoceros, antelope, snake and shellfish families. They believe Lake Rudolf was probably once twice its present size and may have been the source of the Nile River before a violent upheaval dropped the lake level.

George Soupouras, 8, of 1638 14th st. nw., was fatally injured yesterday afternoon when struck by an automobile in the 1400 block R st. nw.

The child was taken to Children's Hospital where he died at 6:08 p. m., one hour after he was struck.

Police are holding the operator of the automobile, Milton L. Perry, 51, of 210 P st. nw., for action of the coroner.

Playing In Street

At the time of the accident, police said, young Soupouras was playing with other boys and being chased across the street.

The victim, a second-grade student at the Adams Elementary School, was the son of Zenon and Anna Soupouras, of the 14th st. address.

In addition to his parents, he leaves three older sisters, Mrs. Lee Cozan, and Bessie and Doris Soupouras, all of Washington, and an uncle, George Soupouras, of St. Louis, Mo.

Seven persons were hurt, one critically, as the result of five other traffic accidents in Greater Washington yesterday.

Critical was George Briggs, sr., 53, of 248 10th st. ne. Gallinger Hospital doctors said he had a skull fracture.

Briggs was pinned under the front of a streetcar which struck him at 58th and Dix sts. ne. shortly after last midnight. The streetcar was operated by Willim B. Ford, 23, of 1120 57th ave., Hillside, Md., police said.

Possibly Head Injury

Maxine Gorsuch, 31, of 3355 16th st. nw., driver of a car involved in a collision at 15th st. and Rhode Island ave. nw. about 8 a. m., was in Emergency Hospital in serious condition recovering from face abrasions and a possible skull fracture.

Her passenger, Frederick G. Renner, jr., 50, of 6602 32d pl. nw., was also treated at Emergency for scalp lacerations and released. The driver of the second car, James M. Dabney, 57, of 1512 Columbia st. nw., was released from Emergency

Total Attendance Now 404,031

German Paintings Viewed By 62,983 for New Record

Breaking all attendance records at the National Gallery, 62,983 persons yesterday visited the collection of German-owned old masters on exhibit there.

The visitors brought total attendance at the exhibit to 404,031 persons since the show opened March 17.

Gallery guards said 25,000 persons entered the building during the first two hours alone.

Macgill James, assistant director, said that although past gallery records were not available there was no doubt about yesterday's attendance being the largest since the gallery opened March 17, 1941.

Previous record for the German art show was 35,503 persons on Sunday, March 21.

One woman fainted in the crowd yesterday, the first such incident since the exhibit opened.

Praising conduct of the visitors at the showing of the paintings, discovered by American soldiers in a German salt mine at the war's end, gallery guards said "you couldn't ask for nicer people."

Among yesterday's visitors was Senator A. Willis Robertson (D., Va.). He is one of a number of members of Congress to have visited the exhibit in the past few days.

Sentiment has been growing among Congressmen to retain the paintings in the United States for further exhibit. The current showing is to end April 18. A German newspaper editor last week suggested that instead of immediate return of the pictures to Germany they should be sent on an extended tour of the United States in care

Court Order To Call Off Coal Strike Is Ignored

Lewis Believed Awaiting Official Notice; Marshals Ready to Serve It

By the United Press

President John L. Lewis of the United Mine Workers yesterday ignored, at least for the time-being, a Federal Court injunction directing him to call off the 21-day-old soft coal strike forthwith.

Lewis presumably was taking the position that until served with official notice, the order is ineffective. United States marshals will attempt to give him this notice today.

Welly K. Hopkins, union general counsel, said that he had not seen the court order. He said he knew only what he had read in the newspapers and declined further comment.

Lewis was "not available" at his home in nearby Alexandria, Va., or at his tightly locked union headquarters two blocks from the White House.

Ready for Production

[From Pittsburgh, the Associated Press reported that the Nation's soft coal mines will be ready for production today but there was doubt that union miners would man them.

[The miners generally indicated they would await a specific return to work order from their union chief, Lewis. If they were debating any other procedure, they did so in the privacy of their homes. Mine union officials reported there were no union local meetings scheduled yesterday and only one docketed for today. Barely do the miners act without such meetings. —Editor's note.]

Expected in Court

Best guess as to Lewis' action among his associates was that he will go into court, possibly today, to oppose the order, basing his fight on his instructions to his miners Saturday.

The instructions, issued only two hours before President Truman directed Attorney General Clark to get the injunction, left it to the miners themselves to decide whether they would return to the pits. Lewis has never admitted he called the strike and he pointed out yesterday that the miners took "independent" action.

Under terms of the injunction, Lewis and the coal operators are required to appear before Federal Judge Matthew McGuire April 13 to report their compliance with his order.

An operators' spokesman told the United Press yesterday that the producers would obey. But Lewis refused to state his position.

Draft Contempt Action

A Justice Department official said Assistant Attorney General H. Graham Morison is ready to file contempt proceedings against those who defy the injunction. Govern-

Eleven Drowned Or Missing in Boating Accidents

Boating accidents in Pennsylvania, Delaware and Indiana yesterday left a toll of 11 drowned or missing.

At Mount Vernon, Ind., three young men and a boy drowned in the Wabash Riven when a small boat overloaded with nine persons capsized. The other five, two of them girls, clung to the boat for half an hour until aid came. Reports that all nine had drowned brought rescue equipment from half a dozen Indiana towns.

At Blairsville, Pa., three youths drowned and a fourth swam to safety when the flat-bottomed boat overturned in the Conemaugh River.

At New Castle, Del., four teen age boys were missing. Their capsized rowboat was found on the bank of the Delaware River. Nine airplanes and three Coast Guard cutters searched the area.

One-Legged Man Dozes; Thief Steals Crutches

New York, April 4 (U.P.).—A 55-year-old Brooklyn man with one leg amputated above the knee dozed off in a subway train today and an unidentified fellow passenger stole his crutches.

Unable to walk without his crutches, David Horney was helped off the train at the end of the line by other passengers. He was found by a transit patrolman, who took him to Queens Hospital, where he was given a new set of crutches.

PEOPLE In The NEWS

Yankee Justice McGuire Fathered D. C. Municipal 'Poor Man's' Court

Justice Matthew F. McGuire, the man who "lowered the boom" on John L. Lewis Saturday, is a jurist of sober mien, who likes work, and has proved in his career that he is capable of doing a good deal of it.

One of the youngest men ever sworn in for duty on the bench of the District Court (at 42), he was, in 1941, the youngest alumnus ever to receive the honorary degree of doctor of laws from Holy Cross College.

Judge McGuire

Born in Newfoundland of American parents, McGuire was raised in Boston, Mass., where he received his bachelor's degree in 1921 and his law degree five years later from Holy Cross.

McGuire paid for the time he spent studying law by working on a weekly newspaper, "The Charlestown News." When he received his law degree, he practised in Boston for seven years, then, in 1934, came to Washington as a special attorney in the Justice Department's criminal division.

Helped Draft Kidnap Law

He helped draft the national kidnaping law, and eventually became third ranking officer of the department, Assistant to the Attorney General. In that office he supervised the Federal Bureau of Investigation, the Immigration and Naturalization Bureau and work of United States attorneys and marshals.

The stocky, blue-gray-eyed McGuire, substantial in appearance, has spared no words in condemnation of what he considered breaks in the Nation's ethical code. One of his greatest hatreds is adultery, and cases where it has been charged have brought from McGuire promises of criminal prosecution and the statement:

"Some people are living like barnyard fowl."

A leading Catholic layman, McGuire also has complained with causticism that the modern world is "on the brink of hell itself" because it has departed from the simple ideals of life.

Has New England Accent

A strict man so far as order in the court is concerned, Justice McGuire's speaking voice is distinguished by an unmistakable New England accent.

He prides himself on being the father of the "poor man's court" system here—the Municipal Court system—and feels that the court should have more autonomy. Quick in making judgments, he has proved by record that those judgments stand up in higher courts.

Practically hobbyless—the jurist does play a little golf—McGuire has a keen interest in history. He links this interest with his own conviction that so far as the future is concerned, anything can happen.

Aid Pact Arms Plea Expected From Truman

By the United Press

Some Senators are convinced that President Truman will soon ask Congress to back up the Brussels five-power mutual aid pact with American guns and other military equipment, it was disclosed yesterday.

The pact, signed at Brussels, March 17, pledges Britain, France, Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg to exchange "all military and other aid" if either is attacked. It has won the praise of Secretary of State George C. Marshall.

Senate President Vandenberg (R., Mich.) is reported by his friends as convinced that military lend-lease will be the next major project which President Truman will place before his Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

Chairman Bridges (R., N. H.) of the Senate Appropriations Committee, reported that such a program appears to be in the wind but he hoped it would be delayed until funds for the recently enacted global economic aid program are appropriated.

Senator Lodge (R., Mass.), member of Vandenberg's committee and an expert on military matters, told the United Press that military lend-lease should be considered to back up the Brussels alliance.

None of these Senators has been consulted officially by the Administration. But the reports were circulated freely as Prince Regent Charles and Prime Minister Paul-Henri Spaak of Belgium arrived here for consultation with President Truman and the State Department.

Spaak is not expected to ask United States adherence to the pact, but it is believed he will seek guarantees of military aid such as a lend-lease pipe line could provide.

Stassen Back In Wisconsin is the fact that no Dewey delegate ever has been licked before in this State.

Stassen, heartened by last week's show of delegate strength in both Maine and Iowa, would like, of course, to stop MacArthur, but his main stake in the Republican presidential nomination is making certain that Dewey doesn't pass him here.

In the unexpected event that Dewey leads him, Stassen might not be out of the national race, but it would take some doing to revive him. Stassen, himself, says he will accept nothing as final until four primary tests are completed: Wisconsin on Tuesday; Nebraska, April 13; Ohio, May 4, and Oregon May 21.

Nebraska's seven-man primary has been described as a "beauty contest" without special significance but in Ohio Stassen will meet Senator Robert Taft head-on. Oregon offers an uncomplicated test with Dewey.

Until emotional MacArthur "man to stop Stalin" appeals complicated the Wisconsin primary, this State promised just such a clear-cut showdown with Dewey. Now neither Dewey nor Stassen regards this race as decisive. For Dewey as well as Stassen, however, a shutout here might be hard to recoup.

Stassen's fifth entry into the State Monday will take him to Sparta for an afternoon public meeting in the city auditorium. Monday night he will address another meeting in LaCrosse and later hold a press conference on the air.

If Stassen's strength is still climbing in Wisconsin, it is due to these quick trips into every corner of the State and his unorthodox question and answer sessions following every meeting.

In all but the last of his 36 stops he has addressed overflow meetings. The exception was Friday night's appearance in south side Minneapolis, once 100 per cent New Deal territory. Stassen didn't fill the armory but local leaders said it was the largest Republican meeing recently attempted there.

The "Q. and A." period following each meeting gives everyone in the audience with a question a shot at him. Some of the queries are tough. He gets his best hand on quick answers to the hostile ones. He's worked the field so thoroughly that now he seldom is asked a question he hasn't answered many times before. At the close, he invariably shoots for the door to shake the hands of all who came.

If Dewey's once solid strength in the State has been undermined in a few months, it was this highly personalized campaign that helped to do it. Dewey recognized the need of a personal appearance offset when he made his quick trip here last week. Unable to produce their own man, the MacArthur forces are reduced to "ghosting" his voice. For the second straight day they are rebroadcasting his September 2, 1945, speech from the deck of the USS Missouri.

Miner Reads the News . . .

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

HE'S WILLING—Veteran Miner Frank Harper, 43 (center), reads newspaper account of John L. Lewis' letter telling striking miners to "work if you want" as his sons, Frank, jr., 19 (left), also a miner and Tommy, 12, look on. Harper said he's "willing to go back to mines, but wants to hear news from John L. officially"

Lewis Ignores Order to End Coal Strike, for Now at Least

ment officials hoped meantime that Lewis will end the strike "in two or three days" rather than force them to charge him with contempt.

The mine chieftain and his union were fined $710,000 last year for refusing to call off another walkout. In the present strike, the Government regards "two or three days" as a reasonable time in which Lewis and the union can be expected to comply.

The walkout goes into its fourth week today. Federal officials told Judge McGuire that 10 days more of the stoppage would force an embargo on all but essential coal-hauled freight, and that in 60 days industrial production will be down 25 per cent with five million men idle.

The injunction, served on Lewis as well as the operators, was obtained under provisions of the Taft-Hartley Act on the ground that the strike menaces the national welfare.

A Justice Department official said the order gives Lewis a "face-saving" reason to end the strike because it orders both him and the producers to negotiate a settlement of the miners' pension dispute, cause of the walkout.

The operators and Lewis have exchanged charges of bad faith on the pension issue and the mine chieftain ended their talks when Producer Representative Ezra Van Horn claimed the pension demand would bankrupt the union health and welfare fund.

In granting the injunction, Judge McGuire ordered the union and its officers to end the strike. He directed that Lewis "forthwith instruct all members" to cease striking "and immediately return to their employment."

He also forbade strikes and lockouts and directed all parties to the 1947 wage pact to "proceed forthwith to engage in free collective bargaining . . . with the view of bringing an end to the present dispute at the earliest possible time." In addition, he ordered the parties to activate the welfare and retirement fund "at the earliest possible time."

The order expires at 7:30 p. m. April 13. The April 12 hearing will determine whether it should be extended. Under the Taft-Hartley law it could remain in effect for 80 days to permit 60 days mediation, 15 days for a vote on the employers' final offer, and 5 days for the Attorney General to request that the writ be dissolved.

Eisenhowers See New Grandson

West Point, N. Y., April 4 (AP). Gen. and Mrs. Dwight D. Eisenhower journeyed from Washington today to see their 4-day-old grandson, Dwight David Eisenhower 2d, for the first time. The youngest Eisenhower and his mother, Mrs. John D. Eisenhower, are doing nicely in the station hospital here.

Communication between grandparents and grandchild was limited to smiles and hand-wavings by the grandparents.

Capt. John D. Eisenhower, the general's son, is studying at Columbia University. He and the former Barbara Jean Thompson were married last June 10.

Argentine Strike Ended

Buenos Aires, Argentina, April 4 (U.P.).—The Bank Workers Union voted today to return to work Monday, ending a strike that has tied up the city's financial operations for more than a week.

Family Life Group To Hear Truman

By the United Press

President Truman will address the National Conference on Family Life May 6 in a speech to be broadcast to the Nation, it was announced yesterday.

The conference, to be held here May 5-8, is sponsored by church, labor, business, legal, women's and other national organizations.

The conference announcement said Mr. Truman has expressed his "whole-hearted concurrence in the objectives" of the conference, which is to focus attention on the family and its importance to the future of the Nation.

Growing Red Pressure on Austria Seen

By the United Press

American officials yesterday reported signs of mounting Soviet pressure on Austria.

They indicated concern over the possibility that the former enemy country had been moved up on the Russian timetable for inclusion in the Red block of satellites. Among warning signs viewed with concern were:

1. Formation of armed guards corps by the Communists at the important Zistersdorf oil installations in the Soviet-occupied zone.

Action Committees

2. Attempted organization of "action committees" throughout Austria, similar to those that spearheaded the Czechoslovakian coup. Officials said this effort, unsuccessful so far, was continuing.

3. Radio Moscow's continuing allegations that only the western powers are standing in the way of an Austrian peace treaty. Moscow harps on the theme that the United States is particularly to blame for the delay.

4. Radio Moscow's claims that "Austria is now like a reactionary island which is almost completely surrounded by progressive countries (satellities where there is government by popular democracy)."

Editorial Cited

Another sign of communistic intentions is under study here by diplomatic and military officials. It is an editorial by Ernest Fischer, Austrian Red chief, recently published in the Communist daily in Vienna.

According to reports received here, Fischer's editorial contrasted events in the Soviet satellite countries with "reactionary stagnation in Austria." He added:

"Should we not, after all, have the courage to follow similar ways and even similar means as the people of Czechoslovakia?"

Fischer said that the day is approaching when the "iron curtain would inevitably and irrevocably go down into the depths of the Atlantic Ocean," an apparent forecast that the Communists will overrun Europe.

existence. There would be no basis, then, on which the Soviet government could object to 'outside' operation of plants within its borders."

The scientists pointed out that scientific research of atomic energy would not be delayed by such a moratorium because research requires only small quantities of materials, which could be manufactured on a safe scale.

Ecuador Warns Clergy To Shun Politics

Quito, Ecuador, April 4 (AP).—President Carlos Julio Arosemena warned the Roman Catholic clergy of Ecuador today to remain outside of politics.

A letter sent by Arosemena to the Archbishop of Quito charged the clergy was taking part in national politics in violation of an accord signed in 1937 by the Vatican and the government of Ecuador.

Russian Offer Eases Tension With U. S. Standing Firm

sians deny any agreement exists for free and unrestricted use by the Western allies of established corridors connecting Berlin with the western zones. The Western powers claim these agreements were made at meetings of the four-power authorities in Berlin and offer signed minutes of the meetings as proof.

General Draytvin disclosed the Russian offer in reply to an American note of March 31 rejecting the Soviet-imposed restrictions.

'Misunderstanding' Seen

"I cannot help considering as a misunderstanding and error the statement set forth in your letter as though there were some sort of an agreement concerning the 'free and unrestricted use of the established corridors' connecting Berlin with the western zones of occupation," General Dratvin said.

"There was not and there cannot be any agreement concerning the orderless and uncontrolled traffic of freight and personnel through the territory of the Soviet zone of occupation in Germany, for it is obvious that such orderless and uncontrolled traffic could only lead to confusion and would contribute to provoke unrest . . ."

After asserting he saw no possibility of changing existing regulations, Dratvin added:

"However, I am quite prepared to clarify with you certain details concerning the movements of strictly military freight and personnel of the American Military Government for the purpose of removing difficulties not connected with the aforementioned problems."

"Illegal Operations" Cited

The Russian said the lack of control has been used by shady individuals for all kinds of illegal operations and speculations, and led to the commission of crimes in the Soviet zone.

General Gailey said the United States was "fully prepared for the train commandants to provide you with appropriate documentation for both passenger and freight trains which are made up as military trains."

The Soviet general had said he was confident the Russian regulations would strengthen relations between the zones of occupation and military governors. General Gailey replied:

"I believe you must admit that the action of the Soviet military administration in issuing new regulations on 24 hours notice and without advance consultation, could not be interpreted as a desire to cooperate in a friendly effort to reach a mutually satisfactory solution.

"Measures of this type always lead to counter measures and therefore have a significance in our relationships which cannot be underestimated."

West Not Too Optimistic

The Soviet offer for discussion was not taken too optimistically by the western allies. It mentioned no date for a meeting, and American and British officials indicated they would not press for any emergency session.

Undeterred by the East-West tension, 20 newly arrived American dependents flew to Berlin today to join husbands and fathers.

Three British buses with 90 passengers, including women and children, passed thruogh the Soviet check point at Helmstedt after being delayed one hour by Soviet guards.

For the first time in four days, there were no troops of the western powers standing at artificial check points on road barriers in Berlin. The Soviet check points on the auto highway to Hannover and the single-track railroad between Berlin and western Germany were still there.

A German policemn was left on duty outside the Soviet railroad center here. He said he had no special orders and considered the situation normal again.

U. S. Ready to Act

Col. R. A. Willard, commander of United States troops in Berlin, said if the Russians attempt to put guards back he would "slap another cordon right back in the place."

The withdrawal of Russian sentries came after American troops had turned back for more than 24 hours every Russian seeking to enter the building. Late yesterday American authorities formally demanded that the sentries be removed.

Reports of strengthened patrolling of the Soviet zone border continued. At Lueneburg in the British zone German police reported that two German policemen on a routine check were abducted by a Soviet frontier patrol.

General Gailey's original letter to General Dratvin disclosed this as the official United States position:

The United States recognizes the right of Soviet authorities to check identification of passengers entering the Soviet Zone on the Berlin-Hannover autobahn. Russian right to inspect personal belongings where identification has been established is not recognized.

The United States does not recognize the Soviet right to inspect military freight and passenger trains because "these trains are clearly identified as official United States Army trains."

Stand Further Clarified

The United States is willing to have train commanders on military trains furnish at entry points a passenger list and copies of the orders of each passenger. The United States is also willing to have train commanders on freight trains furnish a manifest of cargo at entry points.

The United States will not permit Russians to enter trains to examine individual documents or to inspect cargo.

It was disclosed tonight the Russians have begun to remove documents from the railroad building in the American sector. It was not known whether they were planning to move their headquarters or were merely taking out some of their more important documents.

pean nations, the authorization bill includes 463 million dollars for China; 275 million dollars for Greece and Turkey for military purposes, and 60 million dollars for the international childrens' fund of the United Nations.

The fact that the appropriations for the European and Chinese programs will be held up for some time will not prevent them from getting under way immediately. A billion-dollar Reconstruction Finance Corporation loan was provided in the authorization measure to launch ERP, together with 50-million-dollar loans for the same purpose for China and Greece and Turkey.

A State Department skeleton staff is ready to begin work this morning on the assumption that President Truman will issue an order at that time designating Secretary of State Marshall as temporary administrator for 30 days. Mr. Truman still has to name a permanent administrator.

State Department officials said they were prepared to begin placing supply orders this week. Loading of some ships may begin within a few days.

First, however, agreements must be signed with the European governments pledging them to take self-help measures. Preliminary agreements with some may be made today.

Officials said five countries were in most urgent need of help. They are Italy, France, Greece, Austria and the Netherlands. Supplies may be dispatched to them within a week or 10 days.

Tass Asserts Spain Vote Tipped State Dept. Hand

Moscow, April 4 (AP).—Newspapers today published Washington dispatches of the Soviet news agency Tass reporting enactment of the European Recovery Program.

Tass said the State Department was concerned at inclusion of Spain in the Marshall Plan under the House version of the bill and brought pressure that got the bill changed.

Finn Treaty Note Flown to Russians

Uranium

Reds Draft Freed PWs For Mining

Berlin, April 4 (AP).—Hundreds of German prisoners of war whom the Russians claim to have released are working as conscript labor in Soviet-operated uranium mines in eastern Germany and Czechoslovakia, according to undisputed German press reports.

Charges the Russians are using "freed" prisoners for such labor have appeared in the Berlin Socialist press and in the Neue Zeitung, official German newspaper of the American Military Government.

Accounts in these newspapers have included statements from PWs who, instead of being returned to their homes, have been forced to dig the atomic metal that is delivered to the Soviet Union.

These dispatches said that in addition to operating mines in Saxony in the Russian zone, the Russians also have full control of diggings across the border in Czechoslovakia.

These mines are in the vicinity of Joachimsthal (Joachimov), where the Russians are reported to have carved out a Soviet island on Czech soil. It is a forbidden area to newspapermen of the western countries and even to the Czechs.

Poles to Demonstrate

Warsaw, April 4 (AP).—Communists and left-wing Polish Socialists plan to make a big demonstration on May Day against "American imperialism and reactionaries," it was announced today.

Two Negotiators Return to Moscow After Discussions

Helsinki, Finland, April 4 (AP).—Two Finnish treaty negotiators returned to Moscow today with a personal letter from President Juho K. Paasikivi to either Prime Minister Stalin or Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov.

Political quarters said the two men, Urho Kekkonen and and J. O. Soederhjelm, were in an optimistic mood when they boarded a Soviet plane. They had been here two days, conferring with Paasikivi.

They also carried new instructions for the Finnish delegation negotiating in Moscow on Stalin's proposal for a Russian-Finnish friendship and mutual aid treaty.

Paasikivi was reported in better humor after a week of tiring conferences on the Soviet proposal. At times considerable pessimism was evident in the Finnish government.

Some Helsinki newspapers are predicting conclusion of the negotiations in three or four days.

Truman Certain To Be Reelected, McGrath Asserts

Butte, Mont., April 4 (AP).—The reelection of President Truman "is as certain as we are sitting here," Democratic National Chairman J. Howard McGrath told 400 Montana Democratic leaders last night.

McGrath continued a Western tour today with U. S. Senators James E. Murray (D., Mont.) and Warren Magnuson (D., Utah), going to Missoula for a public reception.

McGrath praised Mr. Truman for "having the courage to stand up for what he believes is right" and to "change his course when he realizes he is temporarily in error." He compared voting restrictions on Southern Negroes with "the actions of the Russian government in attempting to control the people of Finland, Czechoslovakia and Italy at the ballot box.

"I do not think that a great segment of the American people will turn against the President when he upholds the Constitution."

Flood of Speeches

[Political speakers appealed to voters in virtually every city and hamlet in Italy.

[In Venice, Communist Chief Palmiro Togliatti spoke in tempered terms of the Marshall Plan which his party has bitterly attacked. He said: "It is time that Italy begins to function as an autonomous organ."

[Togliatti directed this question to Premier de Gasperi:

[Will you leave the government if you do not obtain a majority vote April 18 and leave the government to the popular forces which will have received the majority?"

[At Vicenza, near Venice, De Gasperi addressed the Provincial Congress of the Catholic Action Italian Laborers. He spoke to the delegates of the significance of liberty.

["Because of orders from Russia," De Gasperia said, "the Italian Communist Party—against its own convictions—seeks to sabotage American aid. Back of the sabotage of the Marshall Plan is an attempt to suffocate the liberty of the Italian people."]

[The New York Herald-Tribune said Italy's Communists joined forces with their left-wing Allies to issue "an open letter" to the Catholic priesthood of Italy, to ask them to stop their campaign against Communism.

[The letter ignored Pope Pius XII's persistent attacks on Communism. It addressed itself directly to each priest.]

Reds Lose Berlin Vote

Berlin, April 4 (U.P.).—Prowestern candidates defeated Communist office seekers in 11 out of 12 districts in police union elections held in the American, British and French sectors of Berlin, it was disclosed today.

Japs Maneuvered Into Firing First Shot, Historian Says

New Haven, Conn., April 4 (U.P.).—Japan was "maneuvered" into firing the first shot of a war which President Roosevelt considered inevitable as early as October, 1940, according to Historian Charles A. Beard.

Beard declared, in a book to be published tomorrow by the Yale University Press, that Mr. Roosevelt secretly committed the United States to military action abroad months before Pearl Harbor.

Hearings, Exhibits Studied

The book, entitled "President Roosevelt and the Coming of the War 1941, A Study of Appearances and Realities," was written after a study of hearings and exhibits published by the Joint Congressional Committee on Pearl Harbor, and hundreds of other documents bearing on that subject.

From the campaign months of 1940 December 7, 1941, Mr. Roosevelt often employed arbitrary and frequently secret means toward an end "which he chose for himself and for the United States"—the defeat of Hitlerism with the aid of American Armed Force," Beard said.

The historian doubted that these means were justified in the light of war's outcome. He charged that Mr. Roosevelt's handling of foreign affairs prior to World War II set precedents threatening American constitutional government.

Sees Principles Discarded

"The noble principles of the Four Freedoms and the Atlantic Charter were, for practical purposes, discarded in the settlements which accompanied the progress and followed the conclusion of the war," Beard said. "More significant still for the fortunes of the American republic, out of the war came the triumph of another totalitarian regime no less despotic and ruthless than Hitler's system—Russia, one of the most ruthless leviathans in the long history of military empires."

Beard warned that, if the precedents set by Roosevelt's handling of United States foreign policy remain unimpeached and provided sanctions for the future conduct of United States foreign affairs, "the Constitution may be nullified by the President and officers who have taken the oath to uphold it."

Taylor Reaches Rome

Rome, April 4 (AP).—Myron C. Taylor arrived today by plane from Madrid, where he saw Generalissimo Francisco Franco. Taylor, White House Ambassador to the Vatican, said he hopes to see Pope Pius XII soon.

U. S. Italians Push Letter Drive

New York, April 4 (AP).—Italian-Americans opposed to communism are bombarding Italy with letters and cables urging relatives and friends to vote against the Communists in the April 18 election.

Salvatore Parisi, national secretary of the Order of Sons of Italy, said 120,000 fraternity members in 34 States already have sent two million anti-Communist letters to Italy.

The informal pro-Democratic propaganda campaign is supported by the press, foreign language and American; members of the Roman Catholic clergy; Italian-American organizations; and public figures.

Representative Martin (R., Mass.) speaker of the House of Representatives and acting Secretary of State Robert A. Lovett have indorsed the plan. Former Gov. Leslie A. Miller of Wyoming, is promoting it.

Spearheading the campaign is Il Progresso Italo-Americano, a New York Italian daily, which on January 19 initiated a million-letters-to-Italy program. Since then approximately 100 Italian language publications in more than 45 United States cities have joined in.

Now Il Progresso plans a 10-million-cables-to-Italy program in the remaining days before the Italian election. A sample cablegram suggested by the newspaper says: "Vote for freedom for Italy and for Italians or you may never vote again."

Navy Finds No Trace Of Unidentified Sub

San Francisco, April 4 (AP).—The Navy said today it had ben unable to find any trace of an unidentified submarine in United States territorial waters off the Southern California coast.

A search was ordered, the Navy said, after N. R. Tinker of Orcutt, Calif., reported Friday he saw an undersea craft 300 yards off shore near Pismo Beach.

Greek Army Wipes Out 800 Guerillas

Salonika, Greece, April 4 (AP).—The Greek army has crushed completely an 800-man guerilla force in the Krussia mountain area, United States military informants said today.

In five days of fighting the Communist-led rebels are believed to have lost more than 500 men and had their hideouts overrun. The Greek army's victory ended a rebel threat to Salonika.

For the first time Greek troops fought according to a plan drafted by a joint American-Greek military advisory group.

The Greek regulars first destroyed the guerilla headquarters at Ponto Kerasia and then pursued the retreating rebels southward. The operation was concluded last night 28 miles northeast of Salonika.

U. S. Agents Active in Iran, Soviet Hints

Moscow, April 4 (AP).—An official Soviet statement today compared the present situation in Iran with 1941, when German agents were reported active there. The implication appeared to be that in Russian eyes, Americans now occupy positions similar to those held by Germans in 1941.

The statement was published in Pravda and Izvestia, following a series of diplomatic exchanges between the USSR and Iran extending back for several months. It accused the Iranian government of attempting to avoid responsibility for policies violating good neighborly relations with the Soviet Union.

The statement denied Iranian charges that Russia was arming groups of Iranian refugees for "the invasion of Iranian territory;" was maintaining an illegal Iranian radio station on Soviet territory, and was moving Soviet troops near the Iranian border.

Carrier Force To Maneuver Off Greece

London, April 4 (U.P.).—A United States Navy carrier task force recently in the Persian Gulf will hold "tactical exercises" with an American Mediterranean task force soon, it was announced tonigh.

Announcement by American Navy headquarters here of the maneuvers said they would be of "a routine nature."

It was announced also that Admiral Richard L. Conolly, commander in chief of American Navy forces in the eastern Atlantic and Mediterranean, left London tonigh for a Greek port to witness the "exercises."

Conolly will board an American cruiser when he reaches Greece.

The carrier task force which has been sent from the Persian Gulf for the maneuvers consists of the 27,000-ton carrier Valley Forge and two destroyers.

The regular Mediterranean force which will take part in the exercises is commanded by Vice Admiral Forrest Sherman.

Palestine Session May Be Short

Lake Success, N. Y., April 4 (AP). An American spokesman said today the United States delegation hopes for a short United Nations Assembly on Palestine.

He added the session, beginning April 16, should not extend longer than two weeks.

United States delegates here and State Department officials in Washington worked over the weekend on details of the trusteeship plan for Palestine which Warren R. Austin, chief delegate, will present to the Assembly.

Austin hopes to explain details to members of the United Nations Security Council tomorrow at 2:30 p. m. (EST) at an informal gathering in his Manhattan office.

Reds Get Restive at Press Parley

Geneva, Switzerland, April 4 (U.P.).—Russia and her Communist satellites were becoming increasingly restive and resentful today over the defeat of every proposal they have made at the International Conference on Freedom of Information and the Press.

Poland, Bulgaria and Yugoslavia already have complained over the readiness of the 53-nation conference to follow the American lead in defining a free press and guaranteeing a free flow of information around the world.

Speculation was mounting the Soviet group might walk out of the conference.

However, Americans doubted seriously that any resolutions adopted or treaties drafted by the conference would make it any easier for foreign correspondents to work in Russia or give eastern peoples access to uncensored news of the West.

Russia, Byelorussia, the Ukraine, Poland and Czechoslovakia either have voted consistently against every American resolution and amendment, or they have abstained.

Deserved Punishment

Ten persons were arrested last week for forcing their way into the exit door of a streetcar at the rush hour. That is good news and, we trust it marks the beginning of a vigorous campaign to suppress a form of lawlessness that is dangerous to life and limb, as well as highly obnoxious. Probably the majority of the people who are addicted to this reprehensible practice are not seeking to evade payment of fares. In fact 6 of the 10 arrested persons had passes. But whether they pay or ride free, the door-crashers show a callous disregard of the effects of their lawless conduct on other passengers. By blocking exits, overloading cars and engaging in a free-for-all tussle to gain entry, they also increase the danger of accidents. If fines do not put a stop to this kind of inexcusable rowdyism, a few jail sentences would not come amiss. We hope that the authorities will not hesitate to impose them on future offenders.

Administering ERP

Thanks to a Congress that made provision for a temporary administrative setup and also provided funds for use through the RFC, the European Recovery Program will begin to function immediately on a limited scale. With the emergency needs of participating countries thus taken care of, the appointment of a permanent administrator can be undertaken more deliberately, with less danger of an unsuitable choice.

It is not an exaggeration to say that the success of the undertaking on which we are about to embark depends to a very large extent on the character and ability of the man selected to head the permanent ERP organization. For this official will be called upon to make many momentous decisions in exercising the great discretionary powers vested in him by law. It would have been impossible to lay down hard-and-fast statutory rules for the guidance of the Administrator. For the objectives of the foreign-aid program, described by President Truman as "a measure for reconstruction, stability and peace," cannot be attained by relying on formulas worked out in advance. Decisions that in certain cases and at any given time seem wise may not be applicable at other times or under different conditions. In short, the Administrator must be free to modify his policies in response to unforeseen changes in economic and political conditions either at home or abroad.

A single example illustrating the importance of not imposing rigid restrictions on the Administrator's authority is afforded by a provision of the Foreign Assistance Act patently designed to discourage trade between the countries of western and eastern Europe. The Administrator is ordered "insofar as practicable" to refuse delivery to participating countries of commodities used to produce any goods for delivery to nonparticipating countries, if licenses for export of such commodities to nonparticipants would be refused by the United States in the interest of national security. Even that prohibition which, as we recently pointed out, conflicts with our professed objective of reviving trade between eastern and western Europe, is qualified by the phrase "insofar as practicable." That means the Administrator has been given some necessary leeway in carrying out instructions. Otherwise Great Britain, Belgium and Sweden might be forced to abrogate their trade treaties with Russia.

The task assigned the Administrator has been rendered much more difficult than originally anticipated by the growing political tension that has made it necessary to consider the political as well as the economic consequences of the actions taken in implementing the recovery program. The attainment of our objectives—economic restoration of Europe to insure prosperity and lay the foundations for world peace—can no longer be sought with regard solely for the economic needs of the beneficiaries and the economic benefits derived from such aid. The political effects of the decisions regarding apportionment of aid must also be weighed, since it is also our purpose to build up the resistant powers of freedom-loving peoples against Communist aggression.

Consequently, the man appointed to head the recovery administration should not only be competent to deal with purely economic problems; he should also possess the qualities of a good diplomat, since he will be constantly forced to make decisions of a delicate and difficult nature affecting our relations with other countries and our foreign policy. It will be far from easy to find a man with the expert knowledge, administrative experience, and personal qualities required for successful discharge of the duties of this new and responsible office. Fortunately, President Truman has a wide field from which to choose, beginning with members of his own Cabinet whose claims to consideration, we trust, will not be ignored merely because they already hold important posts.

Challenge At Berlin

Events in Berlin have intensified the gravity of the conflict between the democratic and communistic centers of power and underscored the fears of many Americans that no peaceful solution can be found. It is a good time to remember, however, that last week's events in the former German capital represent a reopening of old sores. The problems which resulted in the interruption of traffic between Berlin and the American, French and British zones, and the subsequent exclusion of Russians from a railroad administration building in the American sector of the city, are problems about which there have been sharp disagreements for many months. Considering the depth of the cleavage that exists, the remarkable thing is that clashes have been avoided in the past.

Some observers now sincerely fear that the policy of Moscow has changed—that Moscow is now ready to convert the cold war into a hot war. That possibility is always present. Insulated dictators who are blinded by their own propaganda and obsessed by exaggerated notions of their power are always under strong temptation to take the fatal plunge, as did the Japanese warlords in 1941. It is not necessary, however, to assume that the men in the Kremlin have made such a decision to explain the conduct of the Russian military command in Berlin. Certainly there has been some change of attitude, but there is still good ground, in our opinion, for concluding that it represents only an intensification of the cold war to match the stepped-up resistance of the United States.

Russia's latest intransigeance at Berlin coincides with the final enactment of the European Recovery Program and with the United States' more active role in Italy. The effects of American policy are beginning to be felt. With the crucial Italian elections approaching, Russia is under increasing pressure to strike at the United States' growing prestige in Europe. As the London Economist expressed it: "The American objective is all aid—short of war; the Russian objective is all mischief—short of war." No one can say how long the "short of war" qualification will remain a part of either country's policy. But as we prepare ourselves for any contingency, it would be a serious error to assume that the chance of a peaceful settlement has passed.

Secretary Royal in Washington and General Clay in Berlin have made it plain that the United States will not take a provocative attitude. At the same time, says General Clay, evacuation of Berlin is "unthinkable." This is little more than a rephrasing of what Secretary Marshall said recently, and we do not see how the United States could assume any other atttitude. Undoubtedly the Russians have the military power to push the American occupying forces out of Berlin. But the use of that power for such a purpose would destroy the last vestige of understanding between east and west. It would be an act of war that would have to be met, in one way or another, by force. Even if actual fighting did not break out at Berlin, the line separating the American, British and French zones from the Russian zone would become a hostile boundary, with each side mobilizing its strength for the inevitable clash!

In short, the United States could no more submit to an act of aggression in Berlin than to an act of aggression in Italy, Greece or France. To retreat, under threats, from an area in which we have a joint responsibility with the Russians would be gravely to undercut our influence in Europe and virtually to invite Moscow to go ahead with its conquests. Such a course would quickly undo much of what the enactment of ERP and the three-power proposal on Trieste have accomplished. It would leave in shreds our foreign policy that has been so carefully developed over the last year.

We hope that Premier Stalin understands the impossibility of an American surrender to one-power demands in Berlin. If he does, we think the crisis will pass without any open hostilities. Whatever happens, the imperative necessity of building up our defenses and preparing for any eventuality should now be apparent to every citizen. Our officials in Berlin and in Washington may be trusted to keep their shirts on, but an irresponsible decision by a few men in Moscow—perhaps even one man—can destroy the last hope of maintaining both peace and freedom. This is a tragic fact, but it is a fact that must be faced candidly and courageously in order to save ourselves from being confronted by much greater threats of calamity in the months and years ahead.

Iceland's Generosity

Little Iceland, which scarcely can be regarded as the wealthiest of nations, has set a truly remarkable example in contributing $400,000 to the United Nations Appeal for Children. This amounts to more than $3 in voluntary gifts for each of Iceland's 127,000 inhabitants. The Icelanders, moreover, have increased the significance of their contribution by assembling more than five tons of clothing for the world's needy children. All this in a country with a population only one seventh that of Washington!

The U. N. Appeal for Children is one of the auxiliaries of the International Children's Emergency Fund, which was established to continue the valuable work in caring for children started by the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration. So far the fund has been able to look after only a small fraction of the estimated 230 million children who need its help. Congress has just increased the official American contribution to the fund from 40 million to 60 million dollars for fiscal 1949, to be matched with funds from other governments. This, however, is only a part of what is needed to enlarge the scope of the program. The American people individually have their best chance to contribute through the various local campaigns being conducted under American Overseas Aid. The U. N. Appeal for Children has set a contribution goal of one day's pay for each family. Americans can follow no better lead than that of Iceland, whose citizens have amply demonstrated their recognition that children everywhere are the world's most important resource.

Spring Cleaning

Man's annual season of martyrdom has arrived. He is pictured compassionately in print and cartoon as a lost soul, driven from his favorite chair, even from his home, by a determined woman with a vacuum cleaner. Everything in the house in topsy-turvy. Meals are scanty and humdrum, strange antiseptic smells pervade his castle. He can't sit down five minutes in one place to read the newspaper without being asked to move. He may even be put to work hanging curtains, moving furniture, beating rugs! And when it is all over, does peace descend? No, indeed! He finds himself in an utterly strange house, his entire way of living upset. His chair is on the other side of the room. Every time he starts to turn on the radio he goes in the wrong direction. What did she do with that pile of magazines, those old Sunday newspapers? Where are those match folders he had on the window sill, those pipe cleaners he stuck in the side of the bookcase? Why did she throw away his shoe horn? Why did she mess with his bureau drawers? He can't find a thing! He feels as if he had been dropped from Mars, a being without possessions, without moorings.

A woman is to blame for all this! Presumably the whole proceeding is a picnic for her. She is supposed to be ecstatically happy as she reaches after cobwebs with a broom from the top of a wobbly step-ladder; as she breaks off her nails and starts runs in her stockings waxing floors, polishing furniture; as she hauls assortments of clothes and hat boxes out of closets, planning to get rid of at least half of them, and finds she has just as much to put back; as she sorts over white elephants in stuffy attics and finds new storage space for the conglomeration of articles on the attic steps; as she goes over the contents of desk and bureau drawers, and suffers the agony of decision about what to throw away; as she washes the bathroom walls when the "help" doesn't arrive; as she is struck with a sudden overpowering fag just as she gets everything piled up around her; as she starts to take a 10-minute rest, looks at the clock and realizes she must throw something together for dinner. Yes, she is supposed to be having the time of her life. But somehow we wonder. . . .

Dubious Experiment

Several correspondents, commenting on our editorial of March 29 on the anti-poll tax bill, mention the Fourteenth Amendment to the Constitution. This reference is especially pertinent. We ourselves have often pointed out in the past that the Fourteenth Amendment contains an ideal coercive power that can be used against the States which stubbornly refuse to abolish their poll taxes. This amendment provides: "When the right to vote at any election for the choice of electors for President and Vice President of the United States, Representatives in Congress, the Executive and judicial officers of a State, or the members of the Legislature thereof, is denied to any of the male inhabitants of such State, being 21 years of age, and citizens of the United States, or in any way abridged, except for participation in rebellion, or other crime, the basis of representation therein shall be reduced in . . . proportion . . ."

Incidentally, the adoption of this amendment in 1868 involved fresh recognition of the right of the States to say, within the limits prescribed by the Constitution, who shall be entitled to vote. If the States abuse this privilege, Congress is instructed to reduce their representation in the House and the electoral college accordingly.

Why Congress should ignore this plain mandate and at the same time set itself up as a sort of rival Supreme Court to change the meaning of words used in the Constitution is a mystery to us. The whole scheme seems to hang on the hope that the Supreme Court will reverse itself and permit Congress to define the phrase "qualifications requisite for electors" so as to exclude one particular economic qualification—the poll tax—contrary to the historic meaning of this language. This is equivalent to venturing upon a dubious experiment while safe and reasonable remedies are immediately at hand.

LEAVES AND RAIN

These leaves I thought done, each ribbed skeleton to be unfleshed, how are they after rain
come to glow again, swollen, refreshed!

I who meant to live where trees are the sieve of sun, and no more fall, had thought the lovely sheen from inside the green was light's gift all.

And never did I guess rain could be no less than light, the stream that heals and makes amends to whatever ends, deepening the gleam.

Drafting Doctors

Those of us who agree with the goals of the ERP sincerely want to help implement them by such measures as universal military training and a temporary draft.

Many physicians and dentists, however, regret to be singled out of the professional groups as the unexpendable displaced persons of this policy. Although they recognize the need for doctors where large masses of men assemble in military camps, they obviously do not want their civilian careers to be disrupted again, and perhaps permanently. Surely theirs is a human reaction.

There are many doctors who voluntarily choose the armed services as their sphere of endeavor. I believe there are enough of these men and women to cover the confines of the military camps. May I suggest an alternative to drafting those doctors who are justifiably reluctant to leave their practices (which many have just reassembled due to their recent service in the armed forces)?

During the war several doctors were allocated in the cities and towns as the Public Health Service representatives for the areas. It was to them that servicemen and their families could turn for medical aid. Could not this system be reemployed and amplified in every city in the country (with more men, of course, in ratio to the need and the proximity of the military camps)? These doctors, who would be "drafted" in rotation, for a set period of time, would be the Army, Navy, Coast Guard, or Air Force representatives, but in civilian capacity, and would be called on when needed. Their fees would be set by a board composed of physicians, military, and Health Department men and would, of course, be standard throughout the Nation.

Peace Prizes

The March 21 letter of ARP in regard to Gandhi and the Nobel Peace Prize only emphasizes the injustices, even sometimes absurdities, of these awards. Such prizes should certainly be bestowed objectively, without reference to political issue, race or nationality. Yet one is forced to the conclusion that frequently the individuals deciding these awards make their decision on the grounds of prejudice. Why did Leo Tolstoy, the greatest missionary of peace of his time, never receive an award, although world leaders headed by George Bernard Shaw sent a petition to the Swedish Academy? Why was Sigmund Freud, who created a revolution in our understanding of life and living, overlooked?

The number of Scandinavian people who receive Nobel Prizes is out of all proportion to the population. No one living in Soviet Russia has ever received a Nobel Prize, although Gorky deserved one in literature, as Kopitza does in science. Pavlov should have had a second prize for his work on conditioned reflexes, of immensely greater significance than the work for which he was awarded a prize, but by the time his later work became known, Russia had become Bolshevik. Is this a proper excuse for a failure to recognize outstanding work?

Music, painting and the arts in general have been thoroughly neglected. What about Stravinsky, Prokofieff or Hindemith in music, or Picasso in painting? Painters and musicians would seem to be as deserving as scientists, philosophers and novelists.

In our own country no Negro has ever received a Nobel Prize, although Booker T. Washington, George Washington Carver and Dr. E. W. Burghardt Du Bois are surely deserving.

Such an important matter as the awarding of international prizes should not be left to a few men in one particular country. Why not establish within the United Nations a fund which will administer prizes in the name of, and on behalf of, the United Nations? If each country would contribute $1000 a year per each million population, a sufficient fund would be established to award prizes to the leaders in the various fields, regardless of religion, political state, race, sex, and so on.

Peace Based On Law

In his recent address to the Congress, President Truman spoke of peace based on law, and in doing so he gave a nod of recognition to the growing demand for world law, but the President shows little understanding of what involved. The United Nations at present cannot pass laws to prevent war. Unless we give it that power, whence does Mr. Truman think the law will come?

It is true that Russia shows no present inclination to strengthen the United Nations, but neither do we! Yet it is the only salvation for either of us. If either of the two great powers would go after world government in an enlightened way, I believe it could rally most of the frightened world around it in an almost universal and an irresistable cry for law and order.

It is easy to blame someone else as we move toward war, but the fact is that unless we ourselves understand what peace is and how it can be obtained, then we cannot be said to be contributing toward it. Peace cannot be based on American power, any more than it can be based on Russian power. As we continue to seek peace based on American power, there will be resistance, and we will move closer to war. Yet this is not to say that lack of power is the answer either (as Henry Wallace would have us think). The question is: Who is to have the power? Only the United Nations can use it for peace.

The only means by which men have ever succeeded in establishing durable peace, at any level, is by a combination of law and force, residing together within the framework of government.

Tax Cut Danger

On March 27, The Washington Post reported the results of a recent Gallup Poll to the effect that most United States taxpayers think they are paying more taxes than they ought to. This attitude misses the point. Public expenditures are not only large, but greatly increasing. They have to be paid for. Taxes are one method of paying; inflation is another.

After 1918, Germany paid her interior war debt by inflation. This culminated in a stabilization which set a thousand billion old currency units equal to one new unit.

If a man earning $2000 a year would save $80 in reduced taxes, this tax reduction would be wiped out by a general price increase of only 4 per cent. An equally small rate of inflation would wipe out a $200 tax reduction for a man earning $5000.

It is apparent therefore, that the true interest of the American taxpayer lies not in reducing taxes, but in halting inflation efficiently and without delay.

Religion In The Schools

We do not want the old European idea of a state church in this country. But if we would fight communism successfully, we should see to it that the men and women of tomorrow be given a knowledge of that which is the core and foundation of life.

No individual religious creed should be taught in public schools, but the Ten Commandments from the code of morals for all Jewish and Christian religious sects, and the Old Testament, are used by all who believe in the God of Abraham.

There is no reason why some form of the Lord's Prayer acceptable to all, and a reading from the Old Testament, should not open the school day, giving children a consciousness at least of the spiritual side of themselves. Those who might not want to attend should be allowed to leave classrooms during this period if they so wished. We should not pander to the group composed of atheists, indifferentists and those others known to us as heathen religions with which we have no quarrel. They are all free to worship, or not, as they will.

As for the taxes involved, many taxpayers do not approve all subjects taught in public school; some advocate subjects not generally taught, but they pay their taxes just the same and take what is there.

We hear on all sides: leave religious training to parents and churches. Unfortunately too many parents have had the same treatment that children are getting today. They cannot teach that which they themselves do not know, and as time goes on under present treatment, that will of necessity be true of a greater and greater number. As for the church, it does not get the chance to teach children who never come near it.

Discriminatory Pension

Public Law 426, which amends the Civil Service Retirement Act, is another example of the blatant discrimination of the American male against female workers. It does not provide for the children of female workers, but it does provide for the children of deceased male workers. Can any Congressman give one single satisfactory answer to this point?

My child is just as much dependent upon me as the daughter of any man in the service. Because I am a woman, I receive less anyway than a man. I am, therefore, less able to provide by private insurance for my daughter's future. Yet our male Congress thinks that I am working for the sheer joy of displacing some male. If Congress is hitting at those of us who had to resort to divorce, then let it at least explain to those whose husbands died on the battlefield why their children are not considered equally deserving of benefits along with the children of the nonfighters.

No Joke Intended

Don't you think that you are going too far with April 1 foolery? I am looking at a Washington Post April 1 news item, "Catholic Veterans Plan Communism Breakfast."

My first reaction was that the veterans should have called their breakfast "Anti-Communism Breakfast" to keep from giving a false impression.

Imagine my surprise when I realized that it was a "communion" breakfast they were planning! Two end letters certainly can change a meaning drastically!

THE BIBLE AND EARLY MAN, by Humphrey J. T. Johnson. (McMullen, $2.25.)

NEW TESTAMENT ORIGIN, by George M. Lamsa. (Zig-Davis, $2.)

Here we have an interesting little study in Scriptural exegesis and another in Scriptural philology. Father Johnson, an English Oratorian, has attempted the rather delicate task of reconciling the earlier chapters of the Book of Genesis and the latest tenets of anthropological and archaeological sciences and with the evolutionary concept of the origin of man. Mr. Lamsa, a Nestorian Christian, strives to prove that the original language of the New Testament was not Greek but Aramaic. Both authors are agreed that a fairly extensive knowledge of the life and language of the peoples of the Middle East is necessary to an intelligent discussion of such problems; but the moment, alas, seems scarcely a propitious one for repairing so serious a defect in my education.

Even so, it is possible to perceive that Father Johnson has scored a point when he asserts that a strictly literal interpretation of Genesis would be heretical, since it would involve among other things the supposition that God had lungs. The reference here of course is to Genesis ii:7 where the Lord is represented as breathing life into the nostrils of Adam, whom He has just formed from the "dust of the ground." Here, obviously, the author of the passage has merely made use of an expression derived from a more primitive order of religious ideas, and Father Johnson cites the etymology of the Greek words psyche and pneuma and the analogous Latin anima and spiritus. Another use of the same metaphor appears in speaking of the Scriptural writings as "inspired," meaning of course that they were somehow prepared under divine guidance, although perhaps not the sternest fundamentalist would insist that this actually involved an operation of the breath. Father Johnson says that while the Biblical account of the creation must be taken as historical, the historical, as distinct from the spiritual, meaning of Scripture cannot be deduced without reference to the idiom and the psychology of the historian and especially to the Oriental habit of speaking by parables. He thinks it even possible that the author of the second chapter of Genesis might himself have had some rudimentary notion of organic evolution of man; however, "it was the fact of creation rather than the manner of it, which was of primary interest to him and he described its method in such words as were best fitted to carry home his lesson." But the language does not preclude the hypothesis, now supported by so much scientific evidence, of a stage in the creation of man when he was, so to speak, prehuman.

Similarly, Father Johnson appears to hold, that if the parable of Eve and the Serpent and of the expulsion of the disobedient progenitors from Paradise are read as allegorical history, it is possible to reconcile the doctrine of original sin to the theories of organic evolution. The doctrine, he observes, postulates a primordial state of justice, integrity and immortality, although this state need not necessarily imply a greater degree of intellectual endowment on the part of the parents of the race than is common among their descendants. All the same it must be recognized that degeneration is as much an evolutionary fact as progress. Thus it is by no means unreasonable to suppose, on the basis of known examples, that certain faculties enjoyed by the race in its earlier phases have since been lost, and this doubtless applies also to physical qualities, such for example as the power of the body to resist extremes of temperature and the apparent imperviousness to fire which has been observed among the priestly castes of certain peoples. The relation between the bodily well-being and the condition of mind, our exegete notes, is now being explored by psychiatry. He places some importance on the fact that among almost all primitive peoples death from disease is regarded as an unnatural phenomenon, and usually attributed to sorcery. Nor is death a universal phenomenon in nature; unicelular organisms which reproduce by fission have a kind of immortality, and "a multicellular organism endowed by God with the power of perpetual rejuvenation" is at least conceivable. Paleontological evidence supports an hypothesis of the original unity of the human race, and it is equally possible to suppose the personages designated as Adam and Eve to have been a group of rational primates or merely a single pair. As for the generations of Adam, as noted in Genesis, Father Johnson argues that some of the names may have designated whole tribes or nations rather than individuals.

Mr. Lamsa's main point is that it is impossible to clarify exegetical problems, as far as they relate to the New Testament, without reference to the Aramaic texts. His case is based on the fact, now universally acknowledged, that this was the language of the Founder of Christianity and His Apostles and on the probability that some of them were unacquainted with any other. It was also, Mr. Lamsa insists, the common language of the Jewish colonies throughout the Hellenistic and Roman world. As far at least as it concerns the first two Gospels his case is a strong one; as for the rest of the canon there seem to be some difficulties, such as the speech of Paul to the Athenians and the dedications by St. Luke to the "most excellent Theophilus," with which Mr. Lamsa has neglected to deal.

Today And Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

Strategy Reconsidered

THE TEMPO of events is so rapid both in the East and in the West that estimates of the situation have to be kept under continuous review. Diplomatic intercourse on the crucial issues of war and peace is not broken. But it is suspended. And therefore none of the governments concerned is able to act on knowledge; all are compelled to act on hypotheses as to what each may do on the basis of estimates of what each believes the other could do.

Lippmann

That is why it cannot be said too often or too emphatically that the men of highest responsibility in the Administration and in Congress should remain in continuous and close consultation.

THUS it is necessary to reexamine the accepted strategical conception held by our military services in the light of what has happened during the past month. The seizure of Czechoslovakia, the demands on Finland and the pressure on Scandinavia, the probing of allied determination in Berlin, and the indication of extra-legal action in Italy are one-half of the new situation. The other half is the enactment of ERP, the signature of the Brussels alliance and the beginning of American rearmament.

The Russian actions in the past month cannot, on a prudent estimate, be judged as meaning less than they intend to have a showdown before the European Recovery Program begins to give results, before western Europe is politically consolidated and united, and before the American military power is effectively remobilized. A showdown does not necessarily mean war. But it involves the willingness to take the risk of war on the assumption that the risk is less in the near future than it would be in the more distant future.

THE FORMATION of the Western Union, which was hastened by the Russian actions, is directly related to the new hypothesis that if there is to be war, it will come sooner than was thought possible before the coup in Prague, and that if war is to be prevented, reliance cannot be placed on long-term measures of economic reconstruction, political development, and military preparedness. The measures to prevent war, to postpone the showdown and to stand up well and give a good account of ourselves if it comes, have to be taken promptly.

The most urgent question which has to be decided now is how this country is to carry out the promise of the President's message that "the United States will, by appropriate means, extend" to the free nations of Europe the military support which they need in order "to protect themselves." It is a very difficult question because, as a matter of fact, the accepted conception of American military strategy and American diplomatic policy are, to put it conservatively, not coordinated. They are in fact, divergent, and this divergence will now have to be reconciled.

AMERICAN diplomatic policy under the Truman Doctrine is to give support to any nation which is threatened with Soviet domination. As it has developed since the Marshall Plan was proposed, the United States is sponsoring the united resistance of western Europe, and the Brussels alliance—the so-called Western Union—now expects and requires effective American military support.

The accepted American strategy, however, is not based on the idea of defending the threatened countries directly but on the idea of defending them indirectly by our ability to deliver a knockout blow at the heart of Russia. The Western Union which, as a matter of honor and vital interest, includes not only the five signatories but also Italy, Scandinavia, western Germany, Turkey, Greece, and Iran, compels us to reexamine our strategical conception. For the threatened nations, to whom we have said that they should unite and resist, will not be satisfied by an American commitment to punish the Russians if they cross the threshold. They will expect, and our diplomatic policy has given them the right to expect, that we shall use our whole power to lock the door so that the Russians cannot cross the threshold.

THIS IS a new problem for the American military planners and commanders, and it is of paramount importance and urgency. Our commitment to go to war if the free nations are attacked is no longer adequate to the political situation produced by the formation of the Western Union. The free nations which, under our urging, have turned away from appeasement and the search for some form of isolation or neutrality, will now have to be convinced that they can and will be enabled to defend themselves against invasion and occupation.

It will not do to leave them with the promise that eventually, after Russia has been defeated, they will be liberated.

ON THIS point we must not deceive ourselves. Our European allies must feel confident that they can resist the Russians successfully at their frontiers. Otherwise, their native Communists will offer them freedom from the horrors of war in return for nonresistance to Communist domination. Offered that alternative, there will be many, no doubt, who will prefer death, exile, or the underground, to submission. But in countries where nearly 30 per cent of the people have voted Communist, a good many of the others, faced with the prospect of an international war which would be for them a civil war as well, would certainly try to sit out the conflict by some combination of nonresistance, collaboration, isolation and neutrality.

These political realities have to be weighed against the basic assumption, hitherto taken for granted in our armed forces, that the military pattern of a conflict with Russia would in principle be like that of the Japanese war: to concentrate sea and air power for blockade and for assault at the vital center, bypassing the main ground forces of the enemy, and except for minor campaigns to harass or contain or delay, to bypass the main territories occupied by enemy ground forces.

THIS conception will have somehow to be supplemented by measures designed to hold as firmly and securely as possible against Russian ground forces the territory of the Western Union. It is for the military planners in Washington, London, and Paris to determine not only how Russia could be defeated by the United States but how western Europe can be made secure. For if western Europe were occupied while Russia was being defeated, our greatest political and moral objectives would be lost no matter how decisive the military victory.

So we must no longer imagine that the President's promise can be fulfilled by a stragetic Air Force and atomic bombs alone. The power to make a tactical defense of the Western Union at the Elbe if possible, at the Rhine at a minimum, must be provided in addition to the power to make a strategic assault on the Soviet homeland itself.

THIS additional effort is called for in view of the evident Russian intention to force the showdown before our strategic power can be exerted. The door to western Europe cannot remain wide open on the theory that the Russians will not cross the threshold for fear of the eventual consequences. It must be locked before they cross it in order that they may not precipitate the crisis which would come if they did cross it.

Matter Of Fact

Berlin Story

THE FACTS behind the Berlin business are simple enough. A Soviet effort to expel the Western allies from Berlin was foreseen as long ago as last November, when Gen. Lucius D. Clay told one of these correspondents he "would only leave the city on a stretcher." After the breakdown of the London conference on Germany in December, General Clay's unyielding policy was approved on the highest level, by Secretary of State Marshall. The balloon was rather expected to go up in Berlin at that time. Instead, there was an interval of Soviet hesitation and comparative amiability. And the balloon has gone up now.

The "now" is what matters. The drive for Berlin must be seen in conjunction with the rape of Czechoslovakia, the drive for Finland, the pressure on Scandinavia and the struggle for Italy. Coming at this climactic moment in the grand contest for Europe, the Soviet drive for Berlin is potentially the most dangerous development to date. That is a fact which is being soberly faced by the American policy-makers, and should be soberly faced by the American public.

The reason given for this pessimistic assessment of the situation are essentially simple. The Soviet may be bluffing, but they have committed themselves so deeply that it will be difficult for them to back down. When General Clay remarked that he would not abandon Berlin except if carried out, he was certainly not bluffing. The United States and Britain have no real alternative except to call the Soviet bluff. For if they are weak in the face of Soviet bullying, every other doubtful situation in Europe will turn sour overnight.

THE FINNS, deprived of succor, would hardly be able to maintain their superb courage. The Scandinavians, seeing the leaders of the West humiliated in Berlin and Finland going over like a ninepin, would also lose heart. And in Italy, the current hopeful political trend would be reversed by the dramatic demonstration of Soviet power. In short, the present choice is between calling the Soviet bluff, which means a possible risk of shooting now; or yielding to the Soviets, which means probably creating a situation that is certain to lead to war later. For if Italy alone is absorbed in the the Soviet sphere, the picture will be comparable to that in 1938, after Munich. Then there will ultimately be no choice except the appeasers' choice, which is between fighting and surrendering.

This danger of political chain reaction, which is inherent in the Berlin situation, should now be familiar. It was first seen in the Greek-Turkish crisis. It has recurred at intervals since. And it arose in a most violent form when Czechoslovakia fell.

The pattern of the present crisis is, in fact, oddly similar to the Czechoslovakia crisis pattern which led to the President's emergency message to Congress. Most official and a few nonofficial observers—among them these correspondents—had foreseen what would happen in Czechoslovakia, just as the Soviet drive for Berlin was also foreseen. Nevertheless, when expectations became reality, a ghastly electric shock went through Europe. Here was naked Soviet aggression.

From the Foreign Offices of almost every free European nation, the same inquiries poured into Washington. Was American policy just talk and dollars? Or was the United States genuinely ready to fight for the cause of freedom in the world, if need arose?

IF SECRETARY MARSHALL had had to reply to these inquiries that our policy was just talk and dollars, the weak and undefended western European nations would have had only one course open to them. They could not resist the Soviet Union alone and unaided. They would have been almost irresistibly impelled to seek what terms they could obtain at Moscow. The front of the free world would have been broken. The United States would have been isolated, alone and in dire peril. It was to give a convincingly reassuring answer to Scandinavia, to Benelux, to France and Italy and Britain, that President Truman went before the Congress to ask for the draft, and Secretary Marshall at last declared our purposes with grim frankness in California.

Now again, as a result of the Berlin crisis, the same kind of chain reaction threatens. The Soviet move comes at a well calculated time. The western European union has not been completed by American adherence. The western European nations have not yet received the minimum arms needed for reasonable defense. The American striking force is partly rippled by the after-effects of the criminal petty squabbling between the armed services. There will be a strong temptation to appease, especially in Europe, where the first brunt of Soviet attack must be borne. At this writing, however, the chances seem to be that the bolder of the two choices outlined above will be preferred.

If we stand firm at Berlin, we can at least be encouraged in doing so by the analysis of Russia's motives for her present aggressions which is generally accepted by the American policy-makers.

They believe that the violence of the Soviet response to the European Recovery Program flows from the knowledge of the Soviet leaders that their system is too weak to stand the competition of a healthy, reconstructed Europe. They believe, that is, that the Soviet motive is preventive, the intention being to create conditions in which the healthy reconstruction of Europe will be impossible. That this is now the danger is acknowledged.

ONE OF THE WISEST makers of American policy has sadly admitted, "If we cave in at Berlin, we risk defeating the whole purpose of the ERP." Berlin is by no means the only danger point—the critical character of the Finnish situation, for example, has escaped general notice. But what is now important is to pass these crucial weeks ahead without appeasement or surrender or a serious break in the front of freedom. If this can be achieved, a new and more constructive phase, less marked by hairbreadth escapes from total disaster, will at last begin to open.

Jews Holding Highway Key To Jerusalem

Jerusalem, April 4 (AP).—Jewish forces tonight still held Kastel, key point along the Jerusalem-Tel Aviv route, as strong Arab reinforcements gathered for an attempt to dislodge them.

The fortress-like hilltop village, five miles northwest of Jerusalem, was taken before dawn yesterday by Jews who blasted through the token Arab defense. The attack on Kastel was made to open a supply route for Jerusalem's 100,000 hungry, beleagured Jews.

Arabs and Jews fought throughout the day in Jeerusalem as the British unlimited machine guns and artillery in an attempt to quell the strife. Jews in the city's Montefiore section killed an Arab and his donkey suspected of having carried explosives into the ghetto quarter. British army spokesman said the donkey was carrying water.

British troops fired 6-pound shells into the Jewish quarter to silence guns leveled on the Arab-held Jaffa Gate for an hour after the donkey incident.

Deaths reported throughout Palestine today included one Jew and three Arabs, bringing the unofficial total since the United Nation's partition decision November 29 to 2307.

There was considerable fighting inside the old walled city of Jerusalem.

[The Jewish extremist organization Irgun Zvai Leumi announced tonight it would not agree to any truce in Palestine but would continue to fight for a Jewish state, the United Press reported.]

Car Loadings Due For 3.5 Pct. Boost

By The Associated Press

Railroad freight car loadings in the second 1948 quarter are expected to be about 3.5 per cent greater than in the correspondnig period a year ago.

The estimate, based on reports from the 13 shippers advisory boards across the country, was made public by the Association of American Railroads. The date indicates car loadings in this quarter of 8,642,908 cars, compared with actual loadings of 8,350,329 cars in ahe April-May-June perido in 1947.

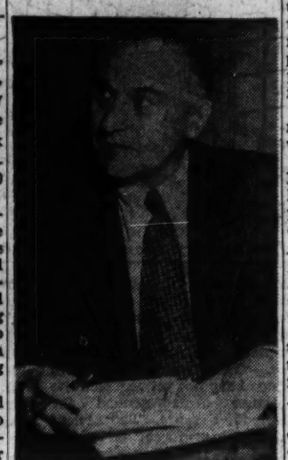
Slavik, New Exile, Takes Home Here



The Washington Post
JURAJ SLAVIK
Works on Lectures for Tour

By Sam Zagoria
Post Reporter

Joining the growing colony of prominent political exiles here, Dr. Juraj Slavik, former Czechoslovakian Ambassador to the United States, Friday moved into a modest home at Bethesda, Md.

The veteran diplomat, who resigned dramatically on March 3 to fight the Communist regime in his native land, took his wife and 18-year-old son, George, into a seven-room rented structure at 7017 Wilson la.

Greater Washington already houses several prominent exiles. Ferenc Nagy, former Premier of Hungary, runs a dairy farm at Herndon, Va., Yugoslavia's former Vice Premier Vladimir Matchek, Romanian Grigore Nicolescu-Buzesti and Poland's former Vice Premier Stanislaw Kikolajczyk live in the area. Aladar Szegedy-Maszak, former Hungarian Minister, is another resident.

While Slavik's wife and son busied themselves with the task of emptying shipping cases and barrels in their new home, a fraction of the size of their government-owned residence in Takoma Park, Dr. Slavik prepared for his new occupation, lecturing.

At a makeshift desk, the stocky, full-faced poet-philosopher-diplomat said the outlook for his way of earning a living was promising.

"Nearly every day I receive calls asking me to speak. This morning, five people called asking me to talk, but I had to refer them to my lecture agent in New York," he said.

His speeches, extemporaneous from an outline, will be mainly on the topic, "How the Communists Took Over in Czechoslovakia." In the discussion period after each talk, Dr. Slavik will answer questions.

Besides lecturing, the 58-year-old exile has been contacting international organizations endeavoring to obtain assistance for more than 150 Czech leaders and 2000 others who have escaped from the country, some on skis over the mountain frontiers.

Many of these persons probably would come to the United States to testify during the proposed United Nations inquiry on the Communist coup, Dr. Slavik said. At that time a formal government in exile may be formed, he indicated.

About the future of his country: "Well, it is now a satellite country of Russia—a police state and completely totalitarian. President Benes is really a prisoner and under pressure," the former Ambassador noted sadly.

Fabians Urge Speed Up of Socialization

London, April 4 (AP).—The Fabian Society, "brain trust" of the British Labor movement, has presented the Labor Party with an eletcion campaign blueprint calling for intensification of the party's industrial nationalization program.

The proposed platform for the 1950 elections, as published by the Fabians, advocates nationalization of insurance companies, commercial banks, shipbuilding, shipping docks, textile mills, aircraft production and automobile factories by 1955.

Socialization of other industries, ranging from margarine to bricks, would come later.

The author of the draft is Ian Mikardo, honorary treasurer of the Fabian Society and a leader of parliamentary "rebels" fighting the official government policy. Mikardo played an important role in creating the electoral program for the 1945 elections, which swept the Labor Party into power.

Mikardo said that, by 1955, Britain would "be well advanced in the transition to socialism," after having taken only the very first steps toward nationalization during the first years of the Labor government.

First Jet Trainer Passes Flight Tests

The Air Force announced yesterday that its "first actual jet training plane" has passed preliminary flight tests at the Lockheed Aircraft plant in Burbank, Calif.

The plane is a two-seater version of the P-80 "Shooting Star" fighter. The Air Force said the plane should provide better training facilities by eliminating one step of normal fighter pilot instruction—transition flying in high-performance conventional planes.

Chiang May Fight In Communist War

'Highlights' It

Reynolds Flees China At Pen-Point

Tokyo (Monday), April 5 (AP).—Milton Reynolds arrived here late last night on an unauthorized flight from Shanghai, saying he made a melodramatic getaway by flinging ball-point pens at gun-brandishing Chinese guards.

The Chicago millionaire declared he fled to escape a financial shakedown and that his ill-fated quest for the world's highest mountain already had cost him $250,000.

Reynolds reported he got into his impounded exploration plane with his crew of three by promising the Chinese some of the pens which made him a fortune.

"They eagerly followed me; I got in and threw out the pens—50 of them—and slammed the door," he related.

Then Pilot Bill Odom gunned the engines. As tommy-gun-toting guards came running, he turned on one wheel and roared off the runway, downwind. Guards scattered like frightened chickens.

"I saw one guard with a tommy gun who was so surprised his jaw was falling off," remarked Odom. "I guess he forgot to shoot."

"I lay on the floor, holding the door shut, while Odom got us into the air," said the pen maker.

Reynolds said they faked a course for Okinawa, then headed for Tokyo.

"We heard the Shanghai airport alerting a fighter squadron," he declared, "so for the first 350 miles we stayed about 20 feet above the ground and water."

Thus ended the hunt for a mountain in western China suspected of being higher than Everest.

Reynolds provided the four-engined C-87 plane, "Explorer," and the crew for the expedition to the Amne Machin range. The Boston Museum of Science was co-sponsor.

The plane was damaged at Peiping last Wednesday in the takeoff. Reynolds abruptly announced the whole deal was off.

On Friday he flew unscheduled from Shanghai, but returned 13 hours later.

Deciding to Quit As President, He Stresses Necessity Of Beating Reds

Nanking, April 4 (AP).—Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek has decided to quit the Presidency of China, a spokesman said tonight, but there were indications he would remain the Nationalist strong man by becoming Premier.

A spokesman for the Kuomintang, China's governing party, said the generalissimo was determined to lead a "holy war" against the Chinese Communists.

There was even an intimation he might take the field in person.

Chiang told the Kuomintang central committee the civil war was China's most critical problem, and "the Communists must be beaten if China is to live."

The spokesman said committeemen argued with Chiang for three hours, but he only reiterated his determination to leave the Presidency.

The committee scheduled another session for Tuesday to decide what to do next. The new National Assembly, now in weekend recess, is to elect China's first constitutional President and Vice President.

Dr. Hu, former Ambassador to Washington, and now president of Peking University, said he knew nothing of any such move.

Chiang was quoted, however, as saying, "During these times it is better to elect a scholar as President, rather than a soldier."

Manchurian Port Under Air Attack

Peiping, April 4 (AP).—Pro-government Chinese press reports said today the Manchurian port of Yingkow was under air attack preparatory to a government amphibious assault.

They said the Communists were driven from the cities of Liaoyang, Anshan and Haicheng, on the railway northward from Yingkow to Mukden.

Sporadic skirmishes were reported from many sections elsewhere in Manchuria.

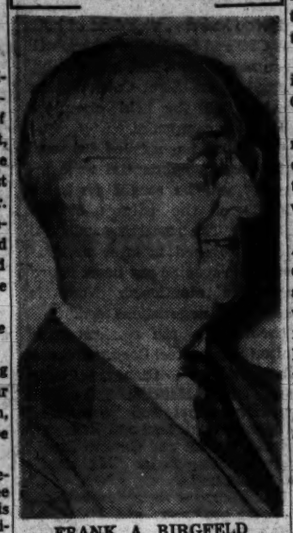
Wang Expresses Appreciation for Aid

Nanking, April 4 (AP).—Foreign Minister Wang Shih-chieh declared today China was accepting the new United States aid program "with heavy heart, as final responsibility for its success or failure must necessarily rest with us."

In a formal statement, Wang said enactment in Washington Saturday of the 463-million-dollar aid program was deeply appreciated and would have "an uplifting effect" on the Chinese people.

Building Fund

Salvation Army to Ask For $350,000



FRANK A. BIRGFELD

A Salvation Army campaign to raise $350,000 to rebuild "outworn and overtaxed housing facilities" will get under way May 1, Frank A. Birgfeld, general campaign chairman, announced yesterday.

The Salvation Army, Birgfeld said, has the full approval of the Community Chest in its drive. Although an agency of the Chest, the Salvation Army receives a cash allotment for operational expense only. It must provide its own building funds.

Approved by Chest

Chest approval was given in a letter from the president, Lee D. Butler, to W. W. Bouterse, divisional commander of the Salvation Army. Butler, citing the "urgency of the building need" and the "sound and businesslike" campaign plan and objectives, told Bouterse:

"In the interest of larger and more effective service by your agency to the people of Washington, we commend the cause to the favorable attention of the metropolitan Washington community."

Bouterse termed the Chest's action "realistic and forthright." He said its approval "recognizes that the Salvation Army cannot continue to be a top community asset if it has to cope inadequately with the continuing and growing emergency burdens placed upon it."

No Drive in 25 Years

Birgfeld, who also is Community Chest treasurer, pointed out that it has been 25 years since the Salvation Army appealed directly to the public for funds. During that time, operations have been carried on while housing facilities deteriorated.

Birgfeld, for 24 years chief clerk of the United States Treasury Department, is a member of the Washington Board of Trade, a member of the board of trustees of the Washington Society for the Blind, and treasurer of the Health Security Administration.

Russian War Scare Deplored

By The Associated Press

Representative Buffett (R., Nebr.) said yesterday he has seen no factual evidence in recent months to indicate imminent danger of an unprovoked Russian attack on the United States.

On the contrary, he said in a statement, he has information leading to the conclusion that the "war scare that is blanketing this country is a crime against America and all humanity."

The information is secret, he said, but it was obtained at a meeting attended by the "highest level authoritative personnel."

"There are growing signs," he stated, "that the Russians are becoming jittery in fear of attack on them by America—a factor that could cause them to resort to sudden offensive military action in a desperate attempt to offset the military odds against them."

Buffet summarized the "physical facts about our national defenses" in a survey which he said was taken from public sources.

Including naval aircraft, he declared, the United States has 10,100 active combat planes, with 27,000 in reserve; the Army has eight million tons of ammunition on hand and the Navy a $3,500,000,000 supply; United States flag ships in the merchant marine number 3697.

Chinese, U. S., Hindu Voices Urge One Rule

Chicago, April 4 (AP).—A Hindu statesman, a Chinese ambassador, and an American educator agreed today that world government is the one road to peace.

Radio linked their microphones in India, Washington, D. C., and Chicago.

Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru, prmie minister of India, said world government "must and will come, for there is no other remedy for the world's sickness."

V. K. Wellington Koo, Chinese Ambassador to the United States, declared "if humanity is to be spared the scourge of recurrent wars, the world must be so organized as to constitute one community living under one government in peace, freedom and prosperity."

Robert Maynard Hutchins, Chancellor of the University of Chicago, called on the United States to invent a political structure to unite the world in freedom, with the ultimate aim of "a world state which rests on the durable basis of the consent of the governed."

They spoke on the University of Chicago Round Table (NBC). Nehru spoke from New Delhi, Koo from Washington, D. C., and Hutchins from Chicago.

Truman Held Unexcited by Political Blows

By the United Press

White House Radio Reporter John Adams said last night that President Truman is in good health and high spirits, and "surprisingly unexcited" about his political fortunes.

He presented a "profile" of Mr. Truman in a CBS broadcast. The President, he said, "is cheerful and good natured" despite the political blows which recently have fallen from many directions.

"It may be that he feels a sense of relief, and from now on out is determined not to worry about politics," Adams said.

On a recent trip to Key West, he added, the President "spoke bitterly about people trying to get him to say one thing and another to satisfy their own political ends."

The CBS correspondent said the President is "standing up well" under the physical strain of his office.

"His hair has grayed considerably (and) his face is lined," Adams said. But Mr. Truman's "pulse and heart are O. K." and "he is in good shape for a man who will be 64 next month."

Other highlights of Adams' report on the President:

"The President is particular about his appearance, always meticulous, well groomed—intimates say he has close to 50 suits, for every occasion from full dress to tropical sports attire.

"He shaves himself with an old safety razor, and he can get two weeks' use out of one blade by carefully stroking it on the palm of his hand before each shave."

Mr. Truman still prefers double-breasted suits, but "seems to have outgrown . . . his love of bright bow ties."

Burmese Told Reds Menace Their Liberty

Rangoon, Burma, April 4 (U.P.).—Premier Thakin Nu warned in a radio address last night, the Burmese would pay with their personal liberty for the "golden rice, golden curries and golden cloths" promised by the Communists in their bid for power.

Thakin Nu said the Communist line is Burma is: "The government has no real power, but has been set up as an agent of capitalism under a fraudulent treaty, circumscribing the Burmese in economic matters as well as defense matters."

The Premier defended the treaty with Britain under which Burma obtained her independence.

"It is not 100 per cent perfect," he said, "either from the British or Burmese standpoint, but Burma has not yielded on questions of compensations to Britain or the British defense mission."

Communist leaders here fled to the interior, police reported, after a roundup. The government action followed Communist rejection of an offer to enter the cabinet, and a threat to take over illegally.

Dr. Ellis on Board

Catholic Men Pick Mitchell As Director

Dr. G. R. Ellis J. S. Mitchell

James S. Mitchell, wartime head of the National Catholic Community Service, United Service Organizations, yesterday was named executive director of the National Council of Catholic Men.

Mitchell, who lives at 3715 Veazey st. nw., was appointed at the conclusion of the annual two-day meeting of the NCCM's board of directors at its headquarters, 1312 Massachusetts ave. nw.

Another Washingtonian, Dr. George R. Ellis, 4115 13th st. ne., was elected a member of the board. Dr. Ellis, a dentist, represented the District at the two-day meeting.

Chosen president of the organization was Emmet A. Blaes of Wichita, Kans., who succeeds John W. Babcock, Detroit. Babcock was elected to the executive committee yesterday.

Other officers are Stewart Lynch, vice president, Wilmington, Del.; James H. McCaffrey, treasurer, Dallas, and Thomas E. Sly, secretary, Belleville, Ill.

The board of directors adopted a resolution pledging the NCCM's facilities and resources to aid displaced persons, in cooperation with the National Catholic Resettlement Council.

8 Airports To Get Radar Landing Units

By The Associated Press

The Civil Aeronautics Administration has ordered eight sets of radar equipment for bad weather aircraft landing and traffic control.

They will be installed at a total cost of $2,386,112 here and at Los Angeles, Cleveland, Atlanta, St. Louis, Boston, New York and Chicago beginning early next year.

Each set consists of two units. One is a precision beam used by the controller to 'talk' pilots along an electronic glide path to the runway. The other is a search radar, which enables the controller to "see" aircraft within 35 miles of the airport and thus direct traffic in weather which prevents visual contact.

The equipment is commonly known as "GCA" (ground control approach). It represents the latest improvement of types developed for military use early in the war. Each requires only two operators. The CAA said the sets will be on a 24-hour basis.

The new search unit has a device which eliminates all but moving objects from the viewing scope. It also shows the altitude, distance and direction of aircraft.

Inspection Scheduled For Arlington Scouts

Nearly 1400 Arlington Boy Scouts and Cub Scouts are expected to be on hand for their annual uniform inspection at the gymnasium in Fort Myer Friday at 7 p. m., District Activities Chairman J. F. Kendrick said yesterday.

Scout troops and Cub packs with the greatest percentage of neatly uniformed members will be awarded "certificates of good appearance."

Ingrid Bergman Talks of Censors

By Richard L. Coe

INGRID BERGMAN, who looks like the college girl who lives next door, remarked the other evening on the sad effects of censorship on our American movies.

"The insistence of civic and religious groups on controlling what goes into films," observed the popular star, "has resulted in a serious obstacle in creating stories for the screen. Hollywood is afraid to do anything in a creative vein that suggests reality.

"The Production Code (the Johnston Office) demands that punishment for any deviation from set behavior by a character be made perfectly clear in a screen play. The Legion of Decency imposes its will on every picture even before it can be formed in the writer's mind. Lesser groups, too, have weakening effects on all screen stories. The result is that pictures have achieved a deadly sameness."

The fact that these self-regulatory measures are a means for the screen to avoid governmental regulation is not unknown to Miss Bergman, but she makes a telling point:

"Why," she asks, "should adults' enjoyment suffer simply because children might wander into a theater where a love story is being played which does not evolve according to set prescriptions of morality? In Sweden and England, for instance, the producers view their audiences as being of two distinct age groups. Children under a certain age are not permitted to see films made for adults.

Parents' Responsibility

"It seems to me that a parent's responsibility enters in here somewhere. For instance, I have allowed my daughter to see only one of my pictures, "Going My Way," though she has seen parts of "Joan," which won't by the way, be released until fall. Certainly parents must accept this responsibility along with all the others that go with bringing up a child. The price our Hollywood pictures pay for this situation is an incredible number of foolish, insane pictures."

How right Miss Bergman is; as you can see, the most popular feminine star of the day has a mind of her own. That she can hold her tongue, too, is evident in her care not to refer to one of the Legion of Decency's latest rulings—in Metro's forthcoming "The Three Musketeers," Cardinal Richelieu, a sinister fellow in the Dumas classic, will become a Protestant. The Roman Catholic group wouldn't give its approval of the role.

Miss Bergman also has some refreshing ideas on Academy Awards. Non-Hollywoodians wouldn't realize it, but as the voting date approaches for the annual Oscars, the trade press is inundated with full page ads, studios plugging for stable-members who have been nominated for the awards.

"They all point to 'the greatest, most wonderful picture ever made,' 'the most thrilling performance ever given by an actor' and all that nonsense, hoping to suggest to voters they happen to employ the honors which will come the studio's way if so and so wins.

"That's why we were all so pleased, I think," observed Miss B., "that Loretta Young got her Oscar. Nobody had pushed her performance especially. She was a real 'black horse' and we were delighted when she won."

Off for New York Plays

Again, Miss B. is too much the international diplomat to cast slurs, but she emphatically agreed with this department's contention that, though the awards are presumably made on an international basis, non-American pictures haven't a chance with the top Hollywood Oscars.

"We see very few foreign pictures in Hollywood, really. There are two or three houses which do play foreign films, but these are so small and the runs so long, that New York's still the best place to see films of other nations."

Which is where Miss Bergman is bound, with Saturday's citation from the Women's National Press Club tucked in her valise. "I'm going to see plays every night and every matinee and I'm going to the movies like mad. No, I'm not going to be in New York for the opening of 'Arch of Triumph.' That's one of the nice things about the screen. You don't have to be at your own opening nights. Funny thing, too, about 'Arch.' We began making that two years ago next month—before I did 'Joan of Lorraine' here in Washington."

Good talker, Ingrid Bergman. Her fresh, clean beauty is lovelier than even the screen suggests. If we could sculp, we'd do her hands, fine, firm, handsome hands. And there's none of that bloody stuff on her fingernails, either.

COULD, BE you saw Miss Bergman yourself and didn't know it. After a visit to the National Gallery Saturday afternoon, she slipped out of the Statler and walked over to the Hippodrome. The screen's top-ranking box-office star was alone, bought her own ticket and said she enjoyed "Volpone" immensely. All of which, by the way, will be news to the Hippodrome.

BIG VISITORS WEEK. Cecil B. DeMille arrives this morning for a couple of days at the Mayflower. . . . Frank Capra gets in this afternoon with his wife for Wednesday night's invitational preview of "State of the Union" at the Capitol . . . Gene Autry will be along Saturday for two days with his Western Variety Show at Uline's. . . . Champion, that means, will be here, too.

RETURNS TO SCREEN: Susan Peters, absent from the screen since a hunting accident which paralyzed her three years ago, returns to acting in "Sign of the Ram," opening Thursday at the Metropolitan. The young player is remembered chiefly for her roles in "Random Harvest," "Song of Russia" and "Keep Your Powder Dry" tioned by a large number of people was the restriction children impose on the recreational activities and careers of parents. This was mentioned by 5 per cent of the grade-school educated, 16 per cent of the high-school educated, and 27 per cent of those with college education.

Parenthood Beats Drawbacks

Less frequent worries include moral and disciplinary control of children, problems of finding adequate housing, unfitness of some people to be parents, and general desire to escape the responsibility and worry of having children.

But 19 per cent stoutly maintain that there are no drawbacks in having children. Most enthusiastic were those whose children were already grown and out of the nest.

Washingtonians were also asked: What do you think are the chief drawbacks in having children?

DRAWBACKS IN HAVING CHILDREN

Bureau Hopes For '48 Drop in Tornado Toll

By the United Press

The spring tornado season is well under way but Weather Bureau officials hope this year's crop of "twisters" won't be as deadly as last year's.

Last year 161 tornadoes in 28 States caused 306 deaths and property damage of 24 million dollars. That was well ovre the yearly average of 233 deaths and double the damage average.

This year's season began with the March 19 Illinois twister which caused 26 deaths and damage near one million dollars. There have been others since, but the annual deluge of deadly, whirling funnel-shaped clouds has scarcely got under way.

The season really begins in the spring, although there have been twisters in every month of the year. But the big burst, which apparentl is as inevitable as the seasons themselves, really gets going in March.

It increases until summer, the peak usually occurring in Kansas and Iowa in June. It eases off some during the summer, then goes into a secondary fall season.

Chief cause of tornadoes is heated, moist air near the ground, with rapidly cooling layers of air on top. The Midwest is the chief area for tornadoes, mainly because it is there that the warm, moist air from the Gulf comes in conflict with the waves of cold air from the Rocky Mountains.

Steel Wage Negotiations Start Today

Pittsburgh, April 4 (AP).—The steel industry on Monday will be handed the CIO-United Steelworkers' 1948 pay increase demands.

Philip Murray, president of both the CIO and the Steelworkers, will open negotiations here with the big United States Steel Corp. Other sessions will be held elsewhere with other companies.

The union has notified 600 steel firms that "a substantial wage increase" will be sought for some 600,600 of the union's 850,000 members. The remaining unionists will be covered in later negotiations. No specific pay boost figure has been mentioned. None is likely, until negotiations end.

Involved in the sessions with United States Steel Corp. are these subsidiaries — Carnegie-Illinois Steel Corp., National Tube Co., American Steel and Wire Co., Tennessee Coal, Iron and Railroad, Columbia Steel and Geneva Steel. They are the major "big steel" producing units.

Last Thursday the union notified 86 basic producers and hundreds of fabricating firms which use steel that it was taking advantage of the current two-year contract to reopen wage clauses.

of German curators as a mutual good-will gesture.

Nearly 600 persons attended a lecture by Grose Evans of the Gallery staff on "Flemish Painting." The talk, illustrated with colored slides of pictures in the German collection, will be repeated at 3:30 p. m. today through Saturday.

Evans traced the development and growing seculiarization of Flemish painting from the van Eycks to Rubens, who increased his production by having assistants do much of the work.

Bills Under Way to Tighten Laws Curbing Spies and Aliens

By The Associated Press

Bills to tighten laws covering spying and alien registration were reported on Capitol Hill yesterday to be under preparation at the Justice Department.

A bill sent to Congress last week by Assistant Attorney General Peyton Ford may be only the first of a series, one Congressman said. It would require aliens to register with the Justice Department annually.

An Un-American Activities Subcommittee headed by Representative Nixon (R., Calif.), hopes to produce this week a bill to curb Communists. Registration is one approach that has been suggested. Representative Vail (R., Ill.) likes the idea of outlawing the Communist Party. But Representative Hebert (D., La.) said he thinks the courts might rule this unconstitutional.

The subcommittee meets today and Nixon wants to have a bill ready if possible when the full committee assembles Tuesday. Justice Department officials have been huddling with committee members on the question of writing new laws against communism.

The department was reported to be working on a bill of its own to revise laws requiring registration of aliens representing foreign interests.

Since late last summer Attorney General Clark has been directing a general tightening of immigration law enforcement and rules covering aliens. It is timed to exclude or deport noncitizens whom the Justice Deparment regards as undesirable.

Most spectacular has been the deportation roundup of 30 aliens described by the department as leading figures in the Communist movement in this country.

In addition, the department has been attempting a more thorough screening of aliens at ports of entry.

The 'Volpone' review as it appeared in the N. Y. Times.

Ben Jonson's Elizabethan comedy about the Levantine merchant of Venice who feigned death in order to enjoy the spectacle of his "friends" squabbling and conniving to gain his fortune has been translated by the French into a rollicksingly naughty motion picture, "Volpone," which opened yesterday at the Ambassador Theatre with the late Harry Baur playing the title role and with Louis Jouvet giving a capital performance as his scheming steward Mosca, is witty and sardonic entertainment and not a little vulgar in a robust comical sense.

The titanic jest of Volpone, elaborated on and executed with devilish cunning by the wily Mosca, is a masterful stroke of irony, with Mosca enjoying the last laugh as he becomes heir to his patron's gold and turns the old merchant out in the street. Chief among Mosca's fabulous feats, which cruelly expose the duplicity and greed of Volpone's friends, are the way he talks the silk merchant Corvino into consenting to send his pretty wife Columba to comfort the supposedly dying man, and the trickery he employs to get the aged usurer Corbaccio to disinherit his son and name Volpone as the beneficiary of his will.

Harry Baur plays Volpone with broad theatrical gestures and some of the most delightful and suggestive facial grimaces you are likely to see in a long time on the screen. Charles Dullin, as the cackling Corbaccio, is excruciatingly funny on his visit to Volpone's deathbed. But towering above all is the brilliantly modulated acting of M. Jouvet.

Va. FHA Girls Elect Officers

Winchester, Va., April 4 (Spl.).—More than 300 Future Homemakers of America from four counties meeting here elected Ruth Grimm of Stephens City president, Hilda Steele of Middletown vice president, and Myrtle Finchem of Sperryville secretary-treasurer.

Other district officers named were Lucy Mayberry of Front Royal, song leader; Joan Canter of Berryville, reporter; Jean Mercer of Boyce, historian, and Anna Mae Martin of Washington, Va., reporter.

Virginia Silman was nominated as a candidate for the office of secretary of the State organization, and Diane O'Neal was named to represent the district at a meeting that will be held at Madison College June 13.

It's NO. 1 on the "It" Parade

It's much the same way with cars as with people.

Some "have it" — some don't.

Some you go for, all out — without quite being able to lay a finger on why. And those — well, they usually become your firmest friends.

What is it that makes so many good folks say this trim honey's "got it"?

Good looks? One has to admit it's nice to ride in a car that is unmistakably itself and not just a slightly modified version of something else.

Size, weight? Well, the polls tell us it's a pretty important factor since, if you like an automobile that does things, there just is no substitute for brawn and solid substance.

Power? Naturally. You can't sit long behind this big Fireball straight-eight without falling for it plenty hard.

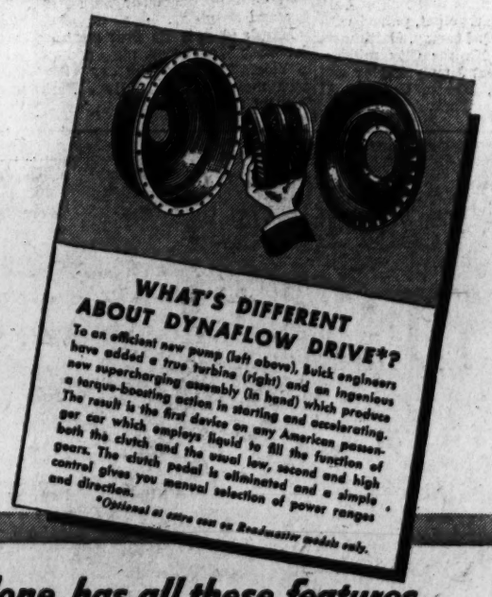
Handling? Ride? Room? They all have their avid fans among Buick owners. Especially now with a completely new kind of engine mounting ironing out vibration build-up as never before, and in this Convertible model, with automatic top, door-window and front-seat adjustment.

Is it the wonderful new Dynaflow Drive* that's causing so much talk?

In ROADMASTER models that is certainly a big factor. You'll never know how silky smooth a drive can be — what fluent new ease there is to all your going — till you drive the car where liquid replaces both the clutch and first, second and high gears.

But as nearly as we can find out — and we talk to a lot of people — it isn't any one thing that puts Buick at the top of the "it" parade. It's the over-all richness of this honey in all the things you've dreamed of finding wrapped in an automobile.

Ask any friend who drives a Buick — then see your dealer and get a firm order in, with or without a car to trade.



WHAT'S DIFFERENT ABOUT DYNAFLOW DRIVE*?

To an efficient new pump (left above), Buick engineers have added a true turbine (right) and an ingenious new supercharging assembly (in hand) which produces a torque-boosting action in starting and accelerating. The result is the first device on any American passenger car which employs liquid to fill the function of both the clutch and the usual low, second and high gears. The clutch pedal is eliminated and a simple control gives you manual selection of power ranges and direction.

*Optional at extra cost on Roadmaster models only.

When better automobiles are built BUICK will build them

BUICK alone has all these features

★ VIBRA-SHIELDED RIDE ★ HI-POISED FIREBALL POWER ★ SAFETY-RIDE RIMS
★ QUADRUFLEX COIL SPRINGING ★ FLEX-FIT OIL RINGS ★ ROAD-RITE BALANCE
★ RIGID TORQUE-TUBE ★ SOUND-SORBER TOP LINING (Super and Roadmaster)
★ DUOMATIC SPARK ADVANCE ★ TEN SMART MODELS ★ BODY BY FISHER

Nats Win Over A's, 7-5, With Bats on Shoulders

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

ORLANDO, FLA., APRIL 4.—Bill Veeck, who introduced fireworks displays to the majors, now has another innovation to his credit—a vice president on first base. He thinks its a great idea, especially if carried far enough. When Hank Greenburg bought enough stock in the Indians to entitle him to the vice presidency, a gleam came into Veeck's eye.

POVICH

"We can win the pennant if we live up to our motto," he said. When somebody asked "What's that? Veeck was surprised that he hadn't heard. "A vice president on every base and a vice president to knock 'em in. With that strategy, we can't miss," said Veeck.

Meanwhile the tow-headed, sport-shirted president of the Cleveland club is seeking a bit of insurance in the pitching line. He's on a shopping tour of the camps by airplane, and yesterday he found Connie Mack willing to sell Russ Christopher, and he bought him for something in excess of the $10,000 waiver price. He'd like to pick up a couple more pitchers.

Veeck isn't dismayed by all the talk of the Yankees and Red Sox being co-favorites to win the pennant. He thinks this could be the year for his Cleveland club to move in, and make a million dollars of which a considerable amount will accrue to Veeck.

HE BOUGHT CHRISTOPHER in full knowledge of that fellow's announcement that this would be his last year in baseball. Christopher's doctors have urged him to quit because of a heart condition, but the frail pitcher wants to feather his nest a bit more thickly before he does retire. Veeck took him with the understanding that it was to be a one-year investment.

If he can patch his pitching staff a bit to give Bob Feller and Bob Lemon some support, Veeck thinks he can sneak in ahead of both the Yanks and Red Sox. He thinks Christopher will be a powerful help, and was startled to learn that Mack would part with him. Ordinarily, you don't sell a relief pitcher who wins 10 and loses seven for a fifth-place club. That's a fair recommendation of man's talents.

"I don't know whether Mr. Mack knew Christopher's complete records, or not, but I did," said Veeck, who revealed himself as something of a figure hound. "That 10-7 record is only part of the Christopher story last season. I looked up the whole table of pitching. He figures in 27 winning ball games for the A's. That is, they won 27 games in which he pitched. That's why I liked him."

VEECK THINKS HE HAS the best infield in the American League, and is emphatic about his opinion of his second base-shortstop combination of Joe Gordon and Lou Boudreau. "Gordon is the best second baseman in the business and Boudreau is the best shortstop, and any pitcher ought to be happy to be working in front of that pair," he says.

Ed Robinson, the big-legged first baseman who never has quite made good, is ready this year, says Veeck. He thinks Ken Keltner is in better shape than in any of the previous five years. He says. Jim Hegan, his catcher, is far in front of the other catchers in the American League, and he thinks his outfield of Dale Mitchell, Al Clark and Walt Judnick will hit with any outfield, including Boston's.

The Indians are tinkering with the idea of transplanting their colored infielder, Larry Doby, to the outfield. He's been the hottest hitter in the Grapefruit League, and he's not without outfield experience. "In those colored leagues they played all positions," Veeck points out. Obviously he's high on the Indians, and perhaps with reason. They've won 11 of 13 exhibitions games.

CLEVELAND COULD BE the best money-making club in the league, Veeck says. They have that wonderful park capacity of 70,000 to cash in on their big days, particularly when Feller pitches. Feller's salary and bonuses incidentally, net him more than Veeck draws as president of the club.

"With Hank Greenberg now a vice president, and Feller getting to be a millionaire, we now have a question of protocol on the club," grinned Veeck. "At our official functions, we'll now have to seat Greenberg on Feller's left and I guess I belong on his right. We're both working for Feller, you know. He calls us both in when he wants to discuss matters."

Veeck has done very well in his two-year operation of the Indians. The profits have bailed out his original investment in the club. He's crowd crazy he says because crowds mean more money. He spends a lot, too.

He says he doesn't estimate his receipts against his estimated expenses and then put himself on a budget. "That's six per cent baseball," he says. "You can make a lot more than that in this business if you spend smartly."

Graziano, Horne May Draw 8200 Here Tonight

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

Rocky Graziano and Sonny Horne come out fighting tonight at Uline Arena and it's 3-1 that Horne comes out second best.

The magic name of Graziano, the exiled middleweight champion who hasn't fought since he won the crown last July, has created the biggest ripple in the local fight scene in years and a sellout crowd of 8200 is highly probable.

To watch Graziano's 10-round nontitle tuneup for a June 9 championship defense against Tony Zale, the crowd is expected to contribute to a gross gate of more than $60,000, a record indoor house for Washington.

The Rock is fighting "for free," practically. His contract calls for him to receive only $1, which Promoter Goldie Ahearn of the Liberty A. C. has already advanced.

His end of the purse, a ridiculously low 25 per cent in contrast to 22½ per cent for Horne, will be contributed to the National Infantile Paralysis Foundation. In addition, 10 per cent of the net proceeds also will go to charity.

Second Meeting

This is the second meeting between Horne and Graziano and if it's near as thrilling as the 1946 Madison Square Garden party it will be a lulu.

Graziano was rolling along with five straight knockouts then, but Horne stopped the run at that point. The Rock was 8-5 to make Sonny No. 6, but failed badly. He didn't even score a knockdown and had to stage a whirlwind finish to grab the disputed decision.

Since then the untamed Rock, idol of pool rooms and drug store cowboys, has acquired the middleweight championship and a bushel of trouble.

He can't fight in Illinois, where he won the title from Zale, because he has a dishonorable discharge from the Army. His native New York has suspended him indifinitely because of failure to report an alleged bribe attempt.

But the Rock goes back into business tonight—the fighting business, the only thing he knows. He can't afford to lose. He has a $120,000 guarantee for his third Zale fight.

Horne's Record Improving

Although at 24 he's two years Rocky's junior, Horne has been around for years. He's had more than 90 fights and has never been knocked out. Two technical knockouts because of cut eyes mar an otherwise creditable record.

Horne's only two appearances in Washington have resulted in smashing victories for him. No puncher, but a clever boxer, he fashioned a unanimous verdict over Aaron Perry here two years ago and only last February did a thorough job on Smuggy Hursey another local pride.

Horne has looked awfully sharp in the gym. He boxed for a week here with Perry and made Aaron look foolish. Sonny entertains no hopes of a knockout victory, but he sincerely thinks he can jab his way to a decision.

Win, lose or draw it's bound to be a profitable evening for the Valley Stream, N. Y., former sailor. His end of the purse will amount to around $10,000, the second best day he's had in 10 years of campaigning.

He banked $20,000 for his first tiff with the Rock.

There'll be no broadcast and no television of the show, which opens at 8:45.

Four six-rounders support the main event. Washington middleweight Joe Cannon faces Sid Miller, of New York, in the top prelim. Other sixes find Bobby Bell, New York lightweight, paired with Young Lee Q. Murray, Baltimore, Roy Miller, Kansas City middleweight, against Jimmy Taylor and Hal Meredit, Macon, Ga., vs. Al LaBarba, New York.

Griffith, Mack Tie in Antique Sweepstakes

ORLANDO, FLA., April 4.—In a race for 78-year-olds and up, Octogenarian Connie Mack and Septuagenarian Clark Griffith sped to a dead heat today for the Commissioner Chandler Trophy.

The contest was a special pregame attraction before 2800 fans at the Nats-Athletic contest at Tinker Field. The distance was 90 feet, from third base to home plate. The starter was Nick Altrock, armed with a cap pistol. Baseball Commissioner A. B. Chandler judged the finish.

Post time was 2:15, to permit the runners to complete the distance in time to start the ball game at 2:30 p. m., it was explained.

The local Chamber of Commerce, which sponsored the event, gagged it up pretty good. Eighty-five-year-old Mr. Mack and 78-year-old Mr. Griffith were borne to the scene in a screaming ambulance, replete with nurses. A doctor went thruogh the motions of examining them both at the start before approving their physical condition.

Mr. Mack was first off the mark, despite the fact that youth was on the side of Mr. Griffith. They were abreast withn the first half dozen strides and then slowed to a walk, carefully gaiting themselves from that point to hit home plate together.

Commissioner Chandler, who eulogized both contestants in an address from home plate, pronounced it a dead heat after describing Mr. Mack and Mr. Griffith as "the two grandest men in baseball."

The official time was 34.5 seconds, probably a little short of the world's record, which was not immediately available.

Six Runs In 8th, Four On Walks, Turn Tables

By Shirley Povich
Post Reporter

Orlando, Fla., April 4—The Nats beat the Athletics today, in a slow trot. Four runs jogged over the plate on bases on balls in a six-run eighth inning and the Washingtons licked the A's 7 to 5, before 2800 gaping Tinker Field fans.

All told, five of the Nats' runs were forced over the plate in the ball game by the A's ace, Phil Marchildon, and his hapless rookie successor, Southpaw Alex Kellner.

Marchildon pitched four-hit ball for seven innings, and took a 5-1 lead into the eighth, and then collapsed. The Nats powered their next two runs over the plate, and merely waited out Marchildon and Kellner to get the next four.

Patience Pays Off

For the most part, the hitters needed little but patience. Walter Masterson forced the A's first run of the game over the plate in the opening inning. They whacked him after that for a 3-0 lead, but he steadied and held 'em hitless thereafter until Milo Candini took over in the fifth.

The A's made it 4-1 against Candini in the sixth with the help of an error by Tom McBride, who bobbled Majeski's single to left. York, who had opened with a single, took third on the error and scored while Suder was hitting into a double play.

In the eighth, Candini had two out when he gave up the A's fifth run. A walk to York figured in that one. Majeski and Rosar followed with singles.

Nats Whittle Lead

And then the Nats began to whittle Marchildon's 5-1 lead. Vernon, Drake and McBride singled in succession for one run. The next five scored without the aid of a hit. After Yost walked to fill the bases, Early drilled into an infield out that moved the second run home.

Marchildon fanned Pinch Hitter Christman for the second out, and the next man out was Marchildon himself.

His control deserted him completely. He walked Sullivan to refill the bases and then walked Kozar to force in the run that cut his lead to 5-4. In moved the chunky Kellner, and that rookie was at a loss to find the plate. He walked Robertson, Vernon and Drake in succession and the Nats had the ball game.

RAMON GARCIA, the little Cuban who was making his first appearance in a month, pitched the ninth for the Nats and got rid of the A's quickly, without a hit . . . the more the Nats see of him, the more they like him . . . Early Wynn and Altrock put on their clown act before the game with an assist from Chic Pieretti. Wynn's imitations of Altrock are side-splitting . . . but he should have stuck to his clowning. As a pinch hitter with the bases full in the seventh, Wynn struck out . . . Commissioner Chandler drove up from Palm Beach to watch the game in the box of Clark Griffith . . . the Nats were pathetic-looking at bat during most of the game, but they turned in three rapid double plays on ground balls, two of them launched by Eddie Yost's fancy pick-ups . . . Masterson's first-inning wildness was attributed to his lack of work, in the next three innings he walked nobody and gave up no hits . . . Tomorrow the Nats play Minneapolis here.

Legion Post 4 Wins

American Legion Victory Post 4 defeated Forrestville, 7-6, yesterday at Forrestville in a nonleague baseball game.

Michigan, Georgetown Clash Today

Football will get a little mixed up with baseball today as the week's collegiate baseball schedule opens with a single game—Georgetown versus Michigan at the Hilltop.

A standout on the Michigan nine, which opened its 1948 season Saturday with a 9-8 margin over Quantico, is Shortstop Jack Weisenberger. In the role of fullback, Jack Weisenberger paced the Wolverines to an impressive triumph in the most recent Rose Bowl game.

Redskins Own Him

The Redskins own draft rights to Weisenberger and have expressed a strong desire to sign him. So have numerous major league clubs, coveting his brilliance in the infield. His conversation with Edwards may well decide his pro career—football or baseball.

Three other football stars will be on the club which threatens Georgetown with its second diamond loss in five games. All-America Halfback Bob Chappuis will do the catching, Halfback "Bump" Elliott will be in center field and Guard Dominic Tomasi, captain-elect for the '48 Michigan juggernaut, will be on second.

Tuesday the Wolverines move over to the Ellipse to meet George Washington University in their final showing hereabouts. Tuesday will also see an all-local clash between Catholic University and Gallaudet at Brookland, and Villanova's invasion of the Hilltop to face Georgetown in the Hoyas' second of four games this week.

Georgetown has games scheduled with Fordham for both Friday and Saturday.

Maryland gets its first start of the week Wednesday, playing host to Yale. The following day Villanova moves out to College Park to meet the Terps.

Pepper Martin Wants to Play Football at 44

New York, April 4 (U.P.).—It's just like old Pepper Martin to do something like this. At 44, he is trying to convince Brooklyn's pro football Dodgers he still can play halfback.

What's more, the Dodgers are listening.

The wild hoss of the Osage, ring leader of the St. Louis Cardinals Gas House gang of a decade ago, already has proved to the Dodgers he's a place-kicking fool. He'd like to prove he still is just as much of a full-time halfback as he was way back when when he used to play football on the sly after the Cardinals, horror-struck at the thought of such a valuable baseball property cavorting on the gridiron, ordered him to desist.

The Dodgers, operating both a baseball and pro football club, have consolidated their coaching and scouting staffs this spring which throws Martin, a baseball trouble-shooter, into direct contact with Football Coach Carl Voyles.

Tatum Will Cut Squad to 70 as Drills Start Again

Coach Jim Tatum announced that he will cut his University of Maryland football squad to 70 for the remaining four weeks of spring practice starting today.

The Terp gridders will return after an Easter holiday recess which was preceded by two and a half weeks of practice.

Tatum said he was cutting the squad to avoid conflict with the numerous spring sports teams in action. He invited those cut to try out again the fall. The squad numbered 147 at the start of spring training.

Stan Musial's 9th-Inning Homer Beats Yankees, 8 to 7

St. Petersburg, Fla., April 4 (AP).—Stan Musial's 427-foot home run over the center field screen with one man on base, capped a three-run ninth-inning rally today that gave the St. Louis Cardinals an 8-7 victory over the New York Yankees.

It was the Cardinals' fifth win over the World Champions against four defeats in their spring exhibition series.

The Yankees collected 10 of their 14 hits and all their runs in the first four innings off Murry Dickson, who throttled them with a no-hitter last Wednesday.

The Cards rallied after spotting the Yankees seven runs and a 7-3 lead through the seventht.

Prince Georges' Fairchild Fires 3–2–3 as a Starter

By Roger Wolbarst
Post Reporter

Tracy Fairchild had a cause for celebration last night after he finished his round of golf at Prince Georges.

Playing with Ralph Byers and Cy Anderson, Tracy, an 18-handicap golfer, gave his companions a hard time. On the first hole he fired a birdie 3. On the second he sank his approach shot for an eagle deuce. Then, just to pour it on a little, he birdied the third hole with a 3.

After that fine start, Tracy went on to defeat Byers for the first time in the two men's private competition of several years' standing.

3 Schools Join Mason-Dixon

Balimore, April 4 (AP).—Two Virginia schools—Lynchburg College and Roanoke College—and the University of Baltimore were voted memberships in the Mason-Dixon Conference today.

The action came at a league meeting in Baltimore. The new memberships are effective immediately, allowing the schools to compete in the current spring sports program.

The Mason-Dixon Conference now includes 16 schools.

It also voted today to divide the teams into a Northern and a Southern division for he current baseball campaign.

The divisions are: North: Baltimore U., Johns Hopkins, Loyola, Towson State Teachers, Western Maryland, Mount St. Mary's, Washington and Delaware.

Souh: Roanoke, Lynchburg, Gallaudet, American U., Catholic U., Randolph-Macon, Hampden-Sydney, and Bridgewater.

Braves Rate High, Led by Spahn, Sain

(This is the eighth in a series of previews on the majors.)

Bradenton, Fla., April 4 (AP).—Watch the Boston Braves. That's the password around the Grapefruit League.

Manager Billy Southworth is preparing to head North with a power-laden ball club behind two 20-game winners, Warren Spahn and Johnny Sain.

If Billy can come up with pitching help for his two aces from the 12 others, the Braves may win their first flag since 1914.

Spahn, probably the best left-hander in the league, was 21 in '47, his first full season. Sain followed a 20-win rookie season with a 21-12 mark last year. No other club has such a solid pitching nucleus.

The No. 3 job goes to Bill Voiselle, the lad from Ninety Six, S. C., with the numerals 96 on his uniform. Acquired from New York for Mort Cooper last June, Voiselle shows signs of regaining his 1944 form.

Red Barrett, an 11-game winner last year, is the fourth starter. Johnny Beazley, troubled by a sore arm since his return from service, is of questionable value although he has looked good.

Earl Torgeson, a .281 hitter with 16 homers in his rookie year, has the first base job. He alternated with Frank McCormick last year, but Southworth plans to leave him in there against all kinds of pitching this year.

Eddie Stanky, just getting into shape after a siege of pneumonia, figures for second, although Connie Ryan, the 1947 regular, has been going strong.

Dark May Get Call at Second

Stanky, acquired from Brooklyn, is expected to team up with rookie shrotstop Alvin Dark. Sibbi Sisti and Dark have been alternating, but Dark is expected to open on the strength of his .303 year at Milwaukee.

Bob Elliott, most valuable player in the league last season, gives the club power at third base. He drove in 113 runs and hit .317. Bob Sturgeon, picked up from the Cubs, will be the utility hand.

Tommy Holmes is a fixture in right field and Jim Russell, who came from Pittsburgh in a deal that sent Johnny Hopp to the Pirates, will play center. Jeff Heath, former Brownie, will play left field when righthanded pitchers are working.

Lawrence Only Veteran Of Nationals

Boston, April 4.—A field of more than 300 amateur boxers including eight entries from Washington, D. C., took their final warm-ups today in preparation for the National A. A. U. championships which open tomorrow in the Boston Garden.

The weighing-in ceremonies take place at 9 a. m. and the opening bout is slated at 1 p. m. Opening day pairings will be made after the weighing-in.

Representing Washington in the championships are George Abraca, Andrews Field, 112 pounds; Bennie Padgett, Olympic A. C., 118; Pat Thomas, Apollo A. C., 126; Claude Lawrence, St. Mary's Boys Club, 135; Gil Stewart, Randall A. C., 147; Holly Mims, Howard A. C., 160; Eddie Marshall, Police Boys Club No. 2, 175, and Eddie Grant, Apollo A. C., heavyweight.

Of these boys, only Lawrence has appeared previously in this tournament. Last year the St. Mary's entry fought in the featherweight division and lost out to the tournament favorite, Eddie Marrotta, in a terrific battle.

All the D. C. lads are in tip-top shape. Head Coach Glen Drake has been putting them through intensive training.

Accompanying the team were Drake, Boxing Chairman Jerry Looney and Team Manager James Sullivan.

Ultimate objective of the lads is to qualify for the Olympic trials June 28 and 29 in Boston Garden. Winners in this A. A. U. tournament are automatically eligible.

Former Jockey Joe Ponce of Washington, submits this formula for accumulating wealth: Bet $1 (with a bookie, of course) on a 15-1 shot; bet your winnings on a three-horse parlay and you wind up with $156. He did it with his last dollar Friday. . . . While his rival, Goldie Ahearn, of the Liberty A. C. was getting all the newspaper and radio play with the Horne-Graziano show, Turner's Arena fight man Gabe Menendez slipped off to New York to line up a few summer shows.—MORRIS SIEGEL.

Mangrum Heads Masters

Augusta, Ga., April 4 (U.P.).—Such golf anttiques as Gene Sarazen's knickers and Bobby Jones' swing will go on display here this week but, aside from sentimentalism, lean Lloyd Mangrum is the man to watch in the twelfth annual Masters Tournament.

The event that some pros would rather win than the United States Open begins Thursday at the famous Augusta national course and continues through Sunday with 18 holes a day. The biggest gallery ever to see the Masters is expected and Augusta already is packed.

Mangrum, who came back pretty well shot up from the siege of Bastogne, is shooting his finest golf 2½ years later. He has pocketed top money in three of the 11 $10,000 events on the winter circuit, which concludes here, and leads in total earnings for 1948.

But a glance at the field of 64 of the most famous names in golf reveals that Mangrum faces terrific competition. The British Empire has come up with a red-hot "entry"—Bobby Locke, second only to Mangrum on the winter circuit, and Henry Cotton, who now denies authorship of unkind remarks about American golf and golfers.

Jones, as usual, will be a celebrity. King Bobby, whose 1930 grand slam stands as the links feat of all time, no longer makes a pretense of trying for the title. But he drags his weary bones around the course four straight days for the benefit of the throngs who come out to see him. He still has the famous Jones swing from the tee.

Thank You, Very Much

Dear Sir:

Here is a little item if you care to use it in your sport column:

"In a game that the Orange High School defeated the McIntyre High School at Charlottesville, Va., today, Ted Davenport playing shortstop for Orange High School in six times at bat, drew a walk, hit two 2 baggers, three home runs and batted in and scored 15 runs."

Cleveland Options Pair to Baltimore

Tucon, Arizon., April 4 (AP).—Manager Lou Boudreau of the Cleveland Indians has announced the optioning of Rookie Pitcher Ernie Groth and Catch Hank Ruszkowski to Baltimore of the International League.

Groth, who had a 7-11 record with the Oklahoma City Indians last year, and Ruszkowski, a .259 hitter in 23 games with Cleveland, will join Mexican Second Baseman Roberto Avila in reporting to the Oriodles at Hollywood, Fla., tomorrow night.

W & L Takes Big Loop Lead

Richmond, Va., April 4 (AP).—Washington and Lee's Generals today threatened to make the Southern Conference baseball race a one-team proposition.

The Generals, back in Lexington, Va., after a six-day swing through the Carolinas, has stepped out in front of the 16-team circuit with five victories in as many conference starts.

During their journey, Coach Richard A. (Cap'n Dick) Smith's Big Blue nine walloped Davidson and Furman twice each and routed Clemson in the other contest. One scheduled tilt with Clemson had to be postponed because of rain.

Warriors, St. Louis Play Finals Tuesday

Philadelphia, April 4 (AP).—The fierce battle for the Basketball Association of America's pot of gold shifts to St. Louis with $10,000 on tap for the winner of Tuesday's first place rubber game.

The unpredictable Philadelphia Warriors set the stage for the dramatic windup by humbling the St. Louis Bombers 84 to 61 last night.

To the winner of Tuesday's contest goes, in addition to the $10,000, the right to meet the winner of the second-third place fuss between the Baltimore Bullets and Chicago Stags.

Under BAA playoff rules, the number one teams in each division meet in a seven-game playoff. Number two and three teams play each other in three-game sets. The survivors of the first place and second-third place sets meet in a seven-game finale with another $10,000 at stake.

Baltimore eliminated the New York Knickerbockers and Chicago topped the Boston Celtics.

Dick Button Won't Turn Pro Except for 'Fabulous' Sum

Colorado Springs, Colo., April 4 (AP).—The undisputed king of the world's amateur figure skaters, 18-year-old Dick Button, headed East today, ready to turn pro if he gets a "fabulous" offer.

"However, I doubt if anyone will meet my price," the Englewood, N. J., youth said after winning his third senior men's national figure skating championship last night.

Now that he's added the National to the Olympic, World and European titles he won in Europe, Button's plans are to enter Yale University next fall and continue his amateur skating.

Gretchen Merrill of Boston also defended her senior women's championship successfully. She performed brilliantly in the free skating to wipe out the margin Yvonne Sherman of New York gained in the school figures.

The title made it six straight for the 22-year-old Boston girl and tied the record for consecutive national championships set by her coach, Maribel Y. Vinson of Boston.

Walcott Has Faith In His Right Hand

Newark, N. J., April 4 (AP).—Jersey Joe Walcott said today he would win the heavyweight championship "with my right hand" when he meets Joe Louis for the championship in New York on June 24.

"I should have won easily the last time, but frankly, I didn't know Louis was in such bad condition," he said. Walcott made his remarks at a testimonial banquet.

26 Baseball Games, Five Track Meets on Highs' Slate

By Herb Heft
Post Reporter

With the Easter vacation period behind them, the Washington area high schools face their first heavy slate of spring sports activity this week.

Twenty-six baseball games, five track meets, two tennis matches and a golf and lacrosse match are on the agenda.

By the end of the week all eight interhigh baseball teams will have been in action. The most important event comes up Saturday at George Washington High Stadium, scene of the Alexandria Memorial Relays.

More than 30 schools from Virginia, Maryland, the District of Columbia, and Durham, N. C., are entered.

Besides the usual five field events, there will be eight relay contests, ranging from the usual 220-yard relay to a novel shuttle hurdle relay. The latter event is over the 4-mile distance with a low hurdle every 20 feet.

Eight civic organizations of Alexandria have collaborated in staging the meet, which is dedicated to the Alexandria war dead.

The Optimists, Lions, Rotary, Junior and Senior Chambers of Commerce, Civitan and American Businessmen's Club each will present trophies to winning relay teams. There will be no team trophies, but first, second and third-place finishers in each field event will receive medals.

Ann Curtis And Club Take Swimming Honors

Daytona Beach, Fla., April 4 (AP). San Francisco's Crystal Plunge swimming team and its headliner, Ann Curtis, continued their domination of AAU women's swimming by taking highest honors in the 1948 national indoor meet here today.

In the three-day competition which ended today, Miss Curtis had 13 points for two first places and one second. She also anchored the victorious Crystal Plunge 400-yard free style relay team.

Today's feature was Sue Zimmerman's record-breaking one-minute, 8-seconds performance in the 100-yard backstroke section of the medley relay for the MultnomahAthletic Club of Portland, Ore.

Miss Curtis won the 220-yard free style for her fifth straight year.

The Ticket Racket Can Be Stamped Out For Good!

The underground sale of sleeping car space—particularly in Florida—is still a scandal! The C & O offers a solution that will end it—if other roads will give their support.

Back in May, 1946, the C&O published an advertisement entitled: "Let's Get the Black Market's Hand Out of the Traveler's Pocket!"

We cited cases of outrageous racketeering—and offered a solution that would end it.

Our appeal brought action in a matter of weeks—but the action was only a half-way measure. The "twenty-four hour" rule (which means that unused tickets have to be turned in a day ahead of train time) did decrease the empty space on trains. In fact it is estimated that in a year's time this rule made 702,000 more units of space available to travelers.

But it left the black-market bootlegger almost as secure as ever in his racket.

The Gambler Who Can't Lose

Picture the simplicity of operating an illegal ticket ring. The head of the ring sends a number of representatives to the ticket windows to buy up the most desirable space for weeks ahead. The racketeer then proceeds to re-sell the space he has cornered for whatever extortion he demands. And, if he has any units left over unsold, he can always turn them in 24 hours before train time and get his money back—with no questions asked!

The recent advancement of the deadline on certain trains to 48 hours — forced by the petition of 24 Florida hotels — merely provides more time for the railroad to re-sell the cancelled space. It still leaves the black-market operator as protected as ever. We have hardly even rumpled his bed of roses!

The result is that, far too often, the traveler can't get space ahead of time, though plenty of it is available at the last minute. And who wants to plan a trip on such a basis?

Personalized Tickets Are the Answer

We suggested in 1946, and today we earnestly repeat, that the cure for this racket is to make out a sleeping car ticket in the name of the individual who intends to use it.

The ideal way to sell reserved space is through a credit card system and a Central Reservation Bureau, such as the C & O has introduced on its lines. By this method the traveler doesn't need to go near a ticket window—his ticket can be delivered to him on the train. But until more roads have this modern service, we should at least have personalized tickets.

Personalized tickets, made out in the name of the traveler, would kill the black market in a hurry!

It would not delay the traveler at the ticket window, because his name could be put on the diagram at the same time the agent records his ticket number.

When the passenger hands in his ticket, the conductor would merely check his name. And there are few people, we believe, who would be willing to falsify their identities.

A Bonus of Good Will!

In fact most travelers would be distinctly pleased to think that conductors knew their names. That has been the experience on crack trains like the "Twentieth Century" which for years has made up a passenger list.

Messages could be received en route. And a pleasant "Good Evening, Mr. Smith" might let many of our skeptical patrons know that the railroad is really interested in them. For too long, rail passengers have been treated as nameless ciphers.

Why Not Start It Now?

The change to personalized, non-transferable tickets would put the black-market bootlegger out of business. The mechanics are very simple. And the new method would be worth the small extra effort many times over in traveler good will.

Payless Vacations In Prospect for 682 BLS Employes

BLS: All of its 682 employes here are threatened with payless vacations up to 10 days before June 30, from Commissioner Ewan Clague on down the line.

The Bureau of Labor Statistics is running a deficit of more than $200,000 in its funds to pay salaries here. Officials hope Congress will okay a transfer of field funds to the agency's Washington account to prevent the payless holidays.

Also, BLS has asked Congress for approval to move 61 field employes back to headquarters here. Clague is frank to admit that last year's decentralization—forced by budget cuts—hasn't worked. He wants to move the employment statistics unit back from New York, among other things.

GSI: A new increase in food prices is being debated for those cafeterias in Federal buildings here operated by Government Services, Inc. The proposed boost would be on about half of the food items, and would average, it's reported, about 7 per cent. A top official said:

"We simply can't afford to continue operations at a deficit. We ran up deficits for January, February and March which were caused, in part, by the strike and new pay raises to our employes."

VA: A study of the 13 big branch offices of the Veterans' Administration is being made by Administrator Carl Gray. Chairman Taber of the House Appropriations Committee asked Gray if consideration had been given consolidation of branch offices. This was Gray's answer:

"Yes, sir. I will say to you that the question of how many there should be, if any, or whether there should be 13, 9 or 17, is definitely being studied by me now."

But Gray did made plain that he won't transfer VA employes for the sake of moving them around. First, he'll determine if the work is necessary, and the cost of a transfer before he makes up his mind on any change.

AF: The Air Force is operating at about 10 per cent below its authorized civilian strength, Congress last year gave it funds and the authority to have an average strength of 35,937 civilians. Up to this point the average has been 32,274.

A gradual increase in AF civilian personnel would be made under the President's new defense program. However, the big bulk of the AF money would be for new planes, and only a tiny percentage would be available for personnel. New personnel would be stationed at air fields and stations. Very few new employes would be hired here.

LABOR: If the President has his way, the United States Employment Service won't go back to the Federal Security Agency a day before the law requires. He has rejected suggestions that USES be returned to FSA on July 1.

Under the law, USES won't be transferred until six months after the emergency is declared ended. The President has tried twice to have USES made a permanent part of the Labor Department, and twice the Congress has said "no."

MARITIME: A sizable expansion of this commission is a clear possibility. There is talk of a new construction program of fast tankers and troopships as part of the defense program. Maritime would get the job, and its construction and design divisions would need to be enlarged if the program goes through. Maritime plans to hire several employes outside of this city for temporary accounting and inventory work.

BEP: Paper money is running low. Plate printers are difficult to hire. So, the Bureau of Engraving and Printing will work 17 Saturdays for the remainder of this year to print 20 million additional sheets of paper money.

In circulation now are 2,949,000,000 pieces of paper money, having a total value of 28 billion dollars. Oddly enough, there are more $100 bills in circulation—52 million—than there are $2 bills, 40 million. There are 463 million fives; 669 million tens, 474 million twenties and 1,197,000,000 ones.

CIVIL SERVICE NOTES: An exam for physical therapists will be given soon. The jobs will pay from $2644 to $5905 to start. A few openings here are in the Public Health Service, Children's Bureau and St. Elizabeths. . . . The 5000 applicants for postoffice substitute clerk and carrier will be examined Saturday at McKinley High School. . . . The 1000 applicants for student nurse will be examined a week from today. Eligible ratings are being sent to 399 of the 900 people who took mathematician test and 278 of the 400 who took the metallurgist exam.

LOYALTY: A two-week training program will be given the staffs of the regional loyalty boards. The program will start a week from today. . . . Meantime, a new list of "subversive" organizations has been drawn up by Justice officials. It's up to Attorney General Tom Clark to give it final approval.

PERSONALS: Howard F. Vickery is the new assistant director of the U. N. Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization's relations staff of the State Department. He formerly was information chief for the housing agencies and one of the best. . . . James A. Treanor has resigned as director of SEC's trading and exchange division to practice law in New York. . . . R. R. Zimmerman, former White House assistant, is vice president of the Trundle Engineering Co. of Cleveland. He's in charge of its office here.

U.S. Policy On Germany Assailed by Pastor Here

Dr. S. W. Herman Hits Emphasis on Physical Aspects Of Recovery Plan

By Robert Tate Allan
Post Reporter

Dr. Stewart W. Herman yesterday blamed conditions in Germanay on lack of sound American occupation policy.

"We've done far worse than we did after the last war," said the speaker, who was pastor of the interdenominational American Church in Berlin during Hitler's rise to power.

Speaking at the Lutheran Church Center, 736 Jackson pl. nw. Dr. Herman charged America with thinking only in terms of physical rehabilitation.

"We did not supply the moral, spiritual, and ethical foundations for postwar Europe," he said. As an example he said our Government sent economists, engineers and other specialists into Germany when the war ended, but sent laymen to deal with religious matters.

Sees Germany Emerging

Dr. Herman, who has returned home after two years as assistant director of the World Council of Churches' Department of Reconstruction, said Germany is again emerging as the keystone of the whole postwar structure. He said news of the past week bears that out.

Asked from the floor about his first step in reconstructing Germany, if he had the authority, Dr. Herman said:

"I would put tools in the hands of the German church to do its own job. I would provide the church with such necessities as paper, automobiles, food and medical supplies for its social service work."

Dr. Stewart's home is in Harrisburg, Pa. He is a graduate of Gettysburg (Pa.) College and its theological seminary. He went to Europe for study in 1936, stayed 12 years. He spent the last year of the war in the Office of Strategic Services. Earlier in the war, he was interned six months at Bad Aneuheim.

His address at the Lutheran Church Center highlighted an international tea, at which Germany was featured. He spoke in the morning at Reformation Lutheran Church, 212 E. Capitol st.

Gandhi's Influence

Death has not weakened Gandhi's influence in India, the Rev. Loy Long, Congregational missionary from that land, said last night at First Congregational Church, 10th and G sts. nw.

Mr. Long, a charter member of Gandhi's Society for the Removal of Untouchability, said that no serious rioting between religious or political factions has occurred in India since Gandhi's passing.

The missionary predicted that the nationalist party would split into left and right-wingers, with Nehru leading the rights and radical socialists building up a leftist party. Mr. Long and his wife, both of whose work is supported by First Congregational Church, are now in America to get recruits for missionary work. They plan to return to India in December. Mr. Long will address a Men's Club dinner today at 6:15 p. m. at First Congregational Church.

English Canon Preaches

Preacher yesterday morning at the Washington Cathedral was the Rev. Cyril E. Hudson, canon residentiary of St. Alban's, England, who is conducting a spring term conference at the College of Preachers on the Cathedral Close.

Three Chinese are among those who were appointed fellows for the spring term. They are the Revs. John Chung Yan Laap of St. Stephen's Church, Hongkong; Y. T. Liu of Foochow, who hopes to continue his studies at Union Theological Seminary, New York City, and Roland Pick Chiang Koh, vicar of St. Mary's, Hongkong.

Speaks of Orient

A new respect for Christianity and democracy in the Orient was seen yesterday as a paradoxical blessing of war by the Rev. Thoburn T. Brumbaugh.

Much of this new esteem has come through church-sponsored relief and reconstruction, through practical demonstrations of Christianity, he said, at Woodside Methodist Church, 8814 Georgia av., Silver Spring.

Mr. Brumbaugh, associate secretary of the Methodist board of missions for Japan, Korea and the Philippines, expressed confidence that Christianity would successfully meet the challenge of communism and imperialism in the Orient.

Rector Welcomed Back

More than 1500 worshipers at three services yesterday warmly welcomed Dr. C. Leslie Glenn back to the pulpit of St. John's Episcopal "Church of the Presidents," Lafayette Square.

By a unanimous vote last Monday, the congregation requested the new vestry to arrange for Rector Glenn's return from a six-month leave of absence that began early in February. The former Navy chaplain was suffering from jaundice.

1800 Congress Heights Pupils Attend Schools Built for 1200

STOREROOM SCHOOLROOM—Group of second grade students play tune for their teacher, Mrs. Louise Linehan, during few minutes of recreation from their coaching class in reading at Congress Heights Elementary School

470 on Part-Time Grade Schedule in Crowded Buildings

By Elsie Carper
Post Reporter

Congress Heights, an expanding community of housing developments, has outgrown its schools.

Four hundred and seventy of its chilren are going to elementary school half time in two buildings used far above capacity.

The schools serve such a large area—the section south of St. Elizabeths Hospital and east of Bolling Field—that some of the children whose ages range from 5 to 11 must ride public transportation to school or walk as far as two miles twice a day.

The schools are Congress Heights, 5th st. and Nichols ave. se., a 16-room yellow stucco building that his had two additions since it was built 40 years ago, and Patterson, South Capitol and Darrington sts., a 20-classroom red brick school opened three years ago.

Both Exceed Capacity

Congress Heights School, which has a capacity of 500 students, now has 789 and Patterson, built to accomodate 720, has an enrollment of 994.

Only the first grades are now on part time at the Patterson School, but at Congress Heights first, second and third graders are attending half a day.

Indications are that unless new schools are built immediately all classes will go on part time within the next several years.

A school census conducted last week by the attendance department shows there are 1780 children 8 years old and under not now in school in the area of the Congress Heights School and 2603 in the Patterson area.

This means that there are nearly three times as many children of pre-school age in the area as are now in school. This does not take in account children who will live in homes now under construction in the area.

Unites Under Construction

Licenses issued to builders show that nearly 3000 housing units are now under construction or planned in areas served by the two schools.

In one block alone, a survey showed 89 pre-school-age children.

It looks like the opening day of school after a new apartment unit opens up, according to Miss E. M. Truesheim, principal of Congress Heights. Children accompanied by parents line up outside her office waiting to be admitted.

Classes keep half-day pupils from falling behind

In 1949 budget requests, the Board of Education asked for $19,000 for two new elementary school sites to take the load off Patterson and Congress Heights. One site would be in the vicinity of Oxon Run and the other near Mississippi ave. and Stanton rd. se., about a mile from Patterson.

The Commissioners in reviewing the budget approved purchase of the Oxon Run site but deleted the other request. The budget is now before Congress.

Dr. Carl F. Hansen, associate superintendent in charge of elementary schools, said that the only way of providing children in the area with any form of education until new schols are built is to increase the number of children on part-time programs.

Under parttime, children lose two hours of schooling a day. Shifts are from 9 a. m. to noon for one group and from 12:30 p. m. to 3:30 p. m. for the second. The normal school day is from 9 a. m. to 3 p. m. with an hour off for lunch.

Mis Florence M. Painter, principal of Paterson, explained that part-time students received the same program as those on full time, but that all studies necessarily must be cut short. There is less time for drawing, music and the rhythmis games that are stressed in the early grades.

The program also is weakened by large classes, according to Miss Painter.

Enrollment in classes is 36, the limit set by the Board of Education. A class from 20 to 25 is considered by educators to be the maximum a teacher should handle.

Youngsters keep up with basic studies — reading, writing and arithmetic—through special instruction.

The teacher who uses the available classroom in the morning will meet in the afternoon with a small group of her students. These classes are held in basement playrooms and storerooms.

At Congress Heights each child receives two weeks of coaching a semester while at Paterson the children are assigned to special classes twice a week.

Navy Officer Finds Wife Dead by Car

Mrs. T. A. Hartung Takes Life With Carbon Monoxide At Reno Rd. Home

Mrs. Dorothy C. Hartung, 50, wife of Navy Capt. Theron A. Hartung, took her life by carbon monoxide gas yesterday in the garage of their home, 3830 Reno rd., nw.

Captain Hartung of the Corps of Civil Engineers, is chief inspector at the Bureau of Yards and Docks.

He discovered his wife's body face down on the garage floor beside the family automobile at 9:15 a. m. Police said they learned Mrs. Hartung had been in ill health, and that the couple had argued the night before.

In Mrs. Hartung's room was a note to her parents, who live with the Hartungs. She said she was sorry for her act, police said, and conveyed her love to her mother and father.

Captain Hartung told police he and his wife went to separate bedrooms about 1 a. m. yesterday. About 9 a. m., he went to her room to find an empty bed and the note. He reported he then noticed that the car apparently had been driven into the garage, which is part of the house, from the driveway where he said he had left it the night before. The garage doors were closed.

The automobile's ignition was on, but the engine was not running. The gas apparently had become exhausted, police said.

Dr. Richard M. Rosenberg, deputy coroner, certified the death as suicide due to carbon monoxide poisoning, after Fire Rescue Squad No. 2 failed to revive Mrs. Hartung.

40 Enrolled For Cancer Course Here

A group of 40 nursing consultants and instructors in universities and hospitals today will begin a course in cancer control at Catholic University, Oscar R. Ewing, Federal Security Agency administrator, said yesterday.

The course, first in a Nationwide series, will last three weeks. It is sponsored jointly by the National Cancer Institute of the United States Public Health Service, and Catholic University. Those attending will represent public health agencies, universities and hospitals in the District, Maryland, Virginia and West Virginia.

Dr. Austin V. Delbert, director of control work at the National Cancer Institute, believes "probably half" of the annual cancer death toll could be avoided by earlier detection and prompt treatment.

"Because of her direct contact with people in their homes," he said, "the public health nurse is on our first line of attack. She must learn to recognize conditions which may become malignant unless remedied, and also to detect cancer in its early, curable stages. The hospital nurse, too, must learn increasing alertness to cancer signs. Both can help educate the public."

Other courses in this series have been scheduled for the University of Minnesota in June and the University of Oregon in August of this year.

4 D.C. Residents Robbed in Space Of 45 Minutes

Inquest Today

Probe Is Set In Shooting Of Prowler

A coroner's jury today will investigate the fatal shooting Saturday night of a 22-year-old prowler by Fifth Precinct Pvt. Francis M. Moran.

The victim, Joseph Andrews Barnes, 150 Rhode Island ave. nw., died at Casualty Hospital about an hour after he was shot.

Barnes Moran said, was attempting to break into a drugstore at 1444 B st. se. about 10:30 p. m.

Moran had answered a call for police from residents living next door to the store, who said they saw Barnes at a skylight on the roof of the one-story drugstore. They were John B. Douglass, brother of Herbert Douglass, who operates the store, and Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Webb, all of 1442 B st.

From street level, Moran said he called to Barnes to surrender. Barnes was halfway down through the skylight at the time, witnesses said. When Barnes climbed out and started to flee, Moran shouted another warning, then fired three times.

The first two shots missed. The third struck Barnes in the head above the right ear.

Police said Barnes had no previous criminal record. At his bedside when he died were two brothers, Alfred Barnes, 1533 B st. se., and Roland Barnes, 207 16th st. se. The victim's mother, Mrs. Jane Barnes, lives at 1700 2d st. nw.

Moran was released in custody of his precinct commander for appearance at the inquest at 11:30 a. m.

Total Loot Nets Stickup Man Only $36 in Northwest Area Activities

Within 45 minutes early yesterday in a radius of 10 blocks, four District residents were robbed of a total of $36.20—all apparenty by the same gunman.

Police believe the fast-working holdup man was also implicated in a 5th st. robbery Saturday night that netted $28.

At 1:15 a. m. yesterday, Thomas Johnson, 70, of 1207 Girard st. nw., was robbed by the dark-skinned Negro of $10 on a streetcar loading platform in the 1100 block of 11th st. nw., police said.

Gives Up Billfold

At about 1:30, Harry C. Mann, 1114 P st. nw., surrendered a billfold containing $1 to the persuasion of a nickel-plated revolver, the same type gun used in all the other cases. This was about five blocks away, on P st. between Columbia and 10th sts. nw.

Twenty minutes later, a man answering the same description and wielding a similar revolver got $22.50 from Norman Rubenfield, 1767 Q st. nw., accosting him in the 1500 block of Q st. nw.

At 2 a. m., Billy Korban, 27, 5525 Kansas ave. nw., walking in the same block of Q st., but on the other side, was robbed of $2.70.

Describes Bandit

Like the others, Korban described the bandit as about 6 feet tall, about 160 pounds and wearing a gray coat and light felt hat.

The Saturday night victim was Clarence Chaffin, 47, 1436 Meridian pl. nw., police said. He was yoked by a light-skinned Negro and thrown to the ground in the 1700 block of Willard st. nw., about 10 p. m. A man accompanying the robber answered the description of the man believed to have committed yesterday's four crimes.

World Faces Peace, Chaos, McGuire Says

The world is at the crossroads leading to either peace or chaos, Associate Justice Matthew F. McGuire of the United States District Court for the District of Columbia told a Catholic War Veterans communion breakfast yesterday.

It was the first such gathering conducted by the Capt. Edward A. Duff Post, CWV, and was held in the George Mason Hotel, Alexandria, Va.

Justice McGuire, who Saturday night issued a temporary injunction against the current coal strike, humorously referred to his action by saying he came to Alexandria for the breakfast "with considerable misgivings after what I did last evening." The hotel where he was speaking is five blocks from the home of United Mine Workers President John L. Lewis.

"America itself is at the crossroads," he said, "because the foundations of this Government are Christian. It was founded on the fatherhood of God and the brotherhood of man—of all men, no matter what their color, creed or condition of life."

In what he termed "probably the most important period of history since Charles Martel overcame the Mahometans 1200 years ago," and with "Christian philosophy at stake," we must, as individuals, "extend our hands to all men of good will," the speaker concluded.

Seven Injured In 5 Accidents

after treatment for forehead bruises.

After the collision, the Gorsuch vehicle went out of control and struck a parked car on 15th st. inflicting slight damage, police said.

A telegraph pole and fire plug in the 8100 block of Old Georgetown rd., were uprooted by a car operated by Peter James O'Neal, 19, of 9601 Montgomery dr., Bethesda, shortly before 5 a. m. Montgomery County police said O'Neal fell asleep at the wheel and the car ran off the road, breaking a telegraph pole and shearing off a fire plug.

O'Neal was treated at Suburban Hospital for face lacerations and released. The Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission capped the plug and the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Co. sent an emergency crew to erect a new pole. Telephone service was uninterrupted.

In Fairfax County, a sedan operated by Clarence J. Compton, 21, of Reva, Va., was struck in the rear by a tractor-trailer driven by Lorenza V. Phillips, jr., 26, of Ronaoke, Va., on Route 211 at Bull Run about 11 a. m.

Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Butler of 3320 North 23d st., Arlington, passengers on the rear seat of the sedan, were treated at Arlington County Hospital and released. Mrs. Butler sustained lacerations of head and right leg and her husband was X-rayed for a possible fractured vertebrae. Neither of the drivers was injured.

150,000 Jam Hains Point at Spring's Call

Washington took to the great outdoors yesterday, beckoned by a warm sun and budding nature.

Tourists and residents crowded parks and public monuments. As an example, crowds estimated at 150,000 persons by Lieut. William R. Lutes of the United States Park Police jammed the Hains Point section of Potomac Park.

Among those taking advantage of the sunny day—during which the temperature hovered about the 60 mark much of the afternoon—was President Truman, who strolled up Pennsylvania ave. in mid-morning.

Aside from the escorting Secret Service men, the thing that set the President apart from most of his fellow Americans in the city was the fact that he didn't carry a camera.

More spring weather is due today, with the forecast reading "mostly sunny and warmer." The temperature is expected to reach 75 degrees this afternoon after an early morning low of 42 degrees. Low temperature yesterday was 35 degrees at 5:40 a. m.

Despite fading, the single blossom cherry trees and magnolias in Potomac Park drew thousands of Sunday motorists and strollers, necessitating special police details.

The double blossom cherry trees are expected to bloom the latter part of the week, in time for the cherry blossom festival next Saturday and Sunday at Hains Point.

Families picknicked, couples walked hand in hand or bicycled, and fishermen lined the banks of the Potomac River, as sailboats spanked with the breeze and planes lazed overhead.

And perpetuating an old custom in Washington, thousands photographed each other against a background of cherry trees, Jefferson and Lincoln Memorials, and the National Capitol.

New County Symphony Prepares for Debut

Prince Georges Group Practices At Greenbelt School

Conductor David Burchuk clapped his hands promptly at 5 p. m. yesterday and sent the Prince Georges County Symphony Orchestra through another rehearsal before its professional debut.

Formed only two months ago, the amateur group already has doubled in numbers, and is planning to present its first concert at Greenbelt Elementary School on April 25.

None of the 30 members of the orchestra are professional musicians, but a few were at one time.

The symphony is supported by the Prince Georges County board of education adult program, which pays the director. Members pay 25 cents at each rehearsal for janitorial services in the Greenbelt school and use of the piano.

The members own their instruments, and the symphony is currently using music left from a former unsuccessful Greenbelt symphony. To get players of a few instruments which the orchestra lacks, Burchuk has volunteered to teach anyone who owns a double bass, trombone of piccolo.

Proceeds from the fourthcoming "pop" concert will be used to buy additional instruments and music, according to Mrs. Helen Oring of Greenbelt, president of the group.

Members of Prince Georges County Symphony Orchestra hold rehearsal in Greenbelt Elementary School

The orchestra members represent many ages and professions. Sixteen is the minimum age for membership. Several members are in their 60's.

The pianist is Mrs. William Moore of Greenbelt, mother of four, Mrs. Eric Braun, wife of the pastor of the community church, and Merton Trast, personnel manager of the Greenbelt cooperative, violin.

Area News In Brief

Woman Held Twice In Fight, Stabbing

A 38-year-old woman, out on bond for allegedly beating up another woman Saturday night, was back in custody yesterday on a charge of critically stabbing a man.

The wounded man was reported near death at Gallinger Hospital yesterday after he had been treated at Providence Hospital and released to police.

Lucille Hill, 513 9th st. nw., and Geneva Greenley, 519 9th st. nw., both were charged with assault with a dangerous weapon Saturday night following a fight between the two at Geneva's house. Both were treated at Providence Hospital, then released under $1000 bond each at the Fourth Precinct station house.

At about 9 a. m. yesterday, police said, Lucille got into an argument at her house with Edward L. Smith, 39, of 436 6½ st. sw. Police said she told them Smith tried to use a knife on her and was stabbed in the back when they struggled for the weapon. She admitted, police said, she tried to hit Smith with a bottle, but missed.

After treatment at Providence Hospital, Smith was charged with assault with a dangerous weapon and with being drunk and disorderly. At about 11 a. m., he collapsed in his cell and was taken to Gallinger Hospital where it was said the knife blade had entered his left lung.

Postlude

Symphony Season Ends Brilliantly

By Donald Engle

The National Symphony season came to a brilliant close yesterday afternoon with the eminent composer and conductor, Igor Stravinsky, leading the orchestra in a program of his own works.

Considering the stature and influence of his dual role in general, and in relation to yesterday's concert in particular, Igor Stravinsky is without doubt one of the greatest living musicians. We prefer the term "musician" because it is the only word sufficiently broad to encompass his preeminence as a gifted creator, a talented interpreter, a sound scholar, an expert on esthetics, and a sincere, enthusiastic devote to his art.

His program included four works which represent nearly 40 years of his development as a composer. Most of his output during that time has not met with great immediate popular acceptance, partly because it is so far removed from the prevailing romantic standards of the time, partly because understanding of its polyrhythmic structure and dazzling orchestration requires many more hearings than the simple melodic styles of earlier days.

Warmly Applauded

Thus the Fire Bird Suite (1909) was warmly applauded yesterday because most of the audience had heard it before, while the Symphony in Three Movements (1945), which is not so different from the Fire Bird as one might suppose, simply failed to register for most listeners because it was a first hearing. In time, this symphony should become recognized and accepted as one of Stravinsky's most significant works, not only by musicians, but by the "lay" audience who regularly attend symphony concerts.

The remaining two works were originally composed for use in ballet, a field in which Stravinsky has had no peer during this century. In the Divertimento, from the Fairy's Kiss (1927), he gives to several songs and pieces of Tschaikowsky the stamp of his own genius, while in the Scenes de Ballet (1944), he bring to life the old classical dance forms in arresting new rhythmic and harmonic grab.

On the podium, Stravinsky achieves greater results with less fuss and ostentation than the majority of men who devote themselves entirely to conducting. He is clear and concise in indicating the beat and giving cues, and he literally radiates a spontaneous vitality that calls forth the best from every individual.

Proved Equal to Task

The members of the National Symphony proved equal to the task of learning an almost entirely new and extremely difficult program in a short time and with few rehearsals, and they may take justifiable pride in the tribute Mr. Stravinsky paid them at his press conference the other day, when he said they are a fine organization and that it is a pleasure to work with them. This is high praise indeed.

On behalf of all the people and students of Washington who have attended the symphony concerts this season, may we express our appreciation to every member of the orchestra for his individual part in bringing us pleasure, enjoyment and satisfaction through fine music, and may we look forward to an even greater season to come!

Mrs. Dowling Dies; Mother Of Admiral

Mrs. Susie Brackettt Dowling, active in club work and wife of Harry W. Dowling of 3603 14th st. nw., died yesterday after a prolonged illness.

A native of Minneapolis, Minn., Mrs. Dowling received her education in Boston and New York, where she majored in music. An active club member, Mrs. Dowling had been identified with the Society of New England Women, Daughters of American Colonists, State Officers Club, American Red Cross, and was a past regent of the DAR. She was a member of the Mount Pleasant Congregational Church.

Mr. and Mrs. Dowling were married in 1892 at the home of Mrs. Dowling's parents, the late Mr. and Mrs. George A. Brackett of Minneapolis. After their marriage, they lived for a time at 614 E st. nw.

Besides her husband, Mrs. Dowling is survived by a son, Rear Admiral George B. Dowling, USN Medical Corps, retired, who received the Distinguished Service Medal for his work in evacuating wounded from Europe in World War II; three daughters, Mrs. John P. Halsted of Washington, Mrs. Patterson Bayne of Alexandria and Mrs. Ninian Beall of Georgetown, eight grandchildren and five great grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held at Geier's funeral home, 3605 14th st. nw., at 2 p. m. Tuesday, with burial in Oak Hill Cemetery

Mrs. Margaret Can Clief

Charlottesville, Va., April 4 (Spl.).—Mrs. Margaret Good Van Clief, widow of Ray Alan Van Clief, industrialist and financier, died yesterday at her estate, Nydrie, near Esmont, where she maintained thoroughbred breeding stables.

A daughter of Daniel Good of New York City, she is survived by two sons, Daniel Good and Ray Alan Van Clief; a sister, Mrs. Ellsworth Augusts of Cleveland Ohio, and an aunt, Mrs. John Hall, of Harrisonburg.

Her husband, a special consultant to the War Manpower Commission during World War II, died June 28, 1945, as a result of injuries sustained in an automobile accident.

Private funeral services will be held Tuesday at 3 p. m. at Nydrie.

Open House Scheduled

The antitank company, 115th Infantry of the Maryland National Guard at Hyattsville, will hold open house from 8 to 10 p. m. Tuesday in observance of Army Day. The open house will be in the Hyattsville Armory.

Souvenirs from the battlefields of Europe and the Pacific, brought back by veterans now members of the antitank company, will be on display. There also will be an exhibit of U. S. weapons and equipment.

Col. Caesar L. Aiello, Mayor of Hyattsville, will be master of ceremonies, and Representative Lansdale G. Sasscer (D., Md.) the principal speaker.

The guard recruiting booth will be open after the ceremonies for men 17 to 35 years of age. Older men who are veterans also may enlist.

Janet Richards, Columnist, Lecturer, Dies at Age of 89

Miss Janet Richards, 89, one of the first women's club columnists and current affairs lecturers, died yesterday at her home in the Wyoming apartments, 2022 Columbia rd. nw., after an illness of 10 days.

Miss Richards

Born in Granville, Ohio, Miss Richards came here as a child. Shortly after her graduation from Eden Hall Academy of the Sacred Heart in Philadelphia, she began writing a column on women's club activities, believed to be the first column of its type.

Later Miss Richards wrote book reviews and was on the staff of The Washington Post for about five years. Her first lecture, on the Passion Play at Oberammergau, Bavaria, was delivered in 1890. During the Spanish-American War she originated public lecture courses on politics and during her lifetime spoke in some 75 cities and 5 European capitals on politics, literature, history and travel.

She had traveled widely and interviewed many public figures, including Mussolini, Edward Benes, Aristides Briand and Austin Chamberlin. Miss Richards gave regular lectures before the League for Political Education in New York for 16 years and conducted weekly lectures for 1000 women in Philadelphia and Washington.

A charter member of Chapter 133 of the Daughters of the American Revolution, Miss Richards attended every one of the first 50 DAR congresses and was honorary chairman of the Golden Jubilee committee in 1940. She had served as historian, regent and secretary of Mary Washington Chapter (D. C.) and was a delegate and speaker at annual DAR conferences.

She was a delegate to the International Women's Suffrage Alliance at Amsterdam in 1908, Stockholm in 1911, and Rome in 1923. She spoke at the uinquennial International Council of Women at Rome in 1914 and at the first Women's Pan American Congress here in 1916.

Miss Richards was a member of the National Georgraphic Society, the English Speaking Union, the Woman's City Club and an honorary member of the Soroptimist Club. For her pioneer work in public affairs and relief work she was decorated by the governments of France, Belgium, Italy and Russia.

There are no immediate survivors. Funeral services will be held at St. Matthew's Cathedral, Rhode Island ave. between 17th and 18th sts. nw., at 10 a. m. Tuesday, with burial at Mount Olivet Cemetery.

Dr. J. T. Jackson Heads Leesburg Rotary Club

Leesburg, Va., April 4 (Spl.).—Dr. James T. Jackson, Leesburg physician, has been elected president of the Leesburg Rotary Club, succeeding C. R. Ahalt, who automatically becomes vice president. Roscoe B. Rhoades was reelected secretary, and Bruce McIntosh, treasurer.

Three new directors were elected: E. E. Garlett, H. C. Littlejohn and John William Clemens. At a meeting Thursday evening, the club will elect delegates and alternates to the annual conference of the 187th District of Rotary International, which will be held in Alexandria on April 15 and 16.

Pedestrian Dies, 2 Others Hurt as Truck Overturns

Harrisonburg, Va., April 4 (AP).—John H. Branham, 28, of Harrisonburg was killed and two other persons were injured Saturday night when a truck overturned on them while they were walking along Route 613—a quarter of a mile west of Singers Glen.

Branham's wife, Emma, and Mrs. Gertie Stroop, 37, of Singers Glen suffered minor injuries.

State Trooper M. S. Witt, jr., said the truck was driven by Paul Grogg, 30, of Route 2, Linville. Grogg is being held on charges of involuntary manslaughter and driving under the influence of intoxicants, Witt said.

French Industry Tops Prewar Rate

Paris, April 4 (NYHT).—French industrial production in February was 12 per cent higher than it was during an average month in 1938, according to the latest monthly economic review published in the European edition of the New York Herald Tribune.

Output is now at the highest level that it has reached at any time since the liberation, and it promises to surpass by the end of the year the entire output of 1938. French economic observers are astonished by the rapidity of economic recovery that the figures indicate.

THE TIMID SOUL

THE FAMILY SCRAPBOOK

By Dr. Ernest G. Osborne

Hunger and Fussing

There are many reasons why children fuss and fret. Sometimes it may be one way in which a youngster who doesn't feel quite important enough is trying to get the attention and consideration of mother or father whose approval he needs in order to feel "right" about his world. In such cases we parents will need to examine carefully just how we feel about the child and work out relationships that will overcome the causes of his fretting.

If your children are fussy an hour or so before mealtime, though, there may be a very simple cause which you can easily treat. It isn't that they may be tired and cross after a long, hard morning or afternoon of play, but that hunger is really bothersome. A bit of sweet, a graham cracker or some other simple food will not spoil the meal that is soon to be ready, but it will help the youngsters "carry on" until lunch or suppertime.

Congressional Club Fetes Speaker Martin

By Marie McNair

Republicans could have raised a quorum yesterday at the Congressional Clug for they turned out in droves to greet Speaker of the House Joe Martin, guest of honor of the ladies at tea. Yes, there were Democrats there, too, but they were hard to find.

The Congressional Club puts most of their members to work—pleasant duties they are—when they give a party.

Mrs. William Sterling Cole, Mrs. Karl Stefan, took turns with Mrs. Stephen Pace and Mrs. Lindsay Warren to greet guests at the door. Mrs. Joseph Farrington was in general charge of the reception with Mrs. William E. Hess assisting, and a large group alternated at the tea tables and the punch bowl.

Gardenia in Hair

Mrs. Clifford Davis, president of the club, was first in the receiving line, wearing a straight black frock with bustle back, a pearl bib necklace and a gardenia in her upswept fair hair. Next was Speaker Martin and the line continued with Mrs. Wallace White in a flame-colored lace gown, without Senator White who must forego parties because of his health; Representative and Mrs. Landsale Sasscer, the latter in black; Representative and Mrs. Leroy Johnson, Representative Albert Thomas, and Mrs. Thomas in a smart navy blue sheer crepe costume; Representative and Mrs. J. Harry McGregor, Representative and Mrs. Mike Mansfield and Representative and Mrs. Aime J. Forand. Mrs. McGregor's gown was a full-skirted navy blue lace with a pink satin bow poised on her shoulder, and Mrs. Forand wore a simple frock of maize crepe.

Chief Justice Fred Vinson was in a huddle most of the afternoon with some of his former colleagues from the House. Mrs. Vinson in dark blue with a brimmed hat trimmed with blue and white plaid maline, chatted with Mrs. Parker West. Former Representative Luther Johnson from Texas, who's now a judge, got a lively salutation from the Speaker as he went down the line.

The Attorney General, Tom Clark was there and Mrs. Clark, with a white hat accented with green ribbon, topping her all-black frock. I saw the Secretary of Agriculture Clinton Anderson, who this time next year may be Senator from New Mexico, and with him Mrs. Anderson, wearing a brown suit and matching felt hat.

At Tea Table

Mrs. Wallace White did double duty yesterday, for she slipped out of the receiving line in the late afternoon, to preside at the small table arranged for the Speaker.

Most of the wives of Massachusetts delegation had been asked to pour tea and coffee. In the group were Mrs. Leverett Saltonstall, who had the Senator with her; Mrs. John W. Heselton, Mrs. Christian Herter, Mrs. Angier L. Goodwin, Mrs. Richard Wigglesworth, Mrs. Charles Clason, Mrs. Don Nicholson, and Representative Edith Nourse Rogers. Others were Mrs. Hal Holmes, Mrs. Dan Reed, Mrs. Clarence F. Lea, Mrs. Wright Patman, Mrs. Guy Cordon, Mrs. Albert Carter, and Mrs. John Rankin, representing the States of Washington, New York, California, Texas, Oregon, and Mississippi.

Coffee whipped up with ice cream was popular yesterday and Mrs. Jay LeFevre in a battleship gray taffeta frock and flower trimmed natural straw hat, was busy keeping her assistants at the job. Taking their turn with the ladle were Mrs. Thomas Abernethey, Mrs. Oren Harris, Mrs. Herman P. Eberharter, Mrs. Jack A. Anderson, Mrs. John Kee, Mrs. Karl Mundt, Mrs. John Kunkel and Mrs. Rose Rizley in the perennial favorite navy blue with an off the face mauve felt hat backed up with bright flowers.

Almost all the ladies blossomed out in flower hats. There were Senora de Guardia, with her husband the Panama Ambassador, guests for former Representative and Mrs. Maurice Thatcher. The senora's hat, cartwheel size, was of pale pink straw with black scroll embroidery and a single pink posey standing up in the front. Mrs. Roy Woodruff's hat was fashioned of pale pink cabbage roses, and Mrs. J. Howard McGrath, wife of the Senator from Rhode Island, who's also chairman of the Democratic Committee, also had a hat of pink roses.

French Envoy There

The French Ambassador and Mme. Bonnet were there, Mme. Bonnet's tiny cloche of natural straw featuring pink and white candy striped ribbon plus pink roses. Then there were Mrs. Karl LeCompte in a halo hat of pink straw; former Representative and Mrs. Charles Dewey, Mrs. John J. Williams, wife of the Delaware Senator, wearing a blue and white flowered frock with dark blue hat; Mrs. Raymond Burke, whose husband is Representative from Ohio; Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Brewer Montgomery, who came as guests of Mrs. Thomas A. Wadden; Mrs. Cleveland Newton, who brought as her guests Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Vennell. The Sergeant-at-Arms of the House, William F. Russell, and Mrs. Russell had their young son in tow, and others were Representative Wesley Disney, and Mrs. Disney wearing a gray suit and pale yellow straw hat; Senator and Mrs. Alexander Wiley, Miss Jean Beckwith.

Newswomen Mark Club's Birthday

The American Newspaper Women's Club, Inc., celebrated its sixteenth birday yesterday by launching a $50,000 bond sale for the purchase of a permanent club house. This important step in the history of the club took place at a buffet supper at the Raleigh Hotel, where the organization in its early days had headquarters.

The club now is located at 1604 Twentieth st., but because of the vast growth of the organization larger quarters are necessary.

First bond pledge yesterday was signed by Mrs. Claude A. Swansen, widow of the Secretary of the Navy, who was one of the club's first associate members. The beloved former cabinet hostess was unable to be present at the birthday celebration but she sent word that she would like to have the honor of being the first bond subscriber.

Officials Attend

Honor guests at the club's birthday party were new members and old friends who assisted the women writers when the club was in its infancy. Husbands, of course, shared honors with the ladies, the invitations including the Secretary of the Army and Mrs. Kenneth C. Royall, the Secretary of the Air Force and Mrs. W. Stuart Symington, the Secretary of Commerce and Mrs. William Averell Harriman and the Secretary of Labor and Mrs. Lewis B. Schwellenbach.

Also the Undersecretary of State and Mrs. Robert A. Lovett, the Assistant Secretary of the Air Force and Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney, the Assistant Secretary of the Navy for Air and Mrs. John Nicholas Brown, Senator and Mrs. J. William Fulbright, Senator and Mrs. Spessard L. Holland, Senator and Mrs. Homer Ferguson, Senator and Mrs. J. Howard McGrath, Representative and Mrs. Clifford Davis, Representative and Mrs. John Davis Lodge, the Delegate from Hawaii and Mrs. Joseph R. Farrington and the Assistant to the President and Mrs. John R. Stellman.

Receiving with the president, Margaret Hart Canby, who held the same office some years back, were other former presidents, including Mrs. Kate Scott Brooks, Mrs. Marie McNair, Miss Katharine M. Brooks, Miss Alice Eversman and Miss Genevieve Reynolds.

Charter Members

Mrs. Canby and Miss Brooks were the founders of the club and other charter members were Mrs. Brooks, Evelyn Gordon, Maybelle Jennings, Elizabeth Kuhn, Flora Macdonald, Jackie Martin, Marie McNair, Betty Nowell, Sallie V. H. Pickett, Elisabeth E. Poe, Esther Prager, May Kearney Ward, Vylla Poe Wilson, Leila W. Bathon, Lillian Cutlip, Hazel Grant Edgar Elizabeth K. Hynes, Mary MacCracken Jones, Ann Parks Marshall, Mrs. George S. Richards, Margaret Connor Vosbury, Margaret Wade and Josephine Tighe Williams.

The club is proud of its record in helping children. It has endowed a room at Children's Hospital, contributed to the City-Wide Milk Fund for Children, Providence Hospital, as well as equipped the new diabetic clinic of the new George Washington University Hospital. It has contributed to the various war reliefs, the March of Dimes and is a member of the American Earhart Foundation, the famous woman flyer having been a member of the club.

During the recent war the club furnished a recreation room under the Red Cross. In addition it maintains a fellowship fund for the benefit of its members.

Yesterday's party was arranged in the Raleigh Room. There was a large birthday cake, the gift of Col. and Mrs. Schiffeler, bearing 16 lighted candles and topped with a miniature of the house the club hopes to own in the not too distant future.

Neareasters Meet For 23d Reunion

Mrs. Robert Whitney Imbrie is in New York for the 23d reunion of the Neareasters, and during her stay there will be the guest of Mrs. M. Francis Naiden who will entertain at a cocktail party in her honor.

The Neareasters include those who were engaged in work for the Near East Relief following World War I. Mrs. Imbrie organized industrial relief in Turkey and when the Near East Relief closed its operations the handicrafts were brought to this country. Mrs. Imbrie was in charge of the shop in Washington and had as her assistants wives of naval offices who had duty in the Mediterranean and Black Sea

The present Thrift Shop was the outgrowth of the Near East shop. Mrs. John Allen Dougherty who had been active in raising relief funds became interested in the barter and exchange principle of the shop and interested other women in the idea.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Reared in the Shadow of Puritanical Mother, Girl Is Now a Mother Herself and Very Unsure How to Give Her Children Constructive Rearing

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am 27, the mother of three children, and I have always been an insecure individual, never quite sure of my direction or ability to do the right thing.

My mother reared me in the shadow of herself, to be always a "good" girl, never to do a wrong, never to fight or say a "bad" word. Thus as an only (and lonely) child, I grew up shy and retiring, afraid of bullies, boys, very popular girls and life in general.

Oh, I had some friends. I romped and played with other children and enjoyed myself as children do; but as I look back I realize that I was nearly always afraid of something; afraid I would fail in school or otherwise bring on mother's quiet disapproval.

Her Marriage Is Very Happy

MOTHER did the disciplining. Father was too doting, I suppose; and also too busy, most of the time, drinking and running around. As I grew older and home life grew more secure and happy, I achieved moderate popularity in school, enjoying friends and good times.

After graduation and a year's business schooling, I held a fairly responsible and satisfying secretarial job until my marriage, at 20, to the man who is now my husband. I love him very much, we are well mated in every way and ours is a good marriage, which I emphasize to show that our children—now 2, 4 and 6—are growing up in a loving secure atmosphere.

The children are healthy, handsome, friendly, with outgoing personalities, and my problem is how to keep them that way; how to best rear them to meet life always with confidence, self-reliance and open mind. Is it possible for me to instil these qualities into them, without injecting something of myself also, as my mother did?

Or do you feel (reading this) that I am a neurotic person, who will influence my children likewise? If you can recommend a helpful book or give other suggestions, I shall be most grateful.

F. R.

Mother's Ideas Were Too Severe

DEAR F. R.: You are neurotic, yes, to be fearing failure even while consistently demonstrating fair measure of success in human relations; also in worriedly feeling weighty obligation to somehow surpass yourself in the role of parent.

"To err is human," a gentle maxim which never figured in your mother's consciousness, it seems. Rather she drew a straight line between good and bad, according to concepts ingrained in her; and in authoritarian ways impressed upon you the necessity of meeting her standards in order to earn her approval.

Thus was initiated your chronic habit of anxiety, sparked by the frightening severity of her requirements; and thus also was incited your compulsive striving towards perfection in all phases of personal endeavor, and guilty feeling of failure at anything less, on the theory that it were a manifestation of damnable laxity, hence due cause for crushing condemnation and ineffable punishment.

In consequence, you are always afraid of being found wanting, despite cumulative proof of intrinsic good sense and social intelligance; and this neurotic aspect of your character motivates your uneasy approach to child training.

Don't Standardize Children's Growth

FOR ADVICE: Give the children love, security, humane nurture; and give them respect, i. e., discerning affirmative interest in their special virtues, whatever they are; and the best that is in them will gather force for productive social expression, in spontaneous original forms.

Don't labor the business of trying to make each and all fearless and outgoing. That aspiration is in itself too standardized, inasmuch as each individual's temperament is uniquely his own, whereas his character (when finally established in predictable pattern) is the composite of his temperament's reaction to experience.

It is safe to say that one can't "instill" confidence, self-reliance, an open mind, etc.,—attributes of temperament—in a child. At best, one can provide favorable climate and elbow room for these qualities to flower, if they are inherent in the genes and unconsciously stimulated by parental example; but where these conditions don't obtain, coaching will only confuse. For helpful reading I recommend Eric Fromm's new book, "Man for Himself" (Rinehart & Company).

Waltz Routine A Feature of League Follies

A delicate, intricate waltz ballet promises to be one of the loveliest numbers in the "Follies of '48" when it appears at Lisner Auditorium on April 8, 9 and 10.

David Lawrie will be soloist for the song which features the ballet. Junior Leaguers in the waltz number are Mrs. Gordon Gray, wife of the Assistant Secretary of the Army; Mrs. Clyde B. Aitchison, jr., Mrs. Samuel T. Ansell, jr., Mrs. Frederick H. Allen, Mrs. Travis Brown, Mrs. John W. Burke, jr., Mrs. John Dinsmore, Miss Anne Dudley Flannery, Mrs. J. H. P. Garnett, Mrs. John L. Porter, Miss Susan Smith and Mrs. John B. Stanley.

Reservations for the "Follies of '48," a benefit for the Child Guidance Center of Children's Hospital, continue to pour into the ticket office. Additional subscribers include Mr. and Mrs. Charles deVere Drayton, Mr. and Mrs. David Finley, Mrs. Frank Slingluff, Mrs. Jessie Moon Holton, Mrs. Orme Wilson, Mrs. Eric Johnston, Mrs. W. Stuart Symington, Mrs. R. M. Kauffmann, Brig. Gen. and Mrs. William L. Ritchie, Capt. and Mrs. Herbert Sidney Jones, Mr. and Mrs. L. Corrin Strong, Mrs. Richard Southgate, Mr. and Mrs. Lee D. Scales Offer Hope for Poor Loser

By Ida Jean Kain

GATHER round, all poor losers . . . this is your day! That indicator on the scales will be down—if not today, then tomorrow for certain.

"Hurrah, hurrah, another pound gone!" our model, Barbara Anne, would write gaily, and then I knew for sure that she would stay with calorie clipping and frolic through the shaper-uppers. Nothing injects enthusiasm into a figure program so much as lost pounds and missing inches. But failure to lose can send one's spirits into a nose dive.

Unhappily, not all dieters are good losers. Some do not lose even a fraction of a pound for an exasperating number of days . . . it may be four, five, or even fifteen. But, on the sixteenth day, the indicator drops.

Glands Are Suspected

If this failure to lose while dieting has happened to you, quite naturally you'll suspect your glands, which you never did trust anyway. And you won't think my diet worth a hoot. But wait! I can explain everything . . .

You've been up against water retention. Actually you have lost weight, But you have been storing water simultaneously. Stored water weighs the same as the stored fat . . . which accounts for your apparent failure to lose weight.

To add to the confusion about all this, water storage is not influenced by the amount of water consumed—drink all you want between meals . . . water, that is. But if you are plagued with water retention, curtail the use of salt. You know, for example, how salt in the shaker holds moisture? Salt in the tissues does much the same thing. Use only the amount of salt included in cooking. Do not resalt food at the table.

Avoid Salty Foods

There are other dietary factors that help to counteract water retention—high protein, adequate Viatmin B, and a high potassium intake. Have two eggs daily, a very liberal amount of lean meat or fish . . . if the budget will stand it, have cheese every day and two glasses of skim milk or buttermilk. Avoid very salty foods. Include fresh, low-calorie vegetables in the daily menus to furnish potassium. And supplement the daily diet with one vitamin concentrate furnishing normal amounts of vitamins A, B-1, B-2, C and D.

Go merrily along with your exercises—inches are not affected by water storage. You can continue improving your figure, even when pounds are stubborn.

When the water balance finally adjusts itself—which it always does, and there is no case on record of water storage going on for longer than 16 days—then you seemingly lose five or six pounds overnight. All the weight loss shows up at one fell swoop . . . glory be!

Gene Lattimore Engaged To Wed George H. White 3d

By Nina Carter Tabb

SEVERAL engagements of interest in Washington and nearby Virginia are made known today.

Mr. and Mrs. Warren Lattimore Irish of Norristown, Pa., announce the engagement of their daughter, Gene Roberts, to George Howard White, III, of Middleburg, Va., formerly of Baltimore. Mr. White is son of Mrs. George Howard White, jr., and the late Dr. White.

Miss Irish is a graduate of Bryn Mawr College and the University of Minnesota. Mr. White, a graduate of Princeton University and Harvard Law School, served in the Navy during the war. Their marriage will take place May 15 in Norristown and the couple will reside in Washington, where they are both employed.

Announcement is made by Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Bruce Thompson of Lynchburg, Va., of the engagement of their daughter, Elizabeth Kabler, to James Hull Herbert. Mr. Herbert, a resident of Delaplane, Va., is son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Beverley Herbert of Columbia, S. C.

Miss Thompson graduated from St. Mary's Junior College, Raleigh, N. C., and from the Randolph-Macon Woman's College, Lynchburg, where she was a member of Alpha Omicron Pi Sorority. She is a member of the Junior League of Lynchburg and of the Spinsters German Club.

Mr. Herbert graduated from the Episcopal High School, Alexandria, and from Princeton University, where he was a member of the Charter Club. He served four years in the Army during the war, and he is now engaged in farming. Mr. Beverley's paternal forebears have lived in Fauquier County for several generations. He is the grandson of the late Mr. and Mrs. Robert Beverley of Avenel, near The Plains. The wedding will take place on May 22 at Ivy Hill, home of the bride's parents.

Wedding Invitations Issued

Invitations have been sent out by Mr. and Mrs. David Campbell Drayton, of Arlington, for the marriage of their daughter, Evelyn Spotswood, to Colin Edward Thompson, jr., on Saturday, April 17, at Emanuel Episcopal Church, Middlesburg, Va.

A reception will follow at the home of the bride's parents.

The bride-to-be is the granddaughter of the Rev. and Mrs. David Campbell Mayers, of Middleburg.

Mr. and Mrs. Howell Jackson, of Oakendale Farm, near Middleburg, have returned from a visit of two weeks to Wilcox Inn, Aiken, S. C.

Miss Elizabeth Lemmon entertained at a dinner party on Saturday evening at her home, the Church House, near Middleburg. Among her guests were Mr. and Mrs. Taylor Scott Hardin, Mr. and Mrs. Algernon Davy, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Crabites, Mrs. Poyntz Tyler and Laurens Hamilton.

Mr. and Mrs. Nathaniel H. Morison had as house guests over the Easter holidays their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Holmes N. Morison, jr., of New York, and their children, Nelly Morison and Nat Morison, III, and their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Southgate Morison, of Baltimore.

William M. Wood, of Baltimore, is spending a part of his spring vacation at the Middleburg Inn, in Middleburg.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hill Jones of New York, and their son, Charles Hill Jones, jr., spent Easter weekend at their Virginia farm, near Bluemont.

Tim McLoy, of Harvard University, is spending a week's vacation with his uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph M. Mulford, at their home, Halfway House, near Middleburg.

Dr. J. A. Talbot, of Washington, spent the past weekend at his Virginia farm, Delta, near Middleburg. He was the guest of honor at a midday dinner party on Easter Sunday, given by his daughter, Mrs. Emily Talbot.

Scissors Handy

When you sit down to enjoy that new woman's magazine, have a pair of scissors handy with which to clip the articles about the home that interest you. You will lose so many helpful hints if you just let them go, thinking to return to them at some time. Cut them out and file them when they attract your attention.

Dotted Curtains

Be certain the dots on the dotted curtains are woven into the material and not pasted on top. Then you are certain they will not pull out or wash out the first time they are laundered.

Use Tape for Curtain Rod Ends

Curtain rods are apt to become roughened on the edge due to age and then they catch on the material when pushed through the hem. This may be avoided by covering the end of the rod with a strip of celluclose tape. Then it will slide through readily without catching.

Iron and Elbow Grease Will Remove Holes From Old Seam

Would you be kind enough to tell me of a way in which the hole marks of a seam may be eradicated after letting out the seam? W. W.

In cottons, washing and ironing is usually all that is necessary to remove the seam hole marks. In nonwashable fabrics, place a damp cloth over the seams area, and press with a warm iron.

Everywhere I inquire, I can find only a sewing school where the elements of sewing are taught. It seems all schools I've talked with merely teach the rudiments which most married women already know. Such primary steps as types of seams, types of buttonholes, and types of pleats. Then they insist a student make an apron, pajamas, and other easy-to-construct garments, before proceeding to a suit, dress or coat. Do you or your many readers known of a school where I can learn how to drape my own designs and cut my own pattern? It seems I can never get a true fit in a commercial pattern nor the right combination of details that I need for my funny figure. A. W. B.

A local school of design that teaches the sort of course you are seeking can be contacted by telephoning REpublic 3378.

I have a long carved ivory cigarette holder and would like to know the most convenient way of cleaning it. It is turning a bit yellow and also shows lipstick stains. I might add that it is too long and the hole a little too small for the usual pipe cleaner. M. C. O.

Rub vaseline onto the lipstick stains, allow to stand for 30 minutes and then rub the stains and the entire holder with alcohol and powdered chalk. This will remove the surface stains, but will not remove the yellowing which comes to all ivory with age. To clean the inside of the holder perhaps you can use a very fine wire, bent double, and arranged so that there is a loop at one end. Thread a piece of fine yarn or string into this loop and pull back and forth

Is there any type of material available to paint walls and floors to keep water out? Down here in Florida the water comes through the cement walls and floors constantly. P. B. L.

Iron cement, mixed with water to the consistency of thick paint and applied to the walls with a brush is an effective waterproofing treatment if there is not too much moisture seeping through the walls. If large amounts of water enter the basement through floor and walls, other methods than painting the surface must be employed. Constantly wet basements may be caused by any one of several factors. Sometimes cellars are below the natural water level and have not been constructed strongly enough to resist the water pressure. Or, the dampness may be caused by leakage through the walls due to construction which permits collecting places for water on the outside wall of the cellar and porous or cracked cement which allows this collected water to enter the cellar. Also, water may come in through the floor because of failure to provide drainage under the cement construction.

It is necessary to find out just what is the cause for the water in the basement before knowing what to do to prevent it. We do not have space here to enumerate the simple tests which can be made to determine the cause and the solutions. However, you will find this subject discussed at length in "First Aid for the Ailing House" by Roger B. Whiteman (published by Whittlesey House, McGraw-Hill Book Co., Inc.).

Can you tell me how to remove green enamel paint from a white poplin uniform? M. J. P.

A hardened paint stain is difficult, if not impossible to remove. However, try this: Moisten the stained area, front and back, with turpentine and allow plenty of time for it to soften. When softened, rub gently. If all of the paint is not softened, apply more turpentine until all paint is softened. Wash stained area in plenty of soap and water. Rinse well. (Handle turpentine carefully as it is inflammable. Use outdoors if possible.)

Can you suggest a satisfactory method of cleaning the cloth of ordinary, roller window shades when they become soiled? C. H. G.

If the shades are washable, remove them from the window and unroll them on a flat surface such as a table top. Using a circular motion, sponge the shade with a soft cloth wrung out of mild soap suds. When clean, wipe off suds with a damp cloth wrung out of clean water. Thoroughly clean only a small area at a time, overlapping each area as you work. Wash and rinse shade on both sides and hang to dry before rolling. Be sure not to attempt washing unless you know the shades to be washable.

The most you can do to clean a nonwashable shade is to lay it flat and go over it with the doughtype of wall paper cleaner.

Club Heads to Hear Dr. H. Kerr

Representatives from approximately 100 women's clubs and professional organizations will attend a meeting of the Women's Division of the District of Columbia Division of the American Cancer Society in the Auditorium of the Washington Gas Light Co. today at 2:30 p. m. Mrs. Miles L. Colean, women's chairman of the cancer control campaign, will conduct the meeting.

Among those expected to attend are: Ruth Crane, president, National Association of Women Broadcasters; Nancy Osgood, District chairman, National Association of Women Broadcasters; Mrs. Charles Runyon, president, Junior League of Washington; Mrs. Joseph R. Farrington, president, League of Republican Women of District of Columbia; Mrs. John Thomas, president, League of Women Voters; Irma Gene Nevins, president, Business and Professional Women's Club; Mrs. Robert J. Dannemiller, president, Chevy Chase Women's Club.

Also Mrs. Clifford Davis, president, Congressional Club; Mrs. Edward C. Magdeburger, president, Fderation of Women's Clubs; Mrs. Nation Simkowitz, B'nai B'rith; Hadassah, Mrs. Joseph Freedman; Mrs. Norman Gerstenfeld, Washington Hebrew Congregational Sisterhood; Mrs. D. G. Bress, Service Guild; Mrs. Meyer Goldberg, Adas Israel Sisterhood; Mrs. Hazel G. Engelbrecht, Worthy Grand Matron of the Order of the Eastern Star.

Robert C. Owners, general campaign chairman and Dr. Harry H. Kerr, president of the District Division of the American Cancer Society, will address the group.

The Crystal Chandelier

It is quite a job to take down all the crystals on the elaborate chandelier when one wants to clean them; so why not try perching yourself on the ladder with a clean cloth and a bottle of either ammonia or alcohol? Dampen the cloth and wipe each crystal. They will clean beautifully and need not be dried.

Dusting Powder

The popular dusting powder if used in the bedroom certainly does play havoc with the rug or carpet in front of milady's dressing table. One of the dainty hooked rugs, rather light in color, may be placed over this spot. Then it can be shaken every day, whereas a powdered carpet means the sweeper or cleaner each time.

Attractive Containers

House plants must have attractive holders to complete their picture in the home. Do not have so many plants that all you see is a collection of red clay pots. Have just as many in your living room as you have holders for the pots and really make them an asset and an addition to your furnishings.

"KEEP SAVING USED FATS!
... It's a Habit That Pays"

"My conscience wouldn't let me throw out even a drop of used fats when I know they're still needed so badly. Why, today's shortage of fats and oils is still very serious, our government says.

"I really get a kick out of seeing how much extra fat I can save . . . by melting down trimmings, skimming gravies, really scraping pans. I re-use it, certainly. But there's always something left to make saving worth while!

"Have you ever stopped to think that used fats are the only kitchen waste that can be turned into cash? That's a good point to remember in these days of higher food costs."

THE DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

In That Case, It Could Be Called A "Scrap" Book

In the old days, they just gave you a marriage license and that's all there was to it.

But now you get the full text of the service, made up in book form, with the license neatly included in the front of the book.

When Mrs. Rene R. Munger of 3725 Macomb st. nw. showed her book to Mrs. Sam Riger of 829 Quincy st. nw. the other day, Mrs. Riger observed brightly:

"Maybe there's something to this idea, at that. Now if the husbands get out of line, the brides can really 'throw the book' at them."

MAIL BAG

Dear Bill:

Your contributors seem like very nice people, so I think they'd like to know about our Thrift Shop.

It's sponsored by the Girl Scouts of Washington and Montgomery County. It solicits cast-off articles from its friends, and turns these white elephants to a useful purpose.

First, the girls themselves learn a great deal in reconditioning these things, and putting them into usable and salable condition. Then the girls learn to "tend store" by selling some of the merchandise.

We're at the intersection of Fenton st. and Pershing dr.—an island in a sea of parking lots. (In other words, we're behind the Silver Spring Armory.)

The Thrift Shop is closed on Sundays and Mondays, but on the other five days it's open from 10 a. m. to 4 p. m. The money raised by this shop helps to support worthwhile Girl Scout activities.

For further information you can call my mother, Mrs. Wenzel Habel, at Shepherd 6480.

Muriel Habel,
1015 N. Noyes Dr.,
Silver Spring, Md.

Dear Muriel:

I did call your mother, and gave her quite a surprise.

She didn't know you had written to me, and couldn't figure out how I knew so much about the Thrift Shop.

I convinced her that a little intelligent initiative isn't a bad thing in a girl of 15, so you're in the clear. Good luck with the shop.

Bill.

ANNOUNCEMENT

If you're among the few who haven't called me up to ask yet, I'll save you the trouble.

I don't know the name of the mystery tune. Honest!

If you think you do, and if you'd like to share your guess with other contest-minded radio listeners, drop us a line.

DIAGNOSIS

Paul M. Herzog, chairman of the National Labor Relations Board, has been credited with many a wisecrack, but I think this one tops them all.

When Gerhard P. Van Arkel was general counsel of the board, he was known far and wide for his lengthy sentences, liberally sprinkled with semicolons.

"Gerry, what you need is a good semicolonic irrigation."

LIZZY STONE NOTES

Elaine R. Snyder of 1202 Hamilton st. nw. is only 11 years old, but with a wisdom far beyond her years she observes:

"The trouble with the New Look is that it makes everybody who wears it look old."

How true. Everything is going up these days except hemlines.

And have you seen those droopy raincoats that make a girl look like she's wallowing through a sea of billowing canvas? Yipe!

Mr. Truman's big chance for a political comeback would seem to be a fearless call for the return of the Old Look. He'd be acclaimed by all the men and half the women.

INFORMATION PLEASE

Peggy Charlton of the Broad Street School, Salem, Va., recently sent the following letter to the Chamber of Commerce at Quantico, Va.:

"Our seventh grade class is making a study of the State of Virginia. We wish to know any interesting facts that you can give us about Quantico. We shall appreciate pamphlets, booklets or any other information."

A copy of this letter has been forwarded to me by an employe of the chamber of commerce, whose job I will protect by mentioning no names. The covering letter reads:

"Inasmuch as the Quantico Chamber of Commerce is about as dead as any organization could be, I appeal to you on behalf of our little friend."

"There are probably many District Liners who know something about Quantico, and who would like to contact Peggy at the Broad Street School in Salem, Va."

Sure. We'll try anything once. And meantime how about you Quantico folks letting us know whether it's true that your chamber of commerce is moribund. That's hard to believe.

CIGARETTES SHORTENED THEIR LIVES, EH?

Jack has quit smoking
And so has Jill.
They smoked their last in

Carey G. Crulkshank, 3926 W st. nw.

Listen to Bill Gold each noon, Monday through Saturday, over WINX (1340) and WINX-FM (96.3).

Leonard Lyons . . .

NEW YORK.—Buddy De Sylva listened to some Broadway producers discussing the efficacy of their organizations. "Outmoded, small-time stuff," De Sylva scoffed. "Hollywood has the right set-up. At Paramount I had an organization that could dig up anything for me. Anything. I still have the names of those men, and I'll bet they'll produce anything I want." He waited, and then said: "I'll bet $1000 that within three hours I can find five Albinos" . . . There were no takers . . . "I'll bet $1000," De Sylva continued "that within three hours I can find five Albinos with broken noses—and that each broken nose will be twisted to the right."

THEATER NOTE: Rouben Mamoulian, who directed "Oklahoma!," returned to New York to attend the fifth anniversary of the musical. He saw Owen Martin, one of the three original members remaining in the cast, and said: "Owen, you look as young as you did when you first opened in the show" . . . "Of course," the actor agreed. "An actor who works steadily for five years can't help staying young. In show business it's those four-week rehearsals and two-week runs that age you."

GIFT DEPT.: A visitor at the home of Dame May Whitty admired the electric cocktail shaker she has in her living room. "Where'd you get it?" she was asked. . . . "Oh, I've had it for many years," replied the venerable Dame May. "My daughter gave it to me on my seventy-fifth birthday."

SOCIAL NOTE: Will Irwin, the humorist, who died last month, used to tell of the time when he and his wife were to be presented at court. "What do we do when we're presented?" Mrs. Irwin asked. . . . "Well, I bow and you curtsy," said Irwin. . . . "But I don't know how to curtsy," Mrs. Irwin insisted. . . . "I've seen it done many times. I'll show you," her husband assured her. On the day of the presentation, he taught her how to bend the knee and dip gracefully. She practiced it until she could do it perfectly. Then they went to the palace, where, when she saw the rulers, Mrs. Irwin gasped—and Irwin hurriedly curtsied.

★ No. 2 IN A SERIES DEDICATED TO THE NATION'S CAPITAL, Washington . . . ITS INSTITUTIONS AND ITS PEOPLE ★

Facts About The Building

The second largest public building in the world . . . Agriculture's South Building ranks next to the Pentagon in size. The statistics: 4,500 rooms . . . 10 acres big . . . 40 elevators . . . 33 entrances . . . 9 floors . . . 458 feet wide by 944 feet long. It has 7 miles of corridors (a guard must walk 9 miles a night to complete his rounds) . . . and 2,600 electric clocks! Completed in 1930, it cost $11 million . . . and is now "the office" for 7,500 people. Another 2,500 work in adjoining buildings.

THIS WEEK . . . THE HECHT COMPANY SALUTES

The U. S. Department of Agriculture

And Its People Who Are Friends and Counsellors to the Nation's Millions of Farmers

The Department of Agriculture . . . grew out of the Patent Office . . . which undertook to distribute seeds and collect agricultural statistics in the 1830's. The first Congressional grant of money for agricultural purposes was the sum of one thousand dollars . . . which was expected to last for several years . . . and did!

The Department of Agriculture . . . was aided in its growth by the State and Navy Departments. Seeds, cuttings and specimens of plants and trees which were thought valuable were sent back by U. S. Consular Officers in foreign lands . . . and naval vessels brought back rare plants from the many lands they visited.

The Department of Agriculture . . . has grown tremendously in the past century. In its early years three persons were sufficient to take care of Agriculture's duties in Washington (in addition to their main job, which was running the Patent Office) . . . in 1868 about fifty were employed . . . which increased to twenty-five hundred in 1897 . . . to more than ten thousand today.

The Department of Agriculture . . . today . . . embraces almost every portion of the general field of agriculture. Thousands are engaged in research, to provide us with new and better ways to cultivate the soil . . . in education, to give us better trained farmers for the future . . . in credit, to help the farmer solve his financial problems . . . in soil conservation, to insure future generations of rich and fruitful farmlands and forests . . . and in many other fields.

The Department of Agriculture . . . does not operate solely within the borders of this country. Operations are under way in Alaska, Hawaii and Puerto Rico . . . and a general program of cooperation is carried on with the other American Republics.

All the facts contained herein have been obtained from the U. S. Department of Agriculture and the Library of Congress.

The U. S. Department of Agriculture . . . sixty-eight thousand sincere, hard-working men and women (ten thousand of them in Washington) . . . serving the country and its farmers with scientific counsel . . . economic aid . . . education and advice. It started with three or four people working in a corner of the Patent Office, around 1800 . . . then a few more were added . . . until Lincoln, in 1862 officially established the department. In 1889, it attained Cabinet rank. Through peace and war . . . depression and prosperity . . . the Department has dedicated itself to a nation well-fed, a soil well-tilled, a land rich in production . . . with resources carefully husbanded for the future. Its people work in field and laboratory . . . in the market and in the kitchen . . . in the classroom . . . and in the great South Building here in Washington. Agriculture means better living for all America . . . a stable farm economy . . . rural electrification . . . research . . . education . . . care of our forests and our soil . . . and . . . the biggest job of all . . . a proper balance of food at home . . . and food for our friends in other lands. Today, under the able guidance of Secretary Clinton P. Anderson . . . the people of Agriculture move forward toward new accomplishments . . . a better America and a better world. The Hecht Company is proud to salute Agriculture's ten thousand in Washington . . . the people who make the Department great . . . because they are truly the preservers of America's heritage from the soil.
